President's Message — We are Certainly "Living Uncertainly"

Welcome to the end of summer – didn't that go fast? I am so looking forward to seeing friends, congregants, and visitors as we celebrate and daven together over the High Holidays. Of course, each new year brings new challenges and new innovations as we navigate everchanging public health conditions. Our hybrid approach this year offers something for everyone: safely masked, in-person services; Zoom participation; and livestreaming via our newly installed sanctuary cameras. We even have outdoor activities such as a communal Rosh Hashanah hike, outdoor Yom Kippur family program, and of course, our usual Tashlich fish-feeding fest at Smedley Park. A huge thank you to Missy, Rabbis Gerber and Miller, and our hardworking Pandemic Task Force for putting safety first and togetherness a very close second.

The High Holidays are a time of prayer but also a time of reflection. I have been a member of Ohev for decades, and in leadership for a good part of the past decade. I have learned many, many things, including how to run meetings (still working on that), inspire volunteerism (also that), communicate effectively, and read budgets. But my most important takeaway has been the confidence that Vicky and I chose the right place to raise our Jewish family. Just watching my fellow Board members and leaders exhibit flexibility, demonstrate the ability to listen and take the pulse of a situation before reacting, and simply show compassion and caring for our congregants, has been reassuring to say the least. Most of you know that Vicky and I have three boys, now young adults. In my opinion, their early experiences at Ohev have imbued strong Jewish identity and sense of inclusivity that they will take with them and pass on to their own families in perpetuity (kein ayin hara). For that I am grateful.

As Mispallelim religious school starts up this month, and as we look forward to some new initiatives designed for the benefit of our youngest members, we can expect to see a new flock of engaged, energetic kids "making stuff happen" at Ohev. With all the uncertainty that we are experiencing lately, I am fairly certain that this will energize us all.

Speaking of engaged, energetic people: I am also thrilled to announce our Congregational Awards winners for this year: Woman of the Year - Ann Grumet Littman, Man of the Year - Steve Reuben, and Meritorious Service winners Sheri Whelpley and Bud Berman. In their own way these folks have contributed ingredients to the "special sauce" of Ohev Shalom. Keep an eye out for any special events to celebrate these dedicated congregants!

Looking forward to seeing your half-faces in the pews and beyond!

*Shana Tova Tikatevu – Happy New Year,
Joel*

Rabbi's Message – Resilience Personified

Shanah Tovah - I wish you all a most happy and sweet start to the new Jewish year, 5782! At this year's High Holidays (which may have already begun, by the time you're reading this...), we will be revealing and dedicating a brand new document here in our congregation. Hopefully, you've all already heard at least *something* about this illuminated manuscript, which we're calling "Megillat Loštice: A Scroll of Resilience." I'm going to talk more about the scroll itself, and how it was created, during our holiday services, but for now I wanted to talk with you about one word in that title, namely "resilience."

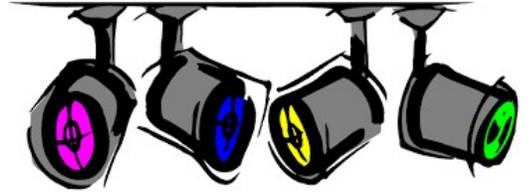

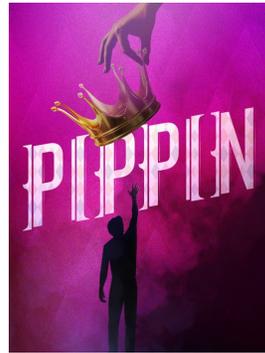

What does "resilience" mean to you? What do you imagine it means in the context of your own personal narrative, your family legends, our Jewish people's stories through the ages, what humanity (and our planet...) has been through in the last century, or perhaps something else? It is a very powerful and evocative word, no matter what associations you may ascribe to it. I imagine this word - and this theme - feels uniquely poignant for most of us right now, in relation to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Our lives are still dramatically affected by the coronavirus. It is also true that even when - please God - the threat of the virus has passed, many of the changes of the last two years will remain with us. Just as much of the 1920s has to be seen in the context of the 1918 Great Influenza (or Spanish Flu) and the Great Depression, the 2020s will almost certainly be viewed as having been heavily influenced by COVID-19. What will that mean? We don't yet know. And that is why I want to focus on the word "resilience."

