Shavuot: Making Our Time Count

My daughter Zimra recently asked me one of those questions that, as a parent, both excites and confounds me: If we are in the year 2021, what happened 2,021 years ago? What happened to make a year 0? As I began to explain to her about the Gregorian calendar and time’s relationships to Christianity, I found myself going down a rabbit hole of history and religion. Imagine how we blew her mind when Dan and I reminded her that for Jews, it was the year 5781! When you get down to it, how we measure the passage of time is relative.

In general today, we are usually pretty exacting about our time, dividing our days into hours and minutes, feeling ruled by the clock. And yet, just like the measuring of time, the actual passage of time is also relative. When we talk about time, we usually regret being out of it. For some of us, a year of quarantine meant too much time on our hands; for others, far too little of it. For most of us, both are somehow true.

Similarly, in the Bible, each Jewish holiday has an assigned month and day, often the fifteenth of a month (when the moon is full and a bright night is guaranteed for festivities). The Jewish calendar is complex and exact. Yet Shavuot, the holiday we celebrate this year in (the Gregorian) May, is the one exception: instead of having a specific date related to a day or month, the Torah only says that we should count seven weeks after Passover, up the 50th day, which is Shavuot. Talk about the relativity of time! Because of this lack of assigned date, some rabbis said it was always on a Sunday, while other claimed it moved based on eyewitness testimony of the new moon and the variable numbers of day in a month.

Shavuot is the holiday during which we celebrate Matan Torah, the Giving of Torah and all of Jewish wisdom at Mount Sinai. But that "historical" layer was only added to the holiday later by the rabbis. The Torah itself speaks of Shavuot only in terms of an agricultural holiday, the harvest of the wheat that would have to last until the making of matzah the next year. That 50 days of counting helped the Israelite farmers keep track of when the wheat would need harvesting.

I wonder if we are meant to relate to this holiday with an emphasis on what author Nancy Bardacke calls "horticultural time" rather than "industrial time." In a world like ours that is so subservient to the tick tock of a clock, perhaps Shavuot is here just in time—to remind us that the most important parts of our lives can’t be dictated by clocks. Instead, the most important stuff runs more like the growing wheat. Children grow at their own pace; our livelihoods contract and rebound; friendships need to be nurtured; spiritual seeds are planted and will one day, unannounced, sprout new shoots of patience, tenderness, and compassion. Relationships with our spouses evolve over time in circuitous lines, never straight, and meaning in our lives does not arrive like a train on its schedule but instead is cultivated and harvested when we do the work of investing in community and in our gifts and in purpose. Shavuot is about receiving wisdom, but on its time and not our own. Shavuot reminds us that we do not control time; instead, we learn that time is limited and is what we make of it. We are in charge of not only counting it, but making it count.

And so, may we make the most of Shavuot and of this upcoming summer. Mark each passing week with a moment of Shabbat, and harvest the gifts of this, our most basic Jewish time keeper. Rediscover community and relax with friends, new and old, allowing new relationships and rituals to grow. Join small groups to enjoy your favorite past times. Find meaning by emerging from your quarantine and reuniting with the simple things: family, friends, food, joy. You will be able to find more of these opportunities to do all of these things this summer on The Gathering (https://thegathering.the-temple.org), our new platform for connecting at The Temple. More information coming soon!

Rabbi Lydia Medwin

About Rabbi Medwin:
Rabbi Lydia Medwin was ordained on the Los Angeles campus of HUC in May of 2010, where she received a Masters of Hebrew Letters and a Masters in Jewish Education from the Rhea Hirsch School. She had formative experiences traveling with American Jewish World Service, leading UCLA Hillel students on service trips, and engaging in an intensive course on community organizing. A native of Memphis, TN, Lydia attended the University of Texas (hook ‘em) and Hebrew University for undergraduate studies, earning degrees in Middle Eastern Studies and Honors Humanities. Between studies, she worked as the education director for a synagogue in Jackson, MS, and traveled to places as varied as South Africa, Peru, and Greece.

The David Narrative: Flawed and Favored
Dates: Tuesdays, May 18 and 25 • 7:00-8:00pm
Cost: Free and open to all!
Join Rabbi Kaye for a two week elective examining some of the lesser known stories that make up the narrative of King David. Together we will learn why the Hebrew Bible identifies David as God’s favorite ruler, while also examining some of the great mistakes that King David made during his reign. A polarizing figure, David serves as an example of a human being that is capable of being many things and holding many identities at the same time; musician, war hero, rebel, king in exile, beloved of God, and messianic figure! Texts will be provided.

