Reb Moshe's Message

Dear Haverim and Haverot,

Folks are always saying that Jewish holidays arrive early or late.

This year Purim will be celebrated on February 23. Our coming Jewish New Year, Rosh HaShana, (5774) will be observed starting the evening of September fourth and so on. On the Hebrew calendar all Jewish festivals are always "on time," on their respective days, in their chronological order.

Why are there so many swings in their corresponding Gregorian dates? The Jewish calendar is basically a lunar calendar that is adjusted to the solar calendar's seasons. There are 354 days in the lunar year. Our months begin with the New Moon (Rosh Khodesh). There are 365.25 days in the solar calendar. The quarter day is adjusted with a leap day every 4 years.

To compensate for this difference in the amount of days, the Jewish calendar uses a 12-month lunar calendar with an extra month occasionally added. The month of Nissan occurs 11 days earlier each year for two or three years, and then jumps forward 30 days, balancing out the drift. In ancient times, this month was added by observation: the Sanhedrin observed the conditions of the weather, the crops and the livestock, and if these were not sufficiently advanced to be considered "spring," then the Sanhedrin inserted an additional month into the calendar to make sure that Pesach (Passover) would occur in the spring. In the Torah it is referred to as Khag he-Aviv, the Festival of Spring!

A year with 13 months is referred to in Hebrew as Shanah Me'uberet, literally: a pregnant year, or as we call it a "leap year". The additional month is known as Adar I, Adar Rishon (first Adar) or Adar Alef. The extra month is inserted before the regular month of Adar, known in such years as Adar II, Adar Sheini or Adar Beit. Note that Adar II is the "real" Adar, the one in which Purim is celebrated, the one in which yahrzeits for Adar are observed, the one in which a 13-year-old born in Adar becomes a Bar or Bat Mitzvah. Adar I is the "extra" Adar.

In the fourth century, Hillel II established a fixed calendar based on mathematical and astronomical calculations. This calendar, still in use, standardized the length of months and the addition of months over the course of a 19 year cycle, so that the lunar calendar realigns with the solar years. Adar I is added in the 3rd, 6th, 8th, 11th, 14th, 17th and 19th years of the cycle. We are currently in the 15th year of the cycle. Every 19 years one's birthday is on the same day on both calendars.

Now to one of our most interesting of Jewish holidays, one of the two instituted by the Rabbinic Sages. (The other is Hanukkah). They are not mentioned in the Torah, but are referred to in other books, and are The Scroll of Esther and the Chronicles of the Maccabees. The former book is in the Tanakh, the Hebrew Bible, while the latter in an extra-biblical book.

Purim is a carnival celebration, a place holder between winter and spring. It shares this distinction with Mardi Gras and St. Patrick's Day. All three of these carnival days precede a period of intense preparation for Pesakh and Easter.

Purim is based on Megillat Esther, the Scroll of Esther, a parody of the Persian court and the Persian gods. It features a villain, Haman, who threatens the existence of the Jews in the Persian Empire and their being saved from these evil intentions by our heroes Esther (Astarte) and Mordecai (Marduk), their names are parodies of the Persian deities. This salvation is the source for our joyous celebration. Over the centuries Purim initiated a stream of Jewish "entertainment". Aside from the public reading of the megilla, the scroll, shpils (plays), songs, and the wearing of masks and costumes added to the carnival atmosphere. The feast of Ahasuerosh, with which the Scroll begins, became the source of the custom of imbibing spirits in order to lift the spirits. Also added were acts of tzedakah (generosity to the poor) and mishloach manot, the exchange of goodies with neighbors and friends.

The deeper side of Purim is found in the custom of wearing masks and costumes. Their ability to hide the identities of the celebrants reveals the reality that we normally judge others based on their external appearance. During the year we know the "King" by his costume, on Purim anyone can dress as the King, thus providing us with basis of the Emperor having no clothes. On Purim we learn that things are not as they appear and that authority can be undermined; that our normal order can be turned "topsy-turvy"; that we, through our drunkenness, can see more clearly that our values need to be overturned at least one day a year, in order to truly appreciate them.

