Rabbi's Ramblings

Rabbi Bennett Greenspon

After spending some time reading responses to a questionnaire, listening to some talk radio, watching some talking heads on t.v., reading FaceBook postings and eavesdropping on a few conversations, I have decided to share one of my favorite stories with you.

The king was hungry so he called for his servant. "I'm hungry," he said, "I want you to go to the market and get me the best piece of meat that you can find and give it to the chef so that I can have a great meal."

The servant took some money and went to the marketplace. He looked at veal and lamb chops. He looked at filet mignon and sirloin steaks. He thought about ribs and sweetbreads. Finally, he found the best piece of meat in the town and returned to the castle. He gave the meat to the chef who prepared a grand meal.

The king was impressed with the quality of the meat and asked, "What cut is this?" The servant replied, "Your majesty, it is tongue."

A few days later the king called for his servant. "I want you to go to the market and get me the worst cut of meat that you can find." The servant was a bit concerned...what if the meal wasn't good would he pay the price?

But, he did what he was told. He went to the market and looked for the worst piece of meat that he could find. He looked at grizzled beef, ham hocks and rotten meat. Finally, he found what he was looking for and returned to the castle and gave the meat to the chef.

The chef prepared the meal and brought it to the king. The king took one bite and spit it out. "This is terrible", he shouted, "It's just what I was looking for and wanted.". He looked at his servant and asked, "What kind of meat is this?" The servant replied, "Your majesty, it is tongue."

"Tongue? But the good piece of meat was also tongue!"

"Your majesty, the tongue is the organ of speech. We can use our tongues to create wonderful words or we can use them to create vile and repulsive ones, just as the chef can cook a great meal or a horrid one. It is up to us as to what we are going to create with our mouths."

Now, in this day and age, the same thing goes for our postings and our bloggings and vloggings.

Rabbi's Writings

Rabbi Frank DeWoskin

In 2013, we celebrated what came to be known as Thanksgivukkah, when Chanukah fell on Thanksgiving, which does not happen often. In fact, the time it would have happened before then was 1861. However, Thanksgiving was not formally established until 1863. Looking into the future, the next time the beginning of Chanukah falls on Thanksgiving day would be in the year 79,811. This year, however, the beginning of Chanukah starts on Sunday night of Thanksgiving weekend. So, in a sense, we again get to celebrate Thanksgivukkah.

One theme of Thanksgiving is similar to a theme of Shabbat, pausing and reflecting on what you have gratitude for in your life. Whether we are with family or friends in person or virtually, over Thanksgiving, I encourage all of us to pause and show appreciation for all the blessings we encounter.

A theme of Chanukah is spiritual and moral victory, represented by light over darkness. The schools of Hillel and Shammai argued over whether you start with lighting 8 candles and shrink down to 1 or you start with 1 and move up to 8. Hillel won the argument and we begin with 1 candle and move up, adding more brightness on each subsequent day. By adding light on a daily basis, our lives are filling with more and more light, allowing us to see the ever growing light in our lives, seeing positivity and hope. Sometimes it is more challenging to see that light when we are overcome with darkness and loneliness. The increase of candles over Chanukah encourages us to look for that light, even amid darkness.

There is a story about a set of parents who challenge their kids to fill up the barn. Each child is given a set amount of money. The first child buys feathers to fill up the space. The parents say, "Good job, except that there is still space remaining." The second child buys bales of hay. The parents again respond with, "Well done, except that there is still space remaining." The third child buys a couple of candles and lights them. The parents respond saying, "The room is filled. It is filled with light."

As we get ready to celebrate Thanksgiving and the start of Chanukah towards the end of the month, may our hearts be filled with gratitude, light and hope.

As we enter the month of November when most hearts are turned towards giving thanks for all of our blessings, we gladly join in this deep sense of gratitude. We also remember that as Jews, we are taught to give thanks for all of our blessings (some say at least 100 times) every single day.

In fact, many of our Rabbis throughout the ages have taught us that it is best to sing or say the prayer "Modeh Ani" after our very first stretch and yawn, even before our feet touch the floor to get out of our beds every morning when we arise.

