It has been said that Thanksgiving is the most “Jewish” of the secular holidays our country celebrates. And with good reason, as the themes of Thanksgiving, including gratitude, family togetherness, freedom, peace, hospitality, generosity, and, of course, delicious food, are intrinsic to Judaism. Substitute a brisket for a turkey, latkes for the sweet potato pie, and it could be any number of Jewish festivals.

There are scholars who posit that Thanksgiving does indeed have Jewish origins. For, in American folklore, the creation of Thanksgiving falls at the feet of the Pilgrims, a group of Puritans fleeing persecution. It is hypothesized that this group of devout Christians looked to the Bible for inspiration in the creation of a feast of gratitude. And what did they find? The festival of Sukkot, during which the Israelites gave thanks for the bounty of the harvest, the gifts of the land. According to this theory, Thanksgiving is nothing more than the “American Sukkot!”

Another Jewish connection to this holiday is the preponderance of rituals which run through our celebration. Like every good Jewish holiday, Thanksgiving consists of many distinct rituals, oftentimes unique to each family. We all have our “Thanksgiving rituals,” in which we partake during our festival of gratitude and peace. Some relate to where we enjoy our festive meal and what we watch on the TV – gotta watch the Lions and Cowboys on Thanksgiving!

But, funnily enough, if we think about it, many of these rituals have a Jewish tint. We gather together with our family and friends. Is there anything more Jewish than joining together with our loved ones to celebrate a significant occasion? Or how about going around the table to say one thing for which we are grateful? A very Jewish idea as well. We enjoy special foods we do not eat during the year. Just like we normally don’t eat hamantaschen except for Purim, or matza except for Passover, we don’t usually make a habit of eating cranberry sauce or sweet potato/pumpkin pie during the summer.

With that in mind, before digging into your turkey and green bean casserole, I humbly suggest adding three rituals to your Thanksgiving meal. A Jewish expression of gratitude for the bounty God provides for us to enjoy is most appropriate on this day of thanks. Extra credit if you include birkat ha-mazon after you finish eating!

2. Recite the shecheyanu, the blessing we say upon reaching significant and meaningful moments in our lives. A beautiful gathering, filled with family, friends, and delicious food is certainly worthy of such a blessing. Celebrate the blessing of family by blessing your children, your parents, according to the words of our tradition.

3. Finally, in addition to going around the table and mentioning the blessings in our lives for which we are grateful, tell the story of your parents, grandparents who, like the Pilgrims and like our Jewish ancestors, left their homes searching for something better. Speak of how they came to this country seeking freedom from oppression, opportunities to live in peace and prosperity, to pursue the American dream. In this way, we recall the many blessings America has provided for us and hopefully, compels us to ensure that everyone who desires to share in the American dream is afforded the same opportunity our ancestors had when they came to our great nation.

Happy Thanksgiving – Chag Hodahyah Sameach!
How do we measure success after BB?

The next few months, we will be working on how to grow and maintain our congregation into the future when Barbara Bloom retires. Sounds a little daunting, but as a congregation we have to start preparing ourselves and adjusting our staff to fill that void we all will be feeling when Barbara is reducing her hours. Barbara has been the face and backbone of our staff for so long, many of us have a hard time imagining the TBI office without her. Thanks to her great sense of humor and incredible work ethic we all will be missing her, especially the Board and other staff members. So I would like to propose a way we all can help our staff acclimate to this new situation.

#1) Remember patience is a virtue! Angela, Carl, Laura, Dani and Rabbi will be adjusting and we need to expect a little lag time for our needs to be met. I can guarantee they all will do their very best to make that time short. #2) Things in life are constantly changing and Temple B’nai Israel is no different. Just look at our last year alone! It will feel a little different, so we will have to do our best to welcome and support each other and the stranger, so we can keep the beauty of our congregation passing along to the next generation. #3) Barbara is not moving out of town and she will be part of our congregation for years to come, if she doesn’t become really famous from one of the many books she plans to write and then have to move to NYC, or something crazy like that, for the talk show circuit. If this happens, we have a great speaker series guest and she may not charge us too much;)

Casino Night is upon us and I hope we sell out admission to this really fun and important fundraiser. Get your raffle tickets for a chance for 2 adults to stay in Paris or Rome or Vienna or Prague for 5 days in a luxury hotel plus 2 tours or choose $1800 in cash.

Join me and the whole TBI congregation on December 20th for Rabbi Lobel’s Installation and Hanukkah Celebration. It will be a wonderful way to formally install our new Rabbi and make him feel a true part of the TBI Congregational Family!