Purim provides us, as a community, an opportunity to express ourselves in ways we cannot do so during the year. On Purim we are given license, often through our costumes, to reveal other sides of ourselves unencumbered by the traditional "norms". The paradox of Purim is that in revels there is revelation.

I hope that you will join us, in costume, Saturday evening February 23 to revel in the creativity of our wonderful community.

Officers, Board Members, Committee Chairs, Staff

At our recent Community meeting on Dec 2, we voted to approve our new Bylaws, which included a new Board structure designed to provide a strong base for our dynamic community, enhance member participation and encourage emerging leaders.

We wish to thank all of our outgoing Board members, and know that they will stay actively involved in the community by sitting on committees. COMMITTEES! You will be hearing this over and over again in the coming months: committees keep our community the forward-thinking, fun-loving, integrated family that it is. Committees are a way to meet the people you sit next to when you come to shul. Committees help us all find the friends and the sense of belonging we are all looking for. Some positions on some committees are time-consuming, some are not. Some require monthly meetings, some do not. Some meet only around holidays, some are active all year long. Try one out. There is no commitment. Go to several, see what grabs you. The pay-back is enormous.

Here is the new team.

Co-Presidents' Message

David Chersonson
& Jenni Seicol

Many of you know or have heard about the new TBZ governance structure and Board of Directors that were voted in at our recent Community meeting in December. You may be wondering, "Why was this done?" or "What does this mean to me?"

TBZ has been functioning quite well for the past thirteen years, and we all owe a debt of gratitude to the many people who have helped make that happen. This new governance model is an attempt to build on that success, to respond to the desires many of you have expressed for greater participation and connection, and to make it easier and more likely for people to step into positions of leadership.

How do we do that? First, by distributing the work that needs to be done. Second, by greatly increasing the likelihood of communication between committees. Third, by integrating the Board much more into the life of the Community. Fourth, by instituting term limits and focusing on leadership development, helping to create a flow of people into involvement and then onto what is next.

We now have five Vice Presidents, each of whom will facilitate participation, communication, and coordination within and between our five main areas of synagogue activity. Those are:

- External Relations – Sue Kahn
- Programming – Amit Segal
- Spiritual Life – Molly Silver
- Member Relations – Sara Smolover
- Finance & Administration – Tali Walters Buechler

We also have eight At-Large Directors, who will be focusing on four "big-picture" areas that affect and are part of all of our activities – Strategic Planning, Leadership Development,

Governance, and Development (Fundraising). These Directors are:

- Cindy-jo Gross
- Carol Kamin
- Fran Kantor
- Dan Marx
- Billy Mencow
- Mona Strick
- 2 to be named later

With all of this support for you, there has never been a better time to get more involved at TBZ. Talk to any of us about your questions, your ideas, your interests, your needs. We will help you find a way to participate that works for you! Feel free also to send an email to copresidents@tbzbrookline.org.

How Much for Opening the Ark?

By Sara Smolover,

Member, Development Committee

Vice President for Member Relations

I grew up in a large Conservative Synagogue with a Cantor, 2 Rabbis, 5 office staff, 20 teachers, and full-time custodial staff. While I can't say that growing up there did much for my spiritual life, it did profoundly connect me with a community that was proud of what it stood for and that took responsibility for the financial strength of the institution. Now, it did this in the ways of times gone by (I truly hope) such as expecting donations in return for High Holiday aliyot and offering naming rights to practically every available space or piece of furniture in the building, up to and including – for a short time—the Aron HaKodesh (Holy Ark). My shul's bulletin also listed a myriad of funds for giving opportunities: the Youth fund, the Library fund, the Rabbi's fund, the Building fund, the Sisterhood/Men's Club fund, and more. Every week these categories had long lists of names "In Honor of..." and "In Memory of..." that indicated someone had made a donation to the shul. It was common practice for members to write a check to the shul when someone had a lifecycle event, or a professional or personal milestone that was notable. From the little bronze plaques on the seats to the lists in the bulletin our shul was committed to offering everybody a way to give that spoke to them, and at the same time honored someone in their lives.

