“There are some of them who have left a name, so that men declare their praise, And there are some of them who have no memorial, who have perished as though they had not lived: They have become as though they had not been born, and so have their children after them. But these were men of mercy, whose righteous deeds have not been forgotten: Their prosperity will remain with their descendants, and their inheritances to their children’s children. Their descendants stand by the covenant; their children also, for their sake. Their prosperity will continue forever, and their glory will not be blotted out. Their bodies were buried in peace, and their names live to tell all generations. Peoples will declare their wisdom, and the congregation proclaims their praise.”

At this time of Yizkor, along with the names of loved ones shared throughout the booklet, we note with reverence individuals who also played a particularly formative role in Sinai’s history but who no longer have family in the congregation to recite Kaddish for them. May their memories always be recalled for blessing.
