- Babysitting: Available Saturdays from 9:00AM-12:30PM
- Religious Garments: As a sign of respect, a kippah (skull-cap) is worn by all males in the Synagogue. A talit (prayer shawl) is worn by adult Jewish males on Sabbath mornings; adult Jewish females are encouraged to wear a talit on Sabbath mornings as well.
- Dress: We ask all who attend to dress modestly, to reflect the sanctity of the Sabbath and the Synagogue. Additionally, everyone accepting honors must have their heads and shoulders covered.
- Books: The blue siddur contains prayers recited during the services. The red chumash contains the Five Books of Moses, with additional readings from the Prophets. Both are written in English and Hebrew and are read right to left. Both books are considered sacred, as they contain God's name.
- Electronics: The use of mobile phones, photographic devices, and writing implements are prohibited in the Synagogue on the Sabbath.

TIKUN OLAM 5780: CIRCLE OF LIFE

December/January/February

FILL THE CRIB

TORAH TIME: MIKETZ

A dream troubles Pharaoh, and Joseph is summoned to interpret it. He foresees seven years of plenty, followed by seven years of famine. Pharaoh puts Joseph in charge of Egypt's famine plans. Jacob's sons come to Egypt for grain; Joseph conceals his identity. Joseph demands that his brothers bring Benjamin, the brother left in Canaan; Jacob reluctantly agrees. Joseph's goblet is hidden in Benjamin's sack; Joseph detains him.