While here at TBZ we aren't naming the chairs, the water fountain, or, Heaven forbid, the Ark, we do need to keep the shul running and our programs supported. Every donation helps to do that. Many members already take the opportunity to donate to TBZ to honor friends' milestones, memorialize a death, or honor a yahrzeit. Sponsoring or contributing to a Kiddush or Oneg is a wonderful way to show that you care about what's going on in someone's life and that you care about ensuring TBZ's financial strength.

We hope that you'll look for an opportunity this year to honor a loved one or mark a special occasion by making a donation to TBZ.

Message from Rav Claudia

Dear Haverim v'Haverot,

Here in New England it is the middle of the winter (though as I write this, it does not yet feel that way), but in our Jewish calendar we are getting ready to celebrate Tu B'Shvat. Tu B'Shvat is a Jewish Holiday in the middle of the month of Shvat, and will be this year on January 26. It marks the "new year of the trees", and is one of four year beginnings mentioned in the Mishnah. Originally, Tu B'Shvat as the beginning of a new year referred to tithing (the equivalent of our tax year) which was important for an agrarian society. With time Tu B'Shvat evolved and like the rest of our year cycle became a holiday of many layers and possible meanings. Many of you may have heard that the kabbalists of Tzfat (Safed) instituted a Tu B'Shvat Seder in which the fruits and trees of Israel were given symbolic meaning. Today, in many Jewish communities, this holiday has become the Jewish Earth day. A day to focus through ritual prayer and action on environmental awareness, learning and issues of sustainability, ecology and nature.

Tu B'shvat should probably become a much more central holiday (if not the most central one) in our times. As we struggle with the realities of global warming and wide spread hunger we need a Jewish framework to embed these issues in the web of meaning that sustains our life.

At TBZ we will be celebrating Tu B'Shvat with a communal Seder (co-sponsored with Hebrew College) on Thursday January 24, at 7:30 and with a Family Seder on Sunday January 27. I hope we will use these community gatherings to grapple with these issues.

I offer the following reflection on some of the key values our tradition teaches us about caring for the environment and invite you to think about ways these values can become central in your life (even beyond Tu B'shvat):

In the book of Bereshit Chapter 2, verse 15 humans are commanded to "work" and to "keep" the earth (l'ovdah ul'shomrah). Being commanded to guard the earth does not mean we own what we are watching, but it means that it is entrusted to us to care for. Our task is to watch over a world that we hope to be able to hand down to our children and grandchildren.

The word "work" la'avod, is also the word for worship, which implies that caring for our planet is an act of worship to the Divine. The world is not ours to do with as we please, it is God's and we are mere guardians who can hopefully do a better job than what we are currently managing...

We also find in the book of Bereshit Chapter 1, verse 28 the commandment to fill the world and "master it". The word in Hebrew is v'chivshuha often misunderstood as a sanction to do to whatever we want to the environment. Judaism teaches that we are stewards of our planet. Stewardship implies a distinctive role that we have as human beings. We definitely have power and we must be responsible in exercising it. Our tradition reminds us every week, through the celebration of Shabbat that we are part of the world rather than in control of it. We set twenty five hours aside every week, to avoid labor, to be present, to just be and stop doing, to remember that we are not at the center. On Shabbat we are to appreciate the majesty of the world around us.

Every Jewish holiday reminds us of something we ought to be thinking about all year long and not just on the day of the celebration. I invite you all to take advantage of our Jewish calendar to catalyze your thinking and grappling with these issues, finding ways to share these values with your children and others and turn these ideas into a lived reality.

Tu B'Shvat Sameach,

Rav Claudia

Adult Learning at TBZ

by Reggie Silberberg, chair

Our first planning meeting of the year was held on November 12. Here is a brief list of the ideas, some new and some old favorites:

- educational field trips to the Yiddish National Book Center and the Truro Synagogues in RI
- a course on contemporary thinkers of Judaism
- the Sunday morning author series – Bagels and Books
- another Book Club
- Shabbat speakers
- another Bnei Mitzvah course
- Prayer for Beginners

- a Jewish Social Action course
- Jewish History courses (Jews in Germany, Jews in Muslim countries, Jewish radicals, Jewish Meditation)
- Jewish literature, arts, music, theater and film.

This is a great start. Now we need the people power to make it happen!