Here's a fun experiment to try along with your whole family (this works wonders with children of all ages):

Take some time out of every day in this month of November to give thanks for even one thing or person that you've been blessed with...But make sure you do it every single day. (It's a beautiful way to wake your children up in the morning.)

And you just might find that your days are so enhanced with your own gratitude that you may want to continue this beautiful tradition indefinitely.

Modeh ani I-fanecha
Melech chai v-kayam
She-he-Che-zarta bi nishmati
B'chemlah, Raba emunatecha.

Dear God (eternal Presence of all of creation),
I give You thanks that You have returned my soul to me in Your great loving kindness.
Your faith in me (to give me another day) is great.

As one of our most profound scholars, Abraham Joshua Heschel said, "How strange we are in the world, and how presumptuous our doings! Only one response can maintain us; gratefulness for witnessing the wonder, for the gift of our unearned right to serve, to adore and to fulfill. It is gratefulness that makes the soul great. "

Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Love,

Cantor Jan

Critical Thinking in BES Middle School

Critical thinking is defined as the “objective analysis and evaluation of an issue in order to form a judgment.” In other words, critical thinking helps us to analyze, evaluate, and improve the quality of our thoughts in order to eliminate biased, uninformed, distorted, and prejudiced thoughts. At Beth Emet Middle School, we strive to cultivate and build independent thinkers that are mindful and able to analyze their surroundings with a critical yet objective mind.

In classes such as Civics, World History, Journalism, and Jewish Social Studies, we provide students with the opportunity to explore their past, understand their present, and plan for the future. The understanding and knowledge of where students come from, where they are, and where they are headed, equip students with the appropriate tools and skills to question facts, reason and solve complex situations, face challenges, be informed, and ultimately allow them to form opinions and thoughts that are open minded, creative, and mindful to the world around them.

In our Literature and Rhetoric classes, students learn to decipher an author’s purpose and analyze how particular literary devices help the author achieve that purpose. In order to ensure that their analysis is supported by evidence from the text, students must cite specific lines from the text and explain how those lines serve to support their analytical claims. Beyond analysis, students also evaluate the effectiveness of the choices authors make, and they engage in amplification—the practice of improving upon a particular aspect of someone else’s writing. Amplification might include writing a new ending or new beginning, adding descriptive detail that appeals to the five senses and employs literary devices, or even changes the point of view to impact the reader in a new way. In these ways, the students are learning to think critically both as readers and as writers.

Critical thinking and Science go hand in hand. Critical thinking involves constantly asking questions, examining information and evidence, and figuring out conclusions. It is the mind’s ability to analyze claims about the world, which is the basis for the scientific method. The scientific method is a series of steps that make the student question, do research, form a hypothesis, test the experiment, analyze data, and come to a conclusion. Our middle school students are critical thinkers. They are skeptical, open-minded, value fairness, respect evidence, reasoning, and clarity. They look and listen to different points of view, before forming a conclusion. It is the different points of view that might make them change their position, when reasoning leads them to do so. As teachers, we always encourage a student’s curiosity. They should ask questions and develop their own ideas without our personal opinions. In Science, beliefs matter less than facts. We read that it was once considered controversial to put erasers on pencils. Yes, you read that correctly. People thought that erasers would encourage students to make mistakes! In our classrooms, mistakes are encouraged. Mistakes are part of the critical thinking process, which leads to repeating parts of the scientific method, which provides more data and data leads to new conclusions and the ability to move forward.

Students are given many opportunities to use critical thinking in Math class. First, when learning a new concept, students work collaboratively with hands-on tools to make self-discoveries about relationships between numbers and patterns using their prior knowledge. This allows the emphasis to be on conceptual understanding before procedural learning. Critical thinking also happens through effective communication. Students are learning to analyze their own answers by asking themselves questions including if the answer makes sense. Then they are encouraged to share their reasoning behind the process they used. This leads to many meaningful discussions using math vocabulary and higher-order thinking skills. Another opportunity is applying math to real-world situations to build a stronger foundation. Students apply critical thinking when they can choose the best strategy that works for them to follow logical steps when solving both simple and complex problems. Lastly, to promote creative and critical thinking we often play games and work on math puzzles. This is a great way to help increase both student interest and a deeper understanding of math concepts. When students think critically in mathematics, it makes learning more relevant and meaningful.