This pandemic has been around for far too long already, and it isn't gone yet. But *we* are still here; our community, our country, and so many people around the globe working tirelessly to get through this. Our ultimate story hasn't been written yet. Was COVID an ominous sign of foreboding... or was it viewed by humanity as a wake-up call? We don't know yet... but we *can* have an impact. Resilience doesn't just mean survival; it connotes learning from hardship, and - incredibly - even growing stronger because of it. We are living through this right now... but what are we learning? What societal and environmental weaknesses have been revealed, and can potentially be addressed in new ways that we previously couldn't even imagine? How will we emerge stronger... all of us who inhabit the earth?

New beginnings always afford us an opportunity to look back on what came before, and to glimpse ahead to what might yet be. We have endured a lot, and we will face new challenges ahead. But we can still choose to grow and learn from this. We can be resilient. We've had to do it before - which is a central remembrance wrapped up in our new Megillah - and we will most surely do it again. And despite all we've been through, we *will* make this new year one of sweetness, love, and goodness... together. Truly a Shanah Tovah u'Metukah!

*Sincerely,
Rabbi Gerber*

Mispallelim

After a summer of deep reflection on a uniquely challenging (and sometimes uniquely meaningful) year, I am looking forward to the beginning of Mispallelim in the coming days and weeks. Some things will be different from last year, and from the years that came before it as well. It would be impossible (and, in many ways, undesirable) to come through such a crucible unchanged.

Some of these changes are sad ones - we, of course, lost a beloved cornerstone teacher with the passing of Karen Ernest (z"l) last Spring. This year, Pam Stone will be working with the 3rd graders and ushering them through the milestone of Kabbalat HaSiddur. While Karen's guidance can certainly not be replaced, the students will be in very good and experienced hands.

We are also combining some of the older classes - the 4th and 5th graders will learn together, as will the 6th and 7th graders. This will give the students a chance to have more robust class discussions, and will allow them the opportunity to spend more time and develop deeper relationships with our most capable and creative educators.

One exciting development is that we will have Amotz Kohlmeier, a rabbinic intern from the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College (my alma mater), joining the synagogue staff. He will be supporting our programming in a number of ways, and will present another rabbinic role model for our students. I am thrilled to see what he will bring to our learning community. I want to take this opportunity to thank the RRC, as well as Abe Wolf, a generous donor, for making this internship possible.

Lastly, we will be piloting a new element of the Hebrew School curriculum. It is based on a teaching from Pirkei Avot (the Ethics of the Ancestors):

The world stands on three things: on Torah (learning), on Avodah (prayer/spirituality) and Gemilut Chasadim (deeds of kindness)

As an educator, I spend a lot of time trying to drill down to the essentials of what it means to be Jewish and to be part of Jewish civilization. This short teaching has inspired me to focus on these three dimensions of Jewish life, and to create something called Yesodot-Foundations.

In the 3rd-7th grades, there will be two six-week periods in which students will be able to choose one of these three topics - Torah, Prayer/Spirituality, and Service - to delve into. During the last half-hour of class time on Sundays, they will join together across grade levels to explore whichever of the three is most compelling to them personally. They will explore these Foundations of Jewish life through debate, text study, art-making, music, and hands-on service to the community (among other things).

I am very much looking forward to seeing how these changes and adaptations shape our learning community, and, as always, I am eager for your insights, suggestions and feedback. Let's dive into this new year together and see where it takes us!

Bar Mitzvah of Braden Lent September 26, 2021

Braden Michael Lent is an 8th grader at Strath Haven Middle School. He is extremely excited and honored to become a Bar Mitzvah on Sunday, September 26, 2021. This has been an interesting and unique year, but Braden persevered and learned Torah. We are so proud of his efforts, and thankful for Rabbi Gerber and Rabbi Miller for meeting with him weekly through Zoom, and giving him the support he needed to accomplish this great feat!