January 11th is Trivia Night and it is so much fun. Please sign up and bring friends. It is a great time and I just happen to be one of the defending champions, with no thanks to me. I hope I get on a good team this year!

Looking forward to seeing everyone soon!
12 years and 57 lbs ago, I heeded the call to come and help my Temple. Most of you know the story, that I promised Bruce Levine (my brother-in-law) and the President at the time that I would help for 4-6 weeks. As they say, the rest is history. This is not my farewell address, only the last time I address you during Rosh Hashanah as an employee with words of wisdom.

So the story begins, with the fact that I had no idea that I possessed the skills to keep this place humming, helping with the staff, holding up the walls during some challenges, and working tirelessly and together with the leadership, all while meeting and fulfilling the needs of all of you, our congregation.

I had NO idea that I would be standing here 12 years later speaking to you about something very important to me and my core. I had no idea that I would have the opportunity one day to tie all my efforts together into a cause that I know one day could be the greatest gift I can leave my Temple.

But here’s what I did know. I only knew that 12 years ago, that this was Temple, this was the place that my friends and family came for a connection to Judaism during good times, hard times and holidays. Most importantly that this was the place where our 5 children came to Sunday School and Hebrew School on Tuesday, every week without ever one complaint. Or at least I can’t remember hearing them now.

I only knew that for those few hours a week our children got an infusion of Judaism that not only combatted the “Christian Fellowship” time that was bombarding them in our local public schools, but in those few hours a week, it gave each of them the feeling of belonging to something much bigger and something very beautiful. I know that their time here has cemented their Jewishness, with each of them helping at Sunday School and each playing a role in Bifty, our youth group, each going on the March of the Living and Birthright.

Present day, Sonia is the Director of Youth and Family Programming at the Springfield Mass. Jewish Community Center. Simone in Seattle and Zachary in Asheville have moved far from home and sought out local synagogues to meet their needs. Micah can be seen running around crazy at the Jewish Food Festival working so hard, always willing to help but more importantly, loving his time in this sanctuary, and the feeling of wholeness he gets sitting in this space (thank you for carrying Torah this morning) and the oldest, Jessica, well she’s doing her part as a congregant, playing a role on committees but most importantly gave Bob and I our two beautiful grandsons who will be Bar Mitzvah on this bimah someday, god willing.

That’s what I know. So, I accepted the calling, because at the time Temple B’nai Israel needed me. There’s lots of stories (perhaps a book will be written someday about it all.) Now, I’m not asking any of you to leave your jobs, abandon your children, get your husband to fend for himself often, gain 57 lbs and come work here like I did. However, what I am going to ask you, is as significant and important as the things I have done and accomplished in my

FROM THE DIRECTOR OF MEMBERSHIP ENGAGEMENT by Barbara Bloom

I had NO idea that I would be standing here 12 years later speaking to you about something very important to me and my core. I had no idea that I would have the opportunity one day to tie all my efforts together into a cause that I know one day could be the greatest gift I can leave my Temple.
12 years. I’m asking you to make sure that Temple B’nai Israel lives on despite all the challenges and changes in our crazy world.

I’m asking you to join Bob and I and the 17 other families listed in your worship supplement this morning, who have already committed granting the Temple something in an afterlife gift. As important as leaving something to your heirs, even a small % left to our Jewish community can be very significant. None of us know what we will have left when that time comes, none of us know when that time will come! We all should realize especially after this past year, that sometimes that time just creeps right up when you aren’t looking or prepared.

So signing a letter of commitment, it’s in your supplement this morning, leaving $10 or a million dollars, leaving 1% or 100% of what may remain when that time comes, can make all the difference 20-30 years from now when life will be very different from how we know it today.

For 12 years, 12 long years, I have helped sustain this place for my children and their children, and your children and your children’s children and you! Help me bring this, “Our Temple family”, into the future. Help me ensure that Temple B’nai Israel will continue to bloom and thrive for all of us for a long time.

I leave you with a story.

Sometime in early August a year ago, my daily communication via text with Rabbi Treiser stopped abruptly. My last text to him said something about I’m starting to think things are not good and if you don’t want me to worry, you need to communicate with me, I was clear how worried I was about him. He called a few days later during our staff meeting, Angela put him on speaker phone, and he asked is Barbara in the room. “Yup I’m here”. And he said, the following words to us in response to my worried text, words Laura, Dani, Angela and I will always hear as his parting words, his parting philosophy….

