Spirituality and Practicality

WE are just finishing a long and draining political season in America and here in Georgia. Like any political season, some are happy, some disappointed, and everyone is tired! We feel blessed to live in a democracy and to belong to a Temple that welcomes with open arms diversity of opinion. We are ready to move on from all-consuming coverage and TV spots and to do what we do best: roll up our sleeves and do our part to improve our state and our country.

I once had a professor in rabbinic school who announced on the first day of class: “If you want to succeed in the rabbinate, there are two things you should never get involved in because they are controversial. One is politics and the other is religion!” He made his humorous point without much further commentary: all of life is political, even religion.

Most of us, myself included, understand well that politics itself can be divisive and truly does not belong in the realm of religious life. So, I’d like to share a different frame for how it is we can view the role of religion. We take our cue from Moses, whom our tradition venerates as the greatest prophet of all time. Moses was the quintessential spiritual leader because he spoke to God face-to-face, but he was also a person incapable of minding his own business. When he saw an Egyptian beating an Israelite, he intervened; when he saw two Israelites fighting, he broke them up; when he came to the well of Midian and saw the Midianites attacking each other, he got involved.

Similarly, the Torah that Moses brought down for us from Mount Sinai deals very much with matters of the spirit, but it also addresses mundane matters such as weights and measures. It discusses secular subjects such as how to hire and fire and the rights and duties of people we employ. The Torah deals less with metaphysics and philosophy than it does with the rights of the widow and the orphan.

Making meaning is one of our core values; we will always strive to answer questions about how the world was created, and the purpose of our existence, and how we humans define the nature of God. Moses struggled with those questions, but he also toiled daily with how he could help the poor and how he could extend a loan while preserving the dignity of the borrower.

Moses spent his days contemplating both Divine matters and how to make this world a better place—economically and spiritually.

Moses was not political. He was practical. To be more exact, he taught us to find the spiritual element in the practical. He didn’t try to find the holiness in heaven: he sought holiness here on Earth.

I think we can all agree—no politics in religion; however, we learn from Moses that one must get passionately involved in the struggle for justice in an effort to build a good and moral world. To support a strong US-Israel relationship, to fight anti-Semitism whenever she rears her ugly face, to leave a better world for our children. This is what it means to be a Jew. This is what it means to be a human being. This is what it means to be created in the Divine image. In this New Year, let us renew our commitment to be spiritual and practical together!

The Living Sea Scrolls: The Discovery of the Cairo Geniza and Medieval Jewish History

Dates: February 2, 9, 16 at 7:00pm • Cost: Free and open to all!

Instructor: Craig Perry, Assistant Professor of Middle Eastern Studies and Jewish Studies at Emory University

There is an old Jewish tradition that written religious works should never simply be thrown away. Rather such texts should be given a proper burial or resting place, a geniza, where they can rest in dignity. For most of a millennium, the Jewish community of the Ben Ezra synagogue in Egypt took this practice quite seriously. By current estimates, the Ben Ezra synagogue preserved over 300,000 manuscripts that now comprise arguably the richest archive for the study of Jewish life and culture in the Middle Ages. Over three evenings, this course will explore the unlikely story of the Cairo Geniza's survival into the modern age as well as how its documentary contents have revolutionized what we are able to know about the everyday life of Jews in one of the foremost political and economic capitals of the medieval Islamic world. Topics we will study include A Crash Course in Medieval Jewish-Muslim Relations; Real Jewish Housewives of Cairo (RJHC); and Heretics, Rabbis, and Courtiers...Oh My!

Craig Perry

A New Approach to the two thousand year old issue of anti-Semitism

Dates: March 2, 9, 16 at 7:00pm • Cost: Free and open to all!

Instructor: Rabbi Dr. Albert Slomovitz, founder of The Jewish Christian Discovery Center and author of A New Look at Rabbi Jesus: Jews and Christians Finally Reconnected

Throughout these sessions, Dr. Slomovitz' will chronicle some traditional causes of anti-Semitism including the use of the Christian Bible, Jesus' life and education, the role of Judas and how the high priests come into play. By learning about some of these misreadings and misunderstandings, we can delve into the historical significance of this "facts" regarding anti-Semitism to help inform our next steps.

Think "Drunk History" meets "Wait, wait" meets...you'll have to tune in to see! Please register at www.the-temple.org/purim to receive the Zoom link.

Caring at The Temple

Our Caring at The Temple program reaches out to fellow congregants during times of hardship or pastoral need, providing homemade chicken soup and challah to members who are bereaved, ill, recently discharged from the hospital, or are celebrating the arrival of a new child. We have delivered more than 500 soups, and nearly every step of the program—from soup preparation, to delivery (within your zip code), to letting us know about fellow congregants in need—is led by members of our congregation.

To be a part of this program and to fulfill the mitzvah of bikkur cholim (visiting the sick) or to let us know who needs soup, please contact Rabbi Lydia Medwin at lmedwin@the-temple.org or 404-873-1731.

Temple Connect

For a complete listing of Temple Connect groups, visit www.temple-connect.com.

Joining a Temple Connect group is the best way to get to know a small group of people well. Formed around interests, needs, geography, demographic or profession, group meetings take place in the home, in an office, or anywhere in the city. Groups meet regularly (usually monthly), are led by your fellow Temple members, and consist of anywhere between 3-18 people. Temple Connect is designed to inspire us and transform our lives and the world around us. We want to help you get connected.

Giving Thanks

At The Temple, we are thankful for our community—the diversity of our members, those who deliver soup to congregants in need, our youth and adult learners, those working endlessly to support the Rothschild Social Justice Institute, and our volunteers and ushers just to name a few.

We also see the many ways that you are thankful for the special people in your lives when tribute gifts are made in their honor or memory. These tributes are a thoughtful way of you saying “mazel tov,” “thank you” or “you will be remembered.”

Recognize the special people in your life by making a gift at the-temple.org/support or by contacting Rita Zadoff, Donation and Special Event Coordinator, at 404-873-1731.