Braden is an athlete and a bookworm. He plays basketball and tennis, has recently taken up golf, and enjoys watching all sports. He is also a math whiz, enjoys reading, and loves playing video games with his friends. Braden hopes one day to code and create his own games and work with computer technology as a career.

Braden also enjoys going to the beach with his family, spending time with his grandparents, and doing Tik Toks with his sister, Marin.

Although we have decided to have Braden's Bar Mitzvah virtually, we are excited to celebrate this beautiful milestone with friends and family, and honor Braden and all of his hard work and tenacity.

Meet Ohev's Newest Members

Congregation Ohev Shalom wishes a warm welcome to new members Julia and Ben Winter and their two children, Louise, who turned seven in August and Sam who is three. The Winter family relocated to Wallingford from their home in Louisville, Kentucky. The Winters were members of a synagogue in Louisville where Ben served on the board at various times in various roles as Secretary, Business Affairs Chair and as a member of the Investment Committee. In Louisville, Ben managed a large dental company of 80 employees. Julia earned her Post

Baccalaureate at the University of Pennsylvania and graduated with her DMD from the University of Louisville Dental School. Ben now manages Julia's new dental practice, Kite and Key located in Folsom, PA.

Julia and Ben met in New York. They both lived in Philadelphia at various times. Ben's parents will soon be relocating to Philadelphia from Westchester County, New York.

Ben, Julia, Louise, and Sam are looking forward to meeting other younger families. Sam attends Kehillah. Louise will attend first grade at Nether Providence Elementary school and Ohev Shalom Mispalleim Religious School beginning in the Fall.

FUSE News

Autumn always brings a feeling of newness. Schools get back in session, the High Holidays arrive, and the weather begins to change. Did you know, FUSE held our first "World Café" in the fall of 2015. Many of us reflect on our pasts, and plan the future during this season, and that is exactly what FUSE is doing this year.

Addressing the very real challenges of creating opportunities for personal connections during a pandemic, FUSE, just like our synagogue did, morphed our efforts into a virtual model. We held ZOOM meetings for the Steering Committee and offered a few Community Courageous Conversations during 2020/2021, but our goals of developing connections and building new friendships was truly limited.

In the winter of 2021, FUSE held "listening sessions" where our members were asked to provide input guiding the future vision for FUSE. Responding to that feedback, FUSE will continue to hold Community Conversations via ZOOM, and someday back in person. Additionally, we will build an infrastructure for this organization to achieve the core values of "Expanding the Fences and Connecting with our Neighbors." That internal design work has now begun.

FUSE's first quarterly Community Conversations will be held on Monday, October 11th focusing on Voting Rights. We hope to help inspire increased voter registration in Chester and learn more about supporting an engaged electorate. Look for more information on this and other FUSE events in the weekly announcements.

As always, FUSE is grateful for the ongoing financial support from the Netzach Fund, as well as from our Ohev members.

For more information or to become more involved, please reach out to Bonnie Breit or Rabbi Gerber at fuse@ohev.net.

Library News

We have lots of new books to share with you! Some highlights this month: Ohev's One Book, One Shul featured title The Color of Love by Marra Gad is here. For those of you who were fans of the All-of-a-Kind Family books, we have a biography of author Sydney Taylor. Her impact on Jewish children's literature was so strong that the Association of Jewish Libraries has an award named in her honor. For Gabriel Allon fans, we have Daniel Silva's latest book, The Cellist. If you enjoyed Helene Wecker's The Golem & the Jinni, her new book, The Hidden Palace, continues the story. I'm currently reading the novel The Lost Shtetl by Max Gross, about a Jewish community so secluded that no one knew they were there, and so cut off from the rest of the world that they didn't know the Holocaust had occurred (or that cell phones existed for that matter). In the children's section, there's a lovely biography of violinist Itzhak Perlman.

Stop by and check one out (and make sure to return it when you're done)!