Please join us virtually as we are called to the Torah as

Mini Shabbat: What is Shavuot?
Saturday, May 8 • 9:30am
Join your favorite clergy and puppet friends for a morning of celebrating Shavuot! We will learn about the “Big Ten” and remember that moment when we were all standing there at Mt. Sinai together. You may want to have some kind of dairy treat on hand – a perfect chance for ICE CREAM FOR BREAKFAST! As always, no need to RSVP. Just jump on and join us, even in your PJ’s! Questions? Email Rabbi Lydia Medwin at lmedwin@the-temple.org.

“Growing Up Poor In America”—
A Screening and Discussion
Thursday, May 13 @ 7:30pm • FREE
The Zaban Paradies Center and RSJI’s Homelessness Group will come together to raise awareness about Poverty and Homelessness in America and what we are doing and can do about it. Join us for a screening of the documentary, “Growing Up Poor in America.” Complimentary individually packaged appetizers and beverages will be distributed to each pod of guests as we socially distance on the front lawn of The Temple. A Special Guest Speaker will speak and Zaban Executive Director, Adrienne Hamilton-Butler, will explain new and innovative programs executed at ZPC to improve the lives of homeless couples and their families. Bring a blanket and/or lawn chairs to enjoy the presentation. This event is free to the public but with limited seating. Please RSVP by May 10 with the number of people in your pod to RSJI Leader Scott Edlein at s.edlein@gmail.com.

Bereavement Groups
We all know that we are living through unprecedented times. But we are also experiencing unprecedented grief. If you are dealing with loss in your life, these groups can help. Please don’t hesitate to be in touch with any of our clergy for guidance towards what might be right for you.

Temple Connect Bereavement Group with Drs. Greene
“Death ends a life not a relationship." We are so blessed that Temple members Dr. Robert Greene MD, a retired surgical oncologist and hospice director, and Dr. Barbara Greene PhD, a psychologist who specializes in grief groups, are offering a free, bimonthly bereavement group to help deal with the loss of a loved one and to honor the experiences of the bereaved. Whether you have recently experienced a loss or there’s more distance in time from your loved ones passing; whether you need just one session or many; whether you want to schedule ahead of time or wake up that day discovering a need to talk about your experience—coming to this group will be an act of love for yourself and others, and way to honor of your loved ones. Available on Zoom. Email them directly at rjgbbg@yahoo.com.

JF&CS Clinical Services
Bereavement Groups: Joining together for comfort and consolation
Every other Tuesday, starting February 9 • 4:00-5:00pm via Zoom
Cost: Free, donations welcome at jfcsatl.org/howyoucanhelp
Grief and loss of loved ones brings about complicated and mixed emotions. This support group aims to foster a safe and healthy environment to process and support those individuals. For more information or to register, contact Rabbi Judith Beiner at (770) 667-9352 or chaplain@jfcsatl.org or Brennen Joseph, LCPC, NCC at (770) 677-9478 or bjoseph@jfcsatl.org.

In addition, our partnership with JF&CS allows us to offer you a clinician and geriatric care manager associated with The Temple. Please be in touch with us if we can connect you to even more resources beyond bereavement care. We care about you, and we can help.

Leven Family Jewish Identity Institute Programming
The programs of the Leven Family Jewish Identity Institute are particularly aimed towards interfaith couples (dating, engaged, married, partnered) who are figuring out the role Judaism has in their relationship and future as well as those who are trying to figure out what connection their children (or future children) will have to Judaism and the Jewish community. We are excited by the diversity of couples and families who choose to make their connections here. Our goal is to help you find your path into The Temple and to feel supported in your journey. For questions or more information, please email Rabbi Lapidus at llapidus@the-temple.org.

The Temple’s (Virtual) Marriage Retreat: For Couples 10-15 years into marriage
Friday, April 30 • 8:00pm on Zoom
We are excited to offer our third virtual retreat this spring, this time for couples who are between 10 and 15 years of marriage. We’ll have the opportunity for small group conversation, reflection as couples on this age and stage of marriage and parenting, and of course, some laughs and relaxation as we settle into Shabbat. Each couple will pick up a retreat “box” earlier that day with Shabbat treats and date night activities to continue the retreat spirit afterwards. Space is limited, so find more details and register at www.the-temple.org/marriage-retreat.

Small groups and conversations
If you are interested in connecting with other interfaith couples in a small group format, please email Summer Jacobs at sjacobs@the-temple.org. We have several groups starting virtually and look forward to welcoming you!

Our Shared Journey: The Temple’s Israel Trip for Interfaith Couples
Rescheduled for November 4-14, 2021
Through the generosity of Leah and Richard Davis, we are excited to offer this pilot trip to Israel for interfaith couples who are towards the beginning of their journey of finding connections to Judaism, Israel, and The Temple. The trip is rescheduled for November and there are some spaces still available. For full criteria and a form to request information, please go to www.the-temple.org/oursharedjourney. If you have questions, please contact Rabbi Lapidus at llapidus@the-temple.org.