Our new TBZ structure encourages interaction with other committees to explore ways that Adult Learning can enhance their programming as well. There are so many ways to participate: some take little time, and others require leadership roles.

Please contact me at tbzadultlearning@gmail.com, Reb Moshe at rebmoshe@tbzbrookline.org or Rav Claudia at ravclaudia@tbzbrookline.org with your ideas.

All sessions are held at TBZ, 7:30 - 9:00 pm.

In the Talmud we learn: '48 prophets and 7 prophetesses prophesied to Israel....' Who were these 7 prophetesses? They were Sarah, Miriam, Deborah, Hannah, Abigail, Hulda and Esther, the ushpizot (spiritual guests) that we invite into our Sukkah together with the traditional ushpizin.

This year we will learn about these women, and why they were named prophetesses by the Rabbis.

- What kind of role models are they and what do each represent?
- How do their voices shape our tradition?
- How can we make their female influences more central to TBZ?

All TBZ women are welcome to come to one or all sessions.

Remaining Winter/Spring Sessions:

with a Gabbi Debut on Shabbat on Feb 2

The Shulchan Aruch indicates: "One who reads [from the Torah] and erred - even in the accuracy of one letter - we return him/her [to the error.]" (Orach Chayyim 142:2)

Every Torah reader, (even the Chief Rabbis of Israel), is carefully monitored by two vigilant observers called gabbai'im.

Would you like to support Torah readers and become more involved in the Torah service by becoming a gabbai? For three Monday nights in January, join Reb Zisha (Scott Tepper) and learn:

- * How to ensure an accurate Torah reading.
- * The choreography of the Torah service and aliyot.
- * The roles of the gabbai rishon and gabbai sheni (primary and secondary).
- * How to call up aliyot (individuals, couples/families, groups).
- * Basic Mi she-Beirach blessings.
- * What the term gabbai meant originally and what it means now.

The goal: on February 2, 2013, you will contribute your gabbai skills at Shabbat services.

Being a gabbai is fulfilling in so many ways. You assist the smooth flow of the Torah Service, you help people get close to the Torah, you have a front-row position for b'nai mitzvah, you provide support for new readers, and you are often one of the first to wish someone "Yasher ko'ach!" TBZ Teachers Receive Teaching and Technology Fellowship

Mazal Tov to Beit Rabban Teachers David Winship and Micah Shapiro, recent recipients of CJP's Teaching and Technology Grant. David and Micah, along with Suzie, will be attending CJP's Teaching and Technology Training Program, an intensive three month program that will train them in state of the art education technologies. After they complete the program, TBZ will receive a projector and netbook that will be used to bring these new technologies to all the classrooms.

This is a welcome and needed boost to the Beit Rabban program. New technological skills and resources will enable our teachers to integrate modes of learning and creativity that will help all students grow and feel successful.

And the benefits of this fellowship do not stop at Beit Rabban. These new resources will be available for all Mishpachot programming, encouraging us to think outside the box and continue to create innovative programming for all ages, all year long.

Mitzvah Day at Family Table January 6, 2013

1430 Main Street, Waltham, MA 02451

JF&CS Family Table, the largest kosher food pantry in New England, provides healthy food on a monthly and emergency basis to individuals and families in need. Their mission is to alleviate hunger in a way that meets nutritional and spiritual needs.

The number of people they serve has doubled in the past several years as a result of the recession, and they are presently serving almost 650 individuals every month. Last year, they provided more than 17,000 bags of groceries.

On January 6 TBZ members will gather at JF&CS for the TBZ Mitzvah Day. First we will learn about Family Table and participate in a teaching about tzedakah and tikkun olam and pack bags for families in need.

Here is our schedule for the day:

10:30 am - Shmoozing and breakfast

10:45 am - Family Learning: Tikkun Olam and Family Table

11:15 am - Preparing food packages

12:00 pm - Deliver food to families in your neighborhood

TBZ Mitzvah Day is a great opportunity for all of us to learn about social justice from a Jewish perspective, and also see how a great justice organization functions from top to bottom. We will spend Mitzvah day helping many in the Boston area with too little to eat, and inspire our ongoing commitment to tikkun olam and bringing justice to the world.

