Message from the Rabbi

People have told me that my Yom Kippur morning sermon provoked some heated discussion. I pictured a trial on high with each of us defending our own Jewish life. This imagined scene made a number of listeners reflect upon their personal definition of what it means to be a "successful" Jew. First and foremost came this simple question: Are we required to lead balanced Jewish lives even though we have specific areas of interest and zones of comfort? What if we give a substantial sum of money to the Temple? Shouldn't this let us out of having to attend services or attend the many study opportunities at CDT? What if we are devoted service goers?

Shouldn't this let us off the hook when it comes to social action? What if we are regulars at Torah study? Shouldn't this give us a free pass when it comes to praying - and especially if we "get nothing out of going to services?"

The Greeks defined a balanced Greek life as striving for a "healthy body / healthy mind." And so they went to the gymnasia and studied philosophy. We Jews have another definition of leading a balanced life. In the Talmud we read: "The world is sustained by three things: by Torah, by Worship and by acts of Loving-kindness." (Pirkei Avot 1.1) In other words we are to reach our full potential in the sphere of the intellect, the spiritual world and realm of morality. That's how a successful Jewish life is defined.

We see these values reflected in the architecture of our building. The synagogue is created to be a house of study, a house of prayer and house of meeting. So we have our school wing, our sanctuary and our social hall. Our organizational structure reflects these values, as well. We have Education Committees (for children and for adults), a Ritual Committee and a Social Action Committee. These are the central concerns of Jewish living.

Can we divvy up these areas and as a community say we're covered? Let the givers give, the faithful pray, the lovers of discussion learn? Can't we rest comfortably knowing that as a community there are those who are active?

To be sure, all who participate in Jewish life are to be appreciated for carrying out their obligation as Jews to strengthen our community - and every time someone participates in any aspect of Jewish life we are made stronger. We are doing better than Jews who don't affiliate with a synagogue and who contribute nothing to any Jewish cause. But according to our tradition, leading a balanced Jewish life remains the goal for each of us personally. There is no free pass for becoming learned; remaining ignorant is not an option. And the requirement to thank God for our blessings is not fulfilled by appearing for prayer once or twice a year. And foolish we would sound were we to say: "I've performed my yearly good deed."

If our Jewish efforts have been solely devoted in one area of Jewish life, then it's time to expand to others. Our grade point average in this world is a composite and aggregated sum all our course work; so too, will our final grade be in the world to come – and will reflect all our Jewish decisions, efforts and actions. Yes, we are required to fulfill our potential in every area and the role of the synagogue is to offer multiple paths for leading a rich, fulfilling, meaningful and above all, balanced Jewish life.

L'shalom,

Rabbi Katz

On November 5, the place you should be to support the Temple is the Art Auction. Sign in now.

On November 6, the place you should be is Parsons Run at 10:00 a.m. to hear the Temple's guest speaker, Dr. Linda Bloomberg, of Columbia University, lecture and lead a discussion on "Pirkei Avot, Jewish Ethics."

On November 13, the place you should be is CDT at 1:30 p.m. to hear an Interfaith Panel for Peace encourage understanding and dialogue and draw from teachings of the world's religions.

Message from the President

November. Really, it's already November?????? The High Holy Days are past us, but let's not forget that we have just spent time asking for forgiveness. We also have a lot to be thankful for. In that spirit, I have a ton of people to thank. So many in our community worked tireless hours for months and months in preparation for our High Holy Days, from our Clergy to the Choir to the office and maintenance staff to our High Holy Days Committee, Co-Chaired by Jackie Berger and Nancy Mittler. I also want to thank those who came to CDT to help build our Sukkah (and also those who helped take it down). This year we started some new Dor Tamid traditions. The Shofar service at Rosh Hashanah was AWESOME! We also made the Sukkah available for our community to use. We had a number of families and friends enjoy time and food under the stars.

I want to thank in advance those who are planning our Art Auction on Saturday, November 5th and also those involved in our Interfaith Panel for Peace on Sunday, the 13th. I hope you can join us for both exciting events!!!

In the past few weeks, you should have received an email from the Engagement Committee which included a survey for participation in a new year of the Engagement Initiative. This program (known to many as the Moments program) has proven to be effective in matching congregants' interests to temple needs in order to increase overall engagement. Please take a few minutes to fill out the survey and consider donating Moments! The survey will be open until November 5th. If you did not receive a survey, please email moments@dortamid.com and we will forward one to you.

