Issue No. 170

I normally don't use the Scribe for medical updates, but since I sent an email a few weeks ago asking you to help Brad Schmidt and his family, I felt compelled to do so, especially since I have good news to share. The day I sent the email, it was not clear if Brad would make it. But then, his condition improved and eventually he was able to return home. After sixty days in the hospital, thirty of them in an induced coma, Brad's recovery is expectedly slow. Having therapy is one thing, but finding the patience to rest a lot and to progress in a slow pace is another challenge.

Brad didn't know of our appeal to the community for help since he was unconscious at the time. When he learned about it later on he was overwhelmed with joy and relief. More than anything, he said to me, was the feeling that he was not alone, that people he never met truly cared about him and were willing to help. You should be very proud to know that members of Temple Beth Am donated more than $10,000, offered help in many other ways and did not stop praying.

While almost everyone recognizes the benefit of good medical care and communal support of an ill person, the effect of prayers on healing is more controversial. Yet, in recent years, scientists have been confirming in hundreds of studies the significant power that prayers have on healing. Separate studies conducted at Duke, Dartmouth, and Yale universities show that people who pray:

- Tend to get sick less often.
- Hospitalized people who never attended church have an average stay of three times longer than people who attended regularly.
- Heart patients were 14 times more likely to die following surgery if they did not participate in a religion.
- Elderly people who never or rarely attended church had a stroke rate double that of people who attended regularly.
- In Israel, religious people had a 40% lower death rate from cardiovascular disease and cancer than non-religious people.

It seems like there is little doubt that people who pray for themselves benefit from doing so. But what about our practice of the Mi Shebeirach, a healing prayer in which we pray not for ourselves but for others? Does it have any effect?

As I learned from Brad and many others who have been ill for prolonged periods of time - it definitely helps. I am not sure how exactly it works. That's when faith comes into the picture. What I do know is that knowing people care, having people constantly think about you and wishing that you will get better, strengthen your spirit. And when your spirit is strong, your emotions are intact and your overall attitude is optimistic.

B'Shalom,
Rabbi Alon Levkovitz

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Hal Baseman

Dear Temple Beth Am Community:

Personal travel update: Nothing bizarre happened to me during my travels (up to this point) this month. Federal and international transportation authorities are looking into this unusual situation and hope to issue a report soon. Hopefully, it will contain something ridiculous that I can write about in May.

Temple update: We are three quarters of the way through the fiscal year. So far it's been a pretty uneventful year. Well, aside from initiating a new strategic plan and Kulanu effort fundamentally changing the way the Temple does "business", creation of a new approach to our musical offering and Bar/Bat Mitzvah training, implementation of an innovative Skype Religious School curriculum, planning for facility improvement and expansion, the first true voluntary (dues) financial commitment program in the county, and the successful branding program for The One School preschool.

All of these efforts have been implemented to make our synagogue an actively inclusive Jewish community. We have worked to attract new members, keep existing members, engage all members, increase our volunteer base, create an optimum physical environment for meeting challenges in the future, and select programs that best serve the congregation.

The Board Executive Committee has been meeting to help design an organization more suitable to this new paradigm. This is not to say that our existing organization was not good. In fact, it is good. However, we recognize that some changes can make it better matched to what we see as our level of operation in the future. To that end, an overall plan has been developed to focus staff responsibilities and volunteer efforts on programming, engagement, and membership needs of the congregation.

The result is a reorganization, which includes the elimination of the position of Executive Director. As a consequence, Carol Safran's employment with the synagogue ended last month. I want to take this opportunity to thank Carol Safran for her service to Temple Beth Am. For three and half years, Carol has been our Executive Director, helping to plan and coordinate the behind the scenes work at the Temple. Carol has been nothing but professional and gracious in response to this decision, maintaining a good relationship moving forward. I am certain you will join me in wishing Carol only the best in all of her future endeavors. Thank you again, Carol.