He said… You know…. EVERYTHING IS GOING TO BE O.K.!

It will be O.K. However, I need your help to make sure it stays O.K. and fulfill his last words to us, and with your help, His Legacy, Rabbi Lobel’s legacy and this place we call our spiritual home will exist for many generations to come. If we all do our part…. It will be O.K.

This I Believe!

On Sunday, Temple B’nai Israel IS the place to learn what life is all about. The enthusiasm in the air, the giggles coming out of the classrooms and the singing happening in the hallways, reminds me that Judaism is alive and thriving. For years and years, we (parents) have dropped our kids off at Temple on Sunday mornings. It’s a great time to go grocery shopping, have brunch with our significant other, etc. As the Director of Education, I get the unique honor of hearing your children and teens struggle with the concept of God, of mitzvot and with everyday values. I know that as a parent, I struggle often during the Holiday times with getting caught up in the hype of American/Secular holidays and staying true to my Jewish roots. This holiday season, I encourage you to let your children teach you about what’s important to them, what makes them happy. Instead of the newest video game or electronic device, what family activity would they love to participate in? What would make them giggle? Sing? Stop and take note of what they are trying to teach you about life!

We’re keeping our Purimspiel theme under wraps
But it’s that time again,
so please dust off your taps,
Your costumes,
your paint brushes,
come one and all!
But wait, you may say,
Purimspiel? It’s still fall!
This year we’ll perform on March 7 and 8
So we’d best start preparing,
there’s no time to wait!
We’ll start in December and take to the stage
You can all join the spielers,
no matter your age!
Do you sing? Do you dance?
Do you paint? Do you sew?
Don’t be shy, Purimspielers say,
Come on, let’s go!
Just a few weeks ago our sanctuary reverberated with the sounds of the new year: the voices of our choir, Kol Rina; the voices of our congregation lifted in song and prayer; the voices of our choir, Kol Rina, singing for the High Holy Days; the voices of our youngest school children leading us in song and prayer during our Consecration and Kabbalat HaSiddur service. Each year since my arrival at TBI I have been so proud to witness the musical growth of our adult choir. This year, for the first time, they sang a piece with me at the beginning our Kol Nidre service. I want to thank all the members of Kol Rina for their dedication to music at Temple B’nai Israel and for the time and effort that they devote to enriching our services with song. I also wish to thank Don Rolander for all of his work year round and for the special attention he gives to our High Holy Day services. I am deeply grateful for the talents of Doniyor Zuparov, the cellist who has played during our Kol Nidre service for four of the past five High Holy Day seasons, and for the treat we had this year as his wife, Shekhina Zuparova, accompanied him in their beautiful rendition of the Bruch Kol Nidre.

The arts at TBI are thriving and I’m excited to announce some new opportunities to stretch your artistic inclinations, whether it’s singing, dancing, painting, costume design, singing solo or in a chorus. Kol Rina choir is seeking new members in all sections as we continue our growth as an ensemble. Do you love to sing? Come and join us at TBI on Wednesdays at 7:30pm.

Our preparations for Purimspiel 2020 will kick off in early January, while the scenery crew will be getting a jump on their work in December. Please contact me if you are interested in being a part of our fabulous spiel. If you are interested in other theatrical endeavors, our weekly Readers’ Theater group continues to meet on Wednesdays at 6:00pm for forays into a range of plays with Jewish connections in authorship, subject matter, or both.

For many cantors and synagogue music directors, forming a youth choir is a challenge. Our children have so many activities and demands on their time. And yet, I know we have many young people in our religious school and youth programs who love to sing. To acknowledge the limits on students’ and parents’ time, and to also bring our children into a very special service this coming December, I will be inviting our students in all grades to participate in a special short-term youth choir experience leading to their participation in our Shabbat Chanukah service and Rabbi Loebel’s installation. You will be hearing more from me about this as I contact families through our emails and religious school communications. There will also be an opportunity for adults who do not have the time for weekly choir rehearsals to also be involved in this very special event.

If you are interested in any of these artistic endeavors, please contact me by email or call the Temple office.

Wishing you a year filled with blessings and song,
Laura

We will look at the stunning and challenging words of Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, just to name a few. We will examine their life story, the symbolism behind their fiery words, and how their message impacts us today. If you’ve never studied this section of the Bible, this is an exciting opportunity to discover a unique period of our history. Bibles are provided in class for reading, but you are welcome to bring your own.