The Stories We Are Told....

Remember when we would celebrate Thanksgiving and just be thankful? As my knowledge has grown about the holiday, my reflection on this celebration has come into question. Here we gather together and sit and eat a big meal while we also know that this holiday traditionally also represents a time when a culture was not treated well. (Preschool language in my reflection.) As we reflect on this holiday we often take a moment to be thankful and grateful. While we value these attributes we also strive to teach the children the true value of inclusion and kindness. In our Early Childhood Center cultivating kindness is a priority and this includes teaching the acceptance, tolerance and understanding of people with different values, looks, and beliefs. Through books, stories, materials and conversations we strive to teach and role model these values.

Each day in preschool, when we have snack or lunch, we say a prayer to express our thankfulness for the food in our lives. We take a deep breath and we celebrate when we have fruit or fresh vegetables to keep our bodies strong and healthy. We teach the children and role model our thankfulness. We recognize our gratitude for the friendships we make as well. We also take time to acknowledge the materials in our class or we walk outside and we take notice of the beauty in nature. Together we learn gratitude for all that our life brings us in our day!

In addition to focusing on our gratitude and our thankfulness, this holiday implores that we learn about truth, history and critical thinking as learners. Each week in school we read stories and sometimes we learn history in these stories. We ask the children, "Do you think this story is true? What about it might not be true? What other ways might this story be told? How else could this story end?" Children can begin to think about stories and history with a critical eye at an early age. We focus on opening their minds to a variety of perspectives and we hope our students begin to think independent thoughts as they learn history.

Even in their own interactions with each other, we can begin to explore different perspectives. Did he grab that toy from you or did he walk over and pick it up to look at it because he was curious? Did she draw on your paper to ruin your art work or did she want to draw with you and she thought she was adding to your drawing? History is interpreted, retold and distorted to sometimes match our own views or perspectives. As we practice critical thinking and examination, new insights arise. Perhaps this year for Thanksgiving we will celebrate our ability to be kind, to be grateful, to be inclusive, and to think critically as we walk through life.

GRATITUDE – הטוב הכרת – HAKARAT HATOV

Hakarat hatov הטוב הכרת - gratitude or thankfulness - is a core Jewish value that strengthens individuals and communities. When you open up to the trait of gratitude, you see clearly and accurately how much good there is in your life. Gratitude affirms. Those things you are lacking are still there, and in reaching for gratitude no one is saying you ought to put on rose-colored glasses to obscure those shortcomings. But most of us tend to focus so heavily on the deficiencies in our lives that we barely perceive the good that counterbalances them.

There are lots of reasons why it's important to be thankful and show gratitude for the people and things we have in our lives, but did you know that being thankful is also good for your health? Here's a list of why it's great to be grateful, not only at Thanksgiving but all year long!

Share with your children these Gratitude Tips!

Showing thanks to others makes them feel good. You make other people feel good when you show them you appreciate the things they do for you. This can turn good friends into best friends. A simple "thank you" goes a long way and helps you have better friendships, and better your relationship with your family.

Being thankful gives you confidence. When you're grateful for the things in your life, even if it's something as simple as a beautiful sunset, it boosts your self-esteem. You will feel more confident and less worried. Being grateful is contagious and others will want to be grateful just like you!

Thankfulness makes you a more positive person. People who are thankful have a more positive vision. Their glass is always half full. We want to be thankful for the water that is there and not worry about the empty glass.

Writing a gratitude journal can help you sleep better. Keep a journal beside your bed to write a list of all the things you're thankful for that day. This will help you sleep much better. As we go to sleep with the last positive memory of the day it helps us have a smoother night's rest.

Being grateful just makes you happy and being happy can help keep your mind and body healthy.

We are certainly grateful for our students and families
& the numerous ways you all enrich our TBE community!