Board update: At the March 24th BoD meeting, the 2014-2015 Temple budget was presented and approved. The 2014 Nominating Committee report for Directors and Officers was discussed and approved. Both will be sent out later this month for Congregational review. The Director's slate for 2014-2016 will then be voted on by the congregation at the June 1st Annual meeting. Other matters discussed at the meeting included discussion on landscaping, well installation, financial performance, and staff and volunteer organizational matters.

One last note: Director Howard Freedland has announced his intention to step down from the BoD this month. Howard has been a very active member for seven and a half years, making him the most senior Director. I want to thank Howard, who has been a good friend to me, the Temple Beth Am Board, and our congregation during his time on the BoD. The good news is that he assures me that he will continue his tireless work for the Temple. To fill Howard's position, the BoD approved the appointment of Ellen Vargas at its March meeting. Welcome to the BoD, Ellen.

That's it for now. As always, if you have any questions, please contact me at halbaseman@comcast.net or (561) 676-3940.

B'Shalom,
Hal

MEN'S CLUB

Jerry Holinstat & Harvey Silverman, Co-Presidents

Well we certainly had a strange experience at last week's Men's Club Meeting. It was scheduled to take place as usual at the Square Grouper. Fortunately we watched the weather reports (which called for light rain showers) and made an afternoon decision to move our meeting to Carmine's Restaurant on Military Trail. So we thought we had found a location of shelter and safety to hold our meeting.

So guess again. Our light rain shower turned out to produce seven (7) inches of a torrential downpour. The rain seeped into the restaurant's enclosed patio. Our feet were soaked and resulted in one of our members being unable to reach his home. Fortunately David Elias welcomed him into his home for the night. I suppose that Rabbi Alon (who was present) and Noah now have floods in common. We laughed a lot and made the best of the circumstances. What an experience!

Our congratulations to Heather Weisbrod, Temple Beth Am's Youth Director, on her successful task of coordinating the wonderful Purim Carnival on Sunday, March 9th. As well, I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all of the Men's Club Members for their hard work in purchasing, cooking, Bar-B-Qing and serving all of the food at the Purim Carnival. One day I mentioned to John Marzina that it would be fun to have NYC Hot Dog carts. John couldn't find any so he made his own. John, the compliments that we received were outstanding!

Thank you to: John Marzina, David & Mary Elias, Len Zysman, Rich Remick and Charlie Levy.

The next Men's Club Meeting will be on Wednesday, April 2nd at 6:30pm at the Square Grouper, weather permitting.

Warmest regards,
Jerry & Harvey

BOOK CLUB

Carole Meshil

The last meeting for this season will take place on May 5th, 10:30am at Temple Beth Am. We will be discussing The Jerusalem Maiden by Thalia Carner. The Jerusalem Maiden is a coming of age novel exploring the role that religion, faith, and family have on one girl's hopes and dreams for her own future. Esther struggles not only with what her family and culture expects but her own personal beliefs in God and how they could bring so much heartache as well as joy. The author's rich details subtly place the reader on the scene. The book is beautiful and will provide many opportunities for personal reflection. Lunch at a restaurant will be after the meeting. We hope you will join us.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION TO OUR VOLUNTEERS FROM MORSELIFE

Dear Mr. Baseman,

Thank you again for the warmth that your volunteers so generously provided on Christmas Day.

Warm regards,

June Raasch

Israel: Women of the Wall Update - by Debbie Carr (Hello Gali? Please come bail me out of jail)

Jerusalem, January 2, 2014

A flurry of activity, wrapping tallit, wrapping tefillin, smiles, and greetings of “chodesh tov”, so began the service in honor of Rosh Chodesh Shevat – the new moon/month of Shevat. We were 200 women at the Kotel (the Western Wall) and all was unusually quiet on the men’s side. No protests, nothing was thrown at us, there were no whistles to disrupt our service this month.

A young girl in dreadlocks asked me a question in Hebrew. I can’t hold a conversation in the language, yet I understood her perfectly. How? She asked the same question Jews ask each other all over the world: “What page are we on?” I opened my book to show her.