Broadening Our Commitment to Strengthening Communities

ZPC’s work focuses on meeting the needs of couples and their families living in poverty in a way that honors their dignity and empowers them to reach their goals for self-sufficiency. For many years, our work has focused on helping homeless couples reach independence. But what about those struggling to make ends meet and teetering on the edge of homelessness? We believe that the efforts to bring about social change and strengthen communities must include helping people avoid homelessness as well as assisting those experiencing it. To this end, ZPC, through the support of the Fulton County Community Services Program grant, now provides homeless intervention services to help those at risk of losing their housing. Services include financial assistance; referrals for rent, utility, employment and food assistance; credit repair; counseling; one-on-one life coaching; and peer support groups. ZPC is able to provide this support through its relationships with strategic community partners and its trained program staff. We are excited about meeting the increasing need for services in our community, and are pleased to announce that Derwin Davis has been promoted to Community and Resident Services Coordinator and will serve as the project’s point of contact. We invite you to learn more about our work and ways you can engage with us by attending the 1st annual Big Picture event: a screening of the documentary, “Growing Up Poor in America.” See page 7 for details.

RSJI: Immigration Outreach

A part of the Rothschild Social Justice Institute, Immigration Outreach focuses on helping people seeking to make the United States their home. We support immigrants at both the border and within the country, and it is our primary goal to help reunite families and children who have been separated. We want to demonstrate that America is a land of hope and opportunity for all those who would seek refuge here.

Over the past 2 years we have been engaged in many initiatives. We have supported Team Brownville in Texas, a non profit which provides humanitarian aid to families at the southern US border. We have sent supplies to them as well as donations of books, clothing, and materials they need for children attending their sidewalk school. While working with Team Brownville we have provided comfort to hundreds of children.

We have also been honored to help release detained immigrants and reunite them with their families. A local mother was detained after a routine traffic stop, denied medical treatment for her cancer and threatened with deportation. With the help of this committee and others, she was released and is now living with her children in Lawrenceville. Another young woman was also detained and upon her release she had no way to reunite with her family who had been forced, by the pandemic, to relocate to California. This committee provided her with supplies necessary to make the trip and was instrumental in helping reunite her with her family.

We are also active in numerous policy initiatives, advocating for DACA (Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals), court reporting through Emory University, and letter writing campaigns with El Refugio Ministry and Stewart Detention Center.

The Immigration Outreach group also assists refugees who have been settled in the greater Atlanta area. In the past we have brought in a Syrian refugee chef to The Temple and had a wonderful Shabbat dinner after services that also served as a fundraiser for his family. We are great supporters of the Global Village Project in Decatur, a school for refugee girls who were denied an education in their country of origin. Our members volunteer with, tutor, and feed the girls at the school - while making special relationships with these incredible young women.

As we go forward the Immigration Outreach group is in contact with other Jewish groups in the greater Atlanta area to create a network of Jewish support for refugees and immigrants. Recently we participated in a special Refugee Shabbat, a partnership of The Temple with Temple Sinai in conjunction with the Hebrew Immigration Aid Society.

Our group is led by Cindy R Zeldin at cindy@zeldin.com. Reach out to her if you would like to get more involved! Rabbi Sam is the clergy liaison for this group.

Counting the Omer: Wrap Up

Monday, May 17 • 10:00am

Join us for the conclusion of our 50 days of counting the Omer. We will consider some final ideas related to Shavuot, create a sacred container for new commitments, and conclude this season with our clergy and the rest of our community during Shavuot services.

Email Rabbi Lydia Medwin at lmedwin@the-temple.org.

Caring at The Temple
Our Caring at The Temple program reaches out to fellow congregants during times of hardship or pastoral need, providing homemade chicken soup and challah to members who are bereaved, ill, recently discharged from the hospital, or are celebrating the arrival of a new child. We have delivered more than 500 soups, and nearly every step of the program—from soup preparation, to delivery (within your zip code), to letting us know about fellow congregants in need—is led by members of our congregation.

To be a part of this program and to fulfill the mitzvah of bikkur cholim (visiting the sick) or to let us know who needs soup, please contact Rabbi Lydia Medwin at lmedwin@the-temple.org or 404-873-1731.

Confirmation Class of 2021
There are few prouder moments for The Temple than when we come together to consecrate the confirmation of our young members. The in-person service is for confirmation students and parents only due to COVID-19 restrictions. However, it can be viewed online on Sunday, May 2, 2021 at 9:30am (rain date: Sunday, May 9 at 9:30am). Please watch your weekly email for the link!