A quick update on the Rabbi Search initiative. The Committee, being led by Lisa Oxman and Mitch Skyer, has already had phone interviews with a number of great candidates. There are more scheduled as the process continues. Stay tuned...

As the cooler weather (hopefully) is upon us, we have a lot to be thankful for. I wanted to let you all know how thankful I am for all of you being part of such a special Community.

This is your CDT!

B'shalom,

ROB

Message from the Education Director

It was an absolutely beautiful month here at CDT. The month of Tishri; the month of so many Jewish holidays. The students started the month by getting to eat apples and honey and learning how to blow the shofar. They wished each other a Shanah Tovah (a happy New Year) and made beautiful New Year's cards for The Cohen home – a Jewish retirement home in Alpharetta.

Quickly we moved on to learn about the next holiday – Yom Kippur. We learned the importance of saying sorry and even more important – how to forgive. When Yom Kippur was over, the Rabbi immediately gave his blessing on the beginning of building the Sukkah.

We were so lucky to have so many parent volunteers come on Sunday morning to build us a Sukkah, and what a beautiful one it was. Toda! (Thank you!)

All the kids got to decorate the sukkah, sit in the sukkah and have a lesson inside as well. They even got to participate in a trivia game all about the holiday. The winning grade will be announced this Sunday right before Tefilah.

The Simchat Torah service was very special. It was even more special to all our new students who were consecrated that night. While I was standing on the Bima calling out the names of our students, I got emotional and I said to myself, "How lucky am I to be able to do this and be here with these kids and their families on this very important and special night". Every student received a certificate and a beautiful Torah with an elegant Torah cover hand made by our very own Bonnie Harvey. Thank you Bonnie – they came out amazing!

All the students stood together under the Tallit that was held up by the students' teachers and they all received a blessing from the Rabbi. It was a magical moment.

Make It A

DATE NIGHT

The CDT LIVE AUCTION Saturday, November 5th

Our First Big social event of the year will be Fun and Fundraising!!!

CDT has partnered with Marlin Art of New York to host a community-wide art auction here at CDT on November 5!

The Folks at Marlin Art will be coming to Johns Creek from New York and will be bringing art in all media and price ranges, (from $50 to ??) including art by Miro, Nieman, Agam, Tarkay and many more classic and contemporary artists. In fact, Marlin Art will accept specific artist requests from pre-registered participants. In addition, we will have original artwork hand crafted by our own Dor Tamid school children.

This is your chance to meet old friends and make new ones, perusing original art, serigraphs and prints, while nibbling on appetizers, desserts, and having fun. You can raise a glass or even better, a bidding paddle for art. This will be a perfect time to get art to decorate your house for holiday guests or parties, to buy a holiday gift for that someone special, or just purchase for yourself that special art piece that calls to you "BUY ME, BUY ME."

Our auction is open to the public so bring your friends and relatives - All are welcome! Admission is $20 per person or $36 per couple which includes appetizers and desserts. We will also have a cash bar with wine and beer.

Go to our CDT website, www.dortamid.org, to register.

Dan Arnold, LCSW, is the Director of Clinical Services at JF&CS. He graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a bachelor's degree in psychology and earned his Master of Social Work at the University of Maryland. He also completed a certificate program in advanced clinical supervision from Smith College School for Social Work, where he holds the rank of clinical instructor. Dan's clinical interests include working with children and teens, and their families. He has a specific focus on the issues of boys and men.

Q: Dan, I have a 13-year-old son and a 16-year-old daughter. What kinds of services does JF&CS offer and what are some of the benefits they might get from coming to you?

A: There are a number of ways we can help. Child & Adolescent Services offers a variety of programs and services for children and teens, as well as their parents, depending on what's going on in their lives. Is there a situation at home or school that is causing your daughter to feel worried, sad, angry or scared? Maybe your son is being bullied, having problems with a friend or is struggling in school. Or, is your family going through a difficult time? Kids, especially teens, often are uncomfortable talking to parents and teachers, and they can benefit from a safe space that is their own. Our clinicians specialize in providing this kind of environment, and we collaborate with both the kids and their families to find solutions.