I watched a mother and her 6-month old daughter laugh out loud to a bouncy Hodu melody, then rocking gently to Pitchu Li. Lior Nevo, a Women of the Wall supporter, was arrested here when she was eight-months pregnant. It is her hope that in 12 years, her daughter may become a Bat Mitzvah at the Kotel. Last year, 50 to 100 women were arrested at the Kotel for the felony crime of wearing a tallit. Finally, on April 25, 2013, a judge determined in our favor, declaring that the group’s activities are not illegal, that these women may wear tallit and tefillin, and pray out loud. Since then, not one woman has been arrested during the Rosh Chodesh service at the Kotel.

2010: Yes, those are chairs being thrown by men into the women’s section of the Kotel. They are only plastic, and a welcome relief from the fully loaded diapers previously thrown at the prayer group.

Always pushing the envelope for equality, this morning on Rosh Chodesh Shevat, Women of the Wall attempted to bring in a Torah. Yes, Jews read Torah on Rosh Chodesh, and yes, we are Jews and we want to read. Unfortunately, the Torah was denied entrance. We were informed that there are already over 100 Torahs at the Kotel for public use. We know this. Women of the Wall have asked permission to use a public Torah, but have been told we are not part of the public allowed to use these Torah scrolls – we are women.

So our service commenced without our Torah. The Torah blessing was switched to “La’asok b’divre Torah”, for the study of Torah. We danced and we sang out loud; we blessed the new moon. And we celebrated Rosh Chodesh at the Kotel, as Women of the Wall have done for the past 25 years.

Mission Statement: As Women of the Wall, our central mission is to achieve the social and legal recognition of our right, as women, to wear prayer shawls, pray, and read from the Torah collectively and out loud at the Western Wall.

It was an honor to pray with these women. You can follow their struggle on Facebook: Women of the Wall Nashot HaKotel. And before I forget: Gali, thanks for the offer but I managed to stay out of jail this time.

A Wonderfully Silly Purim

We would like to say thank you to all of The One School parents and guests who came out to enjoy our annual Purim parade and Shabbat celebration on Friday, March 14th! It was a blast! We hope you were able to get lots of pictures during the costume parade from the school wing through the Temple. Our Purim Shabbat concluded with the silliest Purim Spiel ever to grace our sanctuary!

April Celebrations

- Celebrating Passover: One of the most important mitzvot (something we must do in observing the holiday) of Passover is the re-telling of the story of the Exodus from Egypt. We will tell the story at our Mock Seder, on Wednesday, April 9th. We welcome all parents to join us as we enjoy Passover foods, sing holiday songs and tell the story in a child-friendly way. We need some help at 8am that morning to set the tables. Please let us know if you can help!

- The Week of the Young Child is sponsored by NAEYC, with whom we hold our national accreditation. The Week of the Young Child is a time to recognize that children's opportunities are our responsibilities, and to commit ourselves once again to ensuring that each and every child experiences the type of early environment—at home, at child care, at school and in the community, that will promote their early learning.

- The One School also takes this time to observe Literacy Week, as we read many of our favorite books throughout the month, along with each class studying one favorite author. Our spotlight on a great early childhood story is PJ Library's book, The Little Red Hen and The Passover Matzah, by Leslie Kimmelman. As we teach the lesson of the holiday of Passover, we read this great book that focuses on the mitzvot of Arevut, or responsibility to others, and Haschnassat Orchim, welcoming guests, and eating matzah (unleavened bread). Like the classic story of The Little Red Hen, this Little Red Hen finds her animal friends uninterested in helping her with the work of making matzah for Passover. Yet, as the Passover seder begins, they come to her door expecting to join her celebration. How she reacts models the Jewish value of welcoming and responsibility to community in ways that young children can understand.

- Earth Day is officially on Tuesday, April 22nd, but during the week from April 19-26, thousands of our neighbors from across America will participate in projects aimed at cleaning up our world, by picking up shovels and hoes, grabbing garbage pickers and putting in the hard work needed to keep our communities clean and green. The One School will be part of this too, as we walk around our school and the Temple and make sure that it is clean! And of course, we will continue to tend to our own organic garden right in our backyard!
