Shabbat Rocks!

Fridays at 7 pm

April 12, May 17, June 21, July 19 and August 16

This season has been generously underwritten by
The Jan & Ron Moskowitz Family
Phyllis & Sidney Reisman and Jocelyn & Peter Saltz.

Bring your families to this wonderful evening, with a live band playing some of today's most upbeat Jewish music. You will find yourself tapping your toes, clapping your hands and dancing to these contemporary melodies. Multiple musical genres are woven through the service, highlighting text from each of the Psalms, which creates an energizing and engaging service. A special prayer book offers Hebrew, transliteration and English to make this service user friendly. Listen to and download tracks from our website. Services will be held in the Linden Family Courtyard, weather permitting.

D'var Torah: Between Sickness & Disease

Anthony Lazarus, Leo Baeck College Rabbinical Student & CY Alumni

In the last parashah, we learned which animals are permitted to eat, which are forbidden, and which can transmit tum'ah - ritual impurity. But in this week's parashah the human body itself is the source of tum'ah - in chapter 12, childbirth, and in chapter 13, a "scaly affection of the skin." These are not just maladies to be treated and healed within the bosom of one's family or community; they require being distanced, both from the Sanctuary and other Israelites, for an extended period of time. Rather than induce care and concern, they induced fear and revulsion.

Our parashah derives its name from an apparently superfluous term in the second verse: "ki tazria v'yaldah, if a woman conceives and births [a child]." The gemara (Niddah 28b) teaches that the word, "tazria / conceive," comes to include the woman who is pregnant but does not carry to term. Thus the tuma'ah here is connected to the blood and guts of childbirth - not the new life it enables. Things that are supposed to be inside the body have suddenly come out, and now the woman is untouchable for 40 days (or longer).

The second half of the parashah focuses on the skin ailment, Tzara'at. Here unlike other illnesses that just eat away at one's insides, Tzara'at slowly eats away at one's outsides. The sages, though, were not content to just regard this as a dermatological condition. They understood Tzara'at as the outward manifestation of the sin of lashon harah - evil speech. Perhaps here too something that should be kept inside has come out, in all its horrific messiness, and the person must be isolated for a week or more depending on the continued spread of the affection.

Dr. Rachel Adler asks us to read these and other ancient Jewish stigma rituals in the light of the modern mythologizing of diseases such as cancer. Christopher Hitchens, soon before his death from oesophageal cancer in 2010, gave a wide-ranging interview in which he reflected on the public's imaginative detachment of a mythological, capital-C Cancer from the actualities of physical little-c cancer. He writes:

'I think it's a superstition. One among many. [...When] I was a child we were all frightened by polio. It takes an effort to remember that now, but in many countries people still are. Previous generations, it would have been smallpox. The heart that never gets the right rhythm. Bronchitis. TB. All these things. But none of them have the same, I think, horror as cancer has been allowed to acquire. And I think it's probably because of the idea of there being a live thing inside you. A sort of malignant alien that can't outlive you but that does in a sense have a purpose to its life which is to kill you and then die. It's like an obscene parody of being pregnant.'

Sickness is not the same as disease. When we are sick, our bodies are fundamentally undermined, but when we are diseased, our body has turned against us, making us grotesque and alien. Disfigurement can do the same. Tuma'ah - weakly translated as 'impurity' - exists within the semantic fields of sickness and disease, but is far more like the latter.

It is difficult to feel a great attachment to Parashat Tazria, especially without being able to fully understand or identify with the stigmatization of birth, menstruation, or skin ailments. But while we might read this and other sections of VaYikra with smugness, reflecting on our society's comparative civility, I am not sure that Tazria is an appropriate site for self-satisfaction. I have to overcome a bar of inner-resistance every time I visit my dementia-ridden grandmother. Numerous cancer sufferers describe, in various terms, the veil of disease which interposes between the sick and the well in every manner of conversation. We should recollect that both the woman who conceives and births, and the victim of Tzara'at, at least had their rituals, be they howsoever primitive, by which to rejoin the realm of the living.

Parashat Tazria Self-Study

Vered Hollander-Goldfarb, Conservative Yeshiva Faculty

After the painful event of the death of 2 of Aaron's sons during the celebrations for inaugurating the Priesthood, we are taking a 2-week break from Tabernacle business and learning a bit about some purity issues. It is important to remember that it has nothing to do with hygiene. Over the next parashot, we will try to understand what it might be about.

1) We open (12:1-5) with the situation of a woman who gave birth and therefore became impure. Next week (in chapter 15) we will learn about the impurities of bodily discharges. Why do you think that the case of a woman who gave birth is not included in the section on other bodily discharges?

2) The birthing woman is counting the days of her impurity; for the birth of a girl, it is double as long as for the birth of a boy (12:1-5). What might be the reason for this?

3) In the decision of whether or not a person has Tzara'at (often translated 'leprosy') the verb 'to see' appears many times (chapter 13). What does it tell us about the nature of the test needed for diagnosis? What might it tell us about Tzara'at?

4) If a person has a skin blemish that might be suspected of being Tzara'at he is "brought to the Kohen" (13:2). Why do you think the person needs to be brought to the Kohen rather than go at his own initiative?

5) Part of the diagnosis of Tzara'at in certain situations involves a 7 day waiting period to see how things develop. During that time the person is not declared impure. What does this tell us about the nature of Tzara'at as a physical ailment?

May He who blessed our ancestors and is the source of all healing bless and heal those who are ill. May the Holy One Praised Be He mercifully restore them to vigor and lift the burden of anxiety from their loved ones and friends.

On this (Sabbath, Festival, Judgment or Penitence) day we pray that they be spared further pain. May God grant them health of body and health of spirit and mind. May we speedily be privileged to greet their return to good health by welcoming them once again into our midst. Let us say: Amen.

Anyone wanting to add a name to the list should contact Diane Shalom (216-831-6555 ext. 104 or dianeshalom@bnaijeshurun.org) by Thursday afternoon at the latest for inclusion in that Shabbat's program. We will also pause during the prayer for people to recite additional names from their seats.

Did you know that B'nai Jeshurun has a Cub Scout Pack? Pack 196 is one of only two Cub Scout Packs chartered by Jewish organizations in Northeast Ohio and is open to boys in grades K-4. We invite all boys and their families to come to our recruitment open house which will include a mobile climbing wall. Please contact Pack 196 Committee Chairman Benjamin Altose for more information at benjamin.altose@gmail.com. Pack 196 is just in its second year and meets on the 2nd and 4th Tuesday at B'nai Jeshurun from 6 - 7 pm.

Kiddush or Oneg Sponsorships

The mitzvah of a donation for sponsorship of a kiddush or oneg is a beautiful way to share the happiness of your milestone or remember a loved one with the congregation. Sponsorships are acknowledged in the Shabbat handout and in Tidings. The cost of a kiddush is $500 and an oneg is $250; partial sponsorships are available and they are tax deductible. Please contact Paula Botkin.