The second trimester, “Towards a Personal Theology,” will examine different Jewish understandings of God from rabbis and teachers from the time of the Bible to today. By the end of this class, we hope to be able to put into words our own beliefs about God. Our last unit will focus on preparing for the Adult B’nai Mitzvah service, to be held Friday night, May 29, 2020, during the festival of Shavuot. The first two units are open to everyone, while the final unit is reserved for students planning on becoming B’nai mitzvah. This is the next class in the series that started last year “In the Beginning”.

If you missed Humanity vs Eve, with Katie Blaxberg, Barbara Bloom, Leah Conway, Judge Raymond Gross, Joe Schwartz, Joan Vecchioli and Andy Salzman, you missed an outstanding theater performance. Bravo to all, especially Joan and Andy who created the play. They must take it further because their unique spin on a story as old as time was just that good!

Cantorial Soloist Laura Berkson, a master creator of Purim Spiels, is conducting a play-reading group exploring Jewish playwrights that is entertaining and educational, too. Everyone is welcome, call Laura for scheduling.

Our SAGES Theater group is looking for help from individuals, male and female, to be part of a focus group performing staged readings that will help finalize our new public service play on scams targeting seniors. I’m hoping for an available Sunday afternoon at temple, but prior to booking a date, I need to know if enough congregants would like to participate. Millions of dollars are scammed each year and, according to the Federal Trade Commission, are now ending up in the coffers of organized crime and terrorist organizations in addition to just plain thieves. It is easier than their ordinary methods of financing because the victims, vulnerable Americans, simply give their money up.

We sincerely appreciate the temple allowing us space to rehearse our public service plays. The focus group and staged readings will prepare the play for a preview performance in the temple social hall in the Spring.

If you enjoy theater and want to participate in some way in a “Play with Purpose,” either this new play, Phone E Baloney or our award-winning fall prevention awareness play, Denying Gravity, please contact me and thank you for reading this article!

The email from Carl came reminding me that the WTBI Sisterhood article for our TBI Bulletin was due. I pondered on what message I wanted to share with our members. I had wanted to be able to report on the events that so far had been held and how well the events were attended, however, I have to say I was stumped, no probably more embarrassed. You may ask WHY?

As the President of WTBI Sisterhood, I really had to look at the fact that our membership is at an all-time low and the activities that had been planned for our WTBI Sisterhood had not happened as yet.

Feeling disappointed with myself, I reached out and just had to talk it through with some of my WTBI colleagues and they, in their wisdom, reminded me that I do not have to make everything happen by myself. That was my AH HA moment came when I realized how really selfish I have been. Selfish in thinking I could do most everything by myself, therefore, not allowing, not inviting others, to be involved and part of making things happen.

For many people, there is something a lot harder than doing a favor, or a chesed. That is accepting a favor. In Judaism, we are told about the importance of chesed – of putting oneself out for others. It says in Psalms 89:3 that “the world is built on chesed” and that is true, however, there is another side to chesed and that is at least as important yet much harder to perform and that is facing up to the fact that sometimes we need favors and we need to ask for help.

Your WTBI Sisterhood Board and I meet, make plans, get excited and then…we find the same people doing the work over and over. I know this is common elsewhere, however for TBI and WTBI Sisterhood we need...

Okay now, on behalf of WTBI Sisterhood, I am officially reaching out and asking for help. We need our women to join our Sisterhood and participate. Through membership dues we are able to do many things for our Temple family. We buy gifts for the B’nai Mitzvah children, buy the gifts for the Chanukah Bazaar, where our Religious School children can buy gifts for their family and friends, the apples and honey on Rosh Hashanah, send current and future leaders to trainings and more. Our fundraisers in the past have allowed us to donate monies to remodel the Makom, have our yearly Scholarship for our girls and women and put new flooring in the APR. WTBI Sisterhood wants to have monies in their coffers, if and when monies are needed for TBI, JFF, and other major activities like Casino Night or Trivia Night.

Yes, we need that financial support, but we need women to step forward and offer time and energies to work on special events. It could be our Purim Shalach manot project, planning our “It’s Not Easy Being in Green” event in the spring, celebrating Earth Day, and any other gatherings that provide opportunity for our women to get together.

The human race is interdependent and it is meant to be. No one person can do everything by herself or himself, nor should she or he. We, probably, can always do a little more chesed but it may be as important that we all could use encouragement in asking for a favor when one is needed.

Shalom,
Sandi Sunter, President
