Rabbi Harold Loss

This past year, on our Temple Israel Mission to Eastern Europe, Judge Bernie Friedman offered to take our group on a tour of the Federal Court in Detroit. A conversation on the bus about the breakdown in the German judicial system and its tragic consequences led to our desire to visit his court.

On March 29th we met at the Court House and spent a fascinating few hours being reminded of the important work that takes place every day in the Court House.

The building itself is interesting: "A classic example of 1934 Art Deco and Art Moderne architecture with domed ceilings, intricate hand-painting, marble flooring and historic bronze accents. The seven original courtrooms are still in use, including the exotic 'Million Dollar Courtroom,' featuring 30 species of marble and a bench carved from East Indian mahogany. It was saved from demolition of the old 1890 federal building and painstakingly reassembled on the seventh floor of the new building."

We were tourists, as we had been in Eastern Europe, with a very skilled and talented guide. Having concluded our tour, our attention was directed to the work of the court.

Judge Friedman presided over several cases. Decisions were made, within very clearly established guidelines, and those sentenced to prison or awaiting further dates in court came before the Judge.

For most of us, the court system is something we think about when we receive a "request" to sit on a jury. It is so very powerful when you see a man come from prison into the room in handcuffs. In every situation, what was most important to Judge Friedman was that each defendant, although represented by an attorney, understood exactly what was happening.

Our day concluded with a meeting with three Jewish Federal Judges: Bernard A. Friedman, Paul D. Borman and Avern Levin Cohn. Judge Cohn shared with us the evolution of the appointment of Jewish members to the Federal Bench. The Dean of the Court, and as Bernie Friedman said, "The Judge all others go to for advice," Judge Cohn told us many stories about the political process and the Presidents who made the final decision.

What had changed, during his years on the court, was the fact that being Jewish was no longer considered a significant factor. With many Jewish federal judges in Detroit, religious identity is of little consequence.

We are all fascinated and a bit dismayed by the search for our next Supreme Court Justice. In the midst of this very challenging political time, it was instructive to be at the Federal Court. Decisions are made every day that affect the lives of our fellow citizens. Cases come before the bench that impact our lives.

Thank you, Judge Friedman, for the tour, for lunch and for the opportunity to visit one of the foundational institutions of our nation.

Grades 7-12 MONDAY NIGHTS AT TEMPLE ISRAEL: 6:00 - 7:45 PM with Dinner

SEVENTH GRADE: Seventh grade is often a time of searching for self-understanding. Through three class rotations - Living Jewish, Jewish Identity and Holocaust - our seventh grade program is designed to create opportunities for our students to develop a better understanding of their Jewish identity.

EIGHTH GRADE: In our eighth grade program, students learn how to put Jewish values into action! We will be exploring concepts like hunger, respect for the elderly, caring for people who are sick, and living safely - all through Jewish activities and programs. Highlights include: shopping for Yad Ezra at Meijer, participating in a Hunger Banquet, and an end of the year trip to Chicago!

NINTH-TWELFTH GRADE: ROOTS is Temple Israel's experiential learning program for teens in 9th-12th grade that encourages community-building, leadership skills, development of Jewish identity, and a deep connection to Jewish life. Teens will build their own Monday night program by choosing at least one elective-style class per quarter, as well as two or more community experiences or trips throughout the year. They will learn and connect in ways that are personally meaningful and Jewishly significant, getting to know their peers and clergy in both formal and informal settings.
