From the desk of Rich Cohen, B'nai Aviv President

As our calendar continues to flip through the summer months, an amazing amount of work is taking place at the synagogue. High Holy Days preparations are in full gear. Every corner of our facility is being freshened up to ensure the perfection of your spiritual experience. The Board, our Professionals and our various Committees are working together in overdrive to make sure that every detail is addressed to make everything flow smoothly and seamlessly for you and your families.

Our Hebrew School and Hebrew High are also ready for "Opening Day". They are preparing to welcome new and returning students and our new Director of Life Long Learning has jumped in with both feet to make certain that our children continue to get the educational skills they need to integrate as full participating members of our kehilah. We are building upon our past successes and look forward to a very successful year.

Our ECEC continues to grow in numbers and influence due to the amazing work of our professional team and our volunteers. Registrations for this year are ahead of last year and we fully expect to be reaching participation levels we have not seen in recent times. I encourage all of you to come and experience our ECEC Shabbat programs on Fridays at 9:15am. It will not only warm your hearts, but also renew your personal enthusiasm about the bright future of B'nai Aviv.

I would be remiss if I didn't mention the amazing success of our Youth programs. They consistently win awards for their achievements and provide an amazing place where our children socialize and prepare to confront the challenges they do and will face in our modern society. There is much excitement about the new program that includes children in grades K-2.

The work of our Long Range Planning process is continuing. Our survey and its results, which had good participation, is being evaluated by the Committee. The next phase is the financial planning process. Please keep up to date on our progress in our weekly ENUZ and in future columns in this publication.

There is so much more to be proud of at B'nai Aviv. We are a true success story among Conservative synagogues and we need to continue our commitment to each other. Our professionals cannot do this alone and need our support. Please make sure to thank them for what they do and offer to roll up your sleeves to assist in the design and execution of our new and existing programs.

I look forward to seeing you around the synagogue. Together we will ensure a bright and long future of B'nai Aviv. Remember, YOU Belong Here!

B'shalom,

Rich

A Message from Rich Cohen about Pathways to Leadership

It has often been said that there is no business like shul business. While we are constantly focused on your spiritual growth and fulfillment at B'nai Aviv, there is also a business side of running a synagogue.

What we do, how we do it, why we do it and should we continue to do it (a new set of 4 questions) are all important things that need to be answered. Our newest program will give you a behind the scenes view into the operations of our synagogue and provide you with insight about the challenges Conservative Jews face today and tomorrow.

We will provide you with leadership skills that can be used not only at B'nai Aviv, but in other parts of your life as well. Your road to leadership is a journey with both formal and informal training.

Please join us in our newest initiative to prepare you to be part of the next generation of our leaders...

From the desk of Liz Singer... Director of Life Long Learning

I am so excited to have found a home here at B'nai Aviv. I look forward to sharing my passion for Judaism, as well as learning and praying alongside all of you. Judaism has so many facets, and I see my position as pinpointing what makes each individual, child and adult, light up Jewishly. It might be students cooking alongside members of sisterhood, it may be hearing different voices share opinions and commentary on the texts, it might also be having a day of immersing oneself in learning about a holiday. There really is something within our culture that will reach everyone. I am looking forward to working with lay leaders to build diverse and inspiring programming.

In an effort to begin to address this, one of my first tasks is assessing the religious school and augmenting it with additional lessons and programming.

Some of the changes that will be implemented this year are the following:

- Learning goals will be established so there is more of a definitive separation between grades and subject matter.
- Religious schools spend a lot of time on Genesis and Exodus, and tend to ignore the remaining three books of the Torah. To address this, age-appropriate ways to teach the bible in its entirety will be introduced in the classroom.
- Hebrew will be separated by level, so that students who need enrichment, and students who need supplemental help, have that opportunity.
- Hebrew reading will be reinforced with games that teach students modern vocabulary.
- Students will be divided into upper and lower grades for communal prayer. It is in this environment that we will focus on the meaning of the prayer and explore it through relevant stories, discussions and activities.
- Mindfulness is a trendy term but it is something that Jews have been doing as part of the mussar movement for centuries. In the religious school environment this can be introduced through blessings, and focusing on a middah (value) of the month. Values are the most transferable skill that we can teach students. It is a subject that they are most likely to see the adults in their lives demonstrate, so why not highlight it in a Jewish context. This will include stories, conversations and an activities that demonstrate the highlighted value within the community.
- There will be a more holistic approach to the holidays; there is so much more to learn and too frequently we focus only on the story and customs that are most commonly practiced. What is the history of the holiday? Do they celebrate it differently in other countries? What are the laws of the holiday? And finally, what questions are answered by the commentaries that we aren't even thinking to ask?

My philosophy of religious education: how a student views their identity and Judaism as a whole, is largely grounded in their educational experiences. It seems simple. If children have a positive experience in religious school, and we do our job in ensuring they foster a love of learning, they will want to continue to be involved and affiliated through adulthood. This makes the role of the religious school even more profound because of the implications when the reverse happens. The relationship must be one of partnership between the home and the synagogue.

I look forward to working together and finding ways to create more meaningful Jewish moments for you and your family.

B'Shalom, Liz

Attention children and teens in K-12th grades.....

We are extremely excited to begin this coming youth year with many awesome activities and new programs. First, we are thrilled to offer a NEW program as part of our award winning Youth Department called "Devorim." This new Program is for children in Kindergarten through 2nd grades. We will be offering a series of activities, typically every other month. The full calendar will go out in the coming weeks so that parents can plan their weekends accordingly. We are very excited to begin this new addition and it will be led by our wonderful Camp staff members, Jordan Goldberg and Staci Hains. Watch your mail for more information.

On August 22nd, we will be holding our annual Youth Department Open House and Registration. We are expecting to see many new and familiar faces and look forward to seeing everyone back for tons of excitement. Chalutzim for children in 3rd-5th grades, Kadima for middle school tweens in 6th-8th grades, and USY for teens in 9th-12th grades.

Our youth groups at B'nai Aviv are extremely active and our kids are the most welcoming kids anywhere. We pride ourselves on offering the comfort of teens to simply be themselves and provide an atmosphere where they can make many new lifelong friends. Our teens are offered the opportunity to enhance their Judaism and have fun at the same time.

To begin the youth year, watch for information about our kick-off event for USY and Kadima, a Welcome Back Beach BBQ. Bring a new friend and your admission is FREE.
