

Inventory of Temple Sholom Archives

(this is now the most up-to-date inventory list S. Saltzman June 2, 2019)

History

Temple Sholom, a Reform Jewish Congregation, was founded in 1913 in Plainfield, New Jersey. The congregation originally leased a building on Grove Street in North Plainfield, and later built a Synagogue on Seventh Street in Plainfield. The building was expanded in 1961 and again 1979. In 2002, the congregation made a decision to sell the Plainfield building with the intention of moving to the Scotch Plains/Fanwood area, and in 2007 purchased property on Lake Avenue in Scotch Plains. In the meantime, the Temple leased space in the Fanwood Presbyterian Church and held religious school classes in Union Catholic High School. In 2010 the Scotch Plains Planning Board approved the site plan proposal for a new building.

Scope and Content of Collection

The items in the collection were assembled from a variety of sources, and are a work in progress. Some of the materials were kept in the Temple Sholom office or in a storage facility rented by the Temple during the transition from Plainfield to Scotch Plains. Others were donated by long-time Temple members, some descendants of Temple Sholom's founders. The contents include photographs of Temple events, event programs, invitations to events, official documents, clippings and ephemera. The dates of items in the collection range from those relating to the Temple founding in 1913 through the present, with the bulk of the materials from the 1950s to 2011. Some of the items listed here were also digitized and appear on the Temple Website. Not included in this list are other digitized items including two series of portraits of confirmation classes and Sisterhood presidents, which formerly hung in the Plainfield building; and additional items loaned and returned to their owners.