RSVP is required (limited to 30 families):

TBZ Introduces a Teen Girl's Rosh Hodesh Group

TBZ's Girls' Rosh Hodesh program will explore many different issues teenaged girls face today, while drawing upon a rich background of Jewish tradition. We will engage in critical thinking regarding social networking sites, pop culture, bullying, and more. We will discuss our identities and take personality quizzes.

This is an intentionally non-denominational group. The TBZ Girls' Rosh Hodesh program will not push any girl towards a particular practice or observance; rather, the program will engage our girls in critical thinking so they can make their own decisions.

The group will have a very social focus. We will begin and end with a simple candle lighting ritual where the girls will be encouraged to share their feelings and hopefully there will be lots of laughter and friendship.

The group will meet monthly on Sunday evening from 6:30 - 8:00 pm on a date close to Rosh Hodesh. We will either meet at TBZ or at the home of one of the girls in the group.

This pilot group is open to 8th and 9th grade girls from TBZ and their 8th and 9th grade friends.

Dates:

Introductory Session for girls and their parents:

- Sunday, January 27 from 6:30 - 8:00

Remaining Girls' Group Sessions for 2013 (teens only):

- Sunday, February 10 from 6:30 - 8:00
- Sunday, March 10 from 6:30 - 8:00
- Sunday, April 7 from 6:30 - 8:00
- Sunday, May 5 from 6:30 - 8:00

At the introductory session, girls and their parents will have a light supper together while Rav Claudia and Jojo Jacobson briefly introduce the program. Then the girls will meet with Jojo for an introductory girls' group session, and Rav Claudia will lead parents in an adult teaching session, and answer parent questions about the program.

JoJo is excited to be working with TBZ's brand new girls' Rosh Hodesh program. She currently teaches English at Roxbury Community College, and has worked at BBYO's international Kallah program as their writing specialist, helping teens express themselves through creative writing. She lives in Jamaica Plain with her partner Suzie Schwartz.

5th Annual TBZ Community Retreat

April 26-28, 2013

Check out the New Location!

You are all are invited to participate in our 5th Annual Community Retreat. Every year, with your help and feedback, we learn what needs to change, and what needs to just stay the same.

This year our retreat will be held at the beautiful Camp Burgess & Hayward (<http://campburgessandhayward.com/>) on the Cape in Sandwich, MA. Our wonderful services, delicious meals, fantastic programming and amazing community building will have a beautiful backdrop of trees, lake and sky.

We will take advantage of all Camp Burgess & Hayward has to offer. We will pray by a lake, spend time together in nature, and enjoy special programming for adults and children of all ages. On Sunday, depending on interest, there will be opportunities for a pick-up soft ball game, ultimate frisbee, fly on a zip-line, utilize a high ropes course and learn how to shoot a bow and arrow with an archery specialist. It will be an amazing time for everyone and a great chance to connect deeply with our TBZ community.

Another change from last year is that Camp Burgess and Hayward is larger than our previous retreat location, however it does not have private rooms and bathrooms. This is both a challenge and an opportunity. Retreat attendees will be sharing larger cabins (2-4 units in a cabin, depending upon family size) yet because there are many cabins, you will have plenty of room. You may request the people you want to room with, you can ask to be close to meals and activities, and we will do our best to organize the housing based upon your needs and demographics. We will try to have families with young children housed close together, and families with older children and adults coming without children to have their own area. The camp is beautiful and comfortable and we are certain that the beauty of waking up in the woods with plenty of space to explore and play will outweigh any discomfort.

However, if this is not for you—don't worry! We encourage you to get a hotel in the area or simply come for the day—the camp is only an hour away and there are many great places to stay on the cape.

And if this isn't enough to get you to join in, this year's retreat falls over L'ag B'Omer - the 33rd day of the omer, the period we count between the festivals of Pesach and Shavuot. Though the omer is usually a somber time in the Jewish calendar, l'ag b'omer is one of the most festive moments in our calendar. In Israel, people celebrate with picnics and bonfires and we will do the same. Prepare for campfires, singing and smores galores.

Registration for the retreat is now open—please visit www.tinyurl.com/TBZRetreat2013 and sign up today! Contact Suzie Schwartz at beitrabban@tbzbrookline.org if you have any questions.