WHAT IS LIFE & LEGACY?

LIFE & LEGACY is a partnership of the Harold Grinspoon Foundation (HGF) and Jewish Federation of Broward County that promotes after-lifetime giving to benefit Temple Beth Emet and the local Jewish community. Through training, support and monetary incentives, LIFE & LEGACY motivates Jewish organizations to integrate legacy giving into their philanthropic culture in order to assure Jewish tomorrows.

WHY LEAVE A LEGACY GIFT?

In one way or another your life is rooted in Jewish experiences connecting you to Temple Beth Emet and the Jewish community. Have you included us in your will or estate plan? By leaving a legacy gift, you help ensure Temple Beth Emet's values and services will be part of our community long into the future.

HOW DO I PARTICIPATE?

Each of us, regardless of age, wealth or affiliation, have the ability to leave a legacy.

Your legacy gift of any size can be customized and structured to fit your dreams, lifestyle, family and financial interests. You can provide support for Temple Beth Emet in any area of interest.

Leaving a legacy is simple. Some options include:

- Bequest in a will or trust
- Gift of life insurance
- Gift of IRA, 401 (k), or pension funds
- Gift of cash or assets
- Charitable Gift Annuity
- Charitable Remainder Trust

WHAT ARE MY NEXT STEPS?

- 1 Reflect on your Jewish passions.
- 2 Contact Laura Goodman, Development Director, at 954-680-1882 or laura@templebethemet.org
- 3 Sign a Letter of Intent
- 4 If necessary, formalize your commitment by consulting with a financial or legal adviser.

How will you assure Jewish tomorrows for Beth Emet?

Leave a legacy gift today!

Bryan Zelitt

Bryan Evan Zelitt will be called to the Torah as a Bar Mitzvah on November 20, 2021. Bryan began his education at Temple Beth Emet's Early Childhood Center in 2011 and is currently an 8th grade student at Walter C. Young Middle School.

Bryan attends Camp Kinder Ring in New York and especially loves having his Beth Emet friends there with him over the summer. Bryan's hobbies include cooking, video games and hockey. For his Mitzvah project Bryan is helping to collect canned food for a local food bank. Donations may be left in the designated box in the Temple lobby from November 17 until November 22.

Andrew would like to thank Rabbi Greenspon, Rabbi DeWoskin and Cantor Jan for their support. He would like to give a special thanks to Paula Bergman for tutoring him for his Bar Mitzvah, Mora Maritza, Mora Valerie, Ms. Limor, Miss Shari, Miss Emily, Miss Evelyn, Miss Maru, and all his Beth Emet Elementary School teachers over the years.

Sophie Masel

Sophie Joy Masel will be called to the Torah as a Bat Mitzvah on Saturday, November 27, 2021. Sophie began her Jewish education at the TBE ECC and then as a student at Beth Emet Elementary School, which helped her build an amazing Jewish foundation. She is currently a diligent 7th grader at American Heritage School Plantation where her favorite subjects are science and literature. She was a member of the National Elementary Honor Society and she has participated in the AHS Student Government Association.

Sophie is a kind and compassionate young woman who enjoys spending time with her family, friends, and her dog, Bella. She loves swimming, paddle boarding, biking, skiing, and UM Hurricanes football! She spent many years dancing and competing in dance competitions around Florida.

As part of her Mitzvah project, Sophie is working with the Patriot Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) to educate our community about the importance of animal treatment and protection. She is participating in the collection of comfort supplies, food, and materials to aid local animal shelters. She recently made pet blankets for Comfort for Critters to donate to animal shelters as comfortable beds for homeless pets waiting to be adopted.

Sophie would like to thank Rabbi Greenspon, Rabbi DeWoskin, Cantor Jan Sheer, Mora Yael Jabko, Noemi Gozlan, Jennifer Schatz-Young, BEES, Merkaz Limud, and all the TBE teachers for their mentoring, guidance, and support over the years and especially in helping her prepare for this important milestone. Temple Beth Emet holds a special place in Sophie's heart. She has worked hard through these difficult times, and she looks forward to this wonderful honor and simcha.
