חג פסח שמח

Happy Passover

Join us for our Family Fun Seder!
Sunday, April 17, 2:00 - 3:30 pm
In Person at B'nai Havurah

Join us as we celebrate Passover with a musical, casual family Seder. Wear comfy clothes and bring some floor pillows or camping chairs (we'll be sitting on the floor), as well as a favorite family seder plate if you have one. We'll provide the ritual objects and foods, haggadot and songsheets, as well as yummy desserts after the Seder.
CLICK HERE to register - no fee, all are welcome!
Deadline for registration is noon on Friday, April 15.

In today's parsha, Moses instructed that the Israelites were to set aside every year a tenth part of their harvest. They were to consume the tithes of their new grain, wine, and oil, and the firstlings of their herds and flocks, in the presence of God in the place where God would choose.

PASSOVER RESOURCES

Jewish Disabilities Advocates Teaches Us About Including Those With Chronic Health Conditions at Our Seders

Consider adding a spoon to your Seder plate!

At Passover, we celebrate freedom. Yet, many with chronic health conditions do not have the freedom to live life as they would choose. They must ration their energy throughout the day, which can make it overwhelming to plan or host a Passover Seder. Jewish Disabilities Advocates encourages all of us to learn more about welcoming and supporting those with chronic health conditions at our Seders. You may also consider adding a spoon to your Seder plate to represent the choices many must make in terms of how they spend their limited energy. To understand more about Spoon Theory, making our Seders inclusive, and an alternative version of Dayeinu, click here.

18Doors is a a great resource for interfaith couples and families in formation.

Check them out at https://18doors.org/tag/passover/ before Passover! They cover a ton of useful information, including:

- Celebrating Passover and Easter
- Pre-Passover Preparation
- How to Keep Kids Engaged During a Passover Seder
- Passover Food Traditions

To make Passover as simple as possible, PJ Library has created a Step-by-Step Seder video playlist. In each brief segment, Shira Kline shows you one of the fifteen steps of a seder. Follow along with the PJ Library Family Haggadah — which you can download for free — using this short, sweet cheat sheet.
