Beineinu - Between Us

As we approach the month of Elul – in which we begin the process of teshuvah that culminates in Yom Kippur – I think of one of my favorite places in Israel: Rosh Hanikra. These magnificent grottos, on the northernmost coast of Israel, were carved out of limestone by the pounding of the waves over tens of thousands of years. The intricate lace of caves and tunnels goes deep into the rock, and is graced on the outside by dramatic cliffs and unusual rock formations shaped by the water. Michelangelo used to say that he did not create his sculptures. They were hidden within his stone; he simply revealed them. In the same way, it always seemed to me that the beauty of Rosh Hanikra's grottos must have been hidden within the rock by God, waiting to be revealed by the water.

It is said that at the age of 40, Akiva had not studied a word of Torah. A shepherd by trade, no doubt he was intimidated by the sages of the academy. Then one day, Akiva was standing by the mouth of a well. He noticed that the water dripped out; and his gaze followed the drip to a bowl shaped stone. He wondered aloud: "Who hollowed out this stone?" "Akiva," he was told, "haven't you read [in the book of Job] that 'water wears away stone?' It is the constant drip of water, day after day, which created the hollow in the rock."

At that moment, Akiva came to a realization. "Is my mind harder than stone? I will go and study at least one section of Torah!" He went directly to the schoolhouse, where he began to read with his son. First the teacher wrote an alef and a bet, and he learned to read them. Like the dripping water, he worked his way through the entire Hebrew alphabet letter by letter. Then, he learned the book of Leviticus, and finally the entire Torah and the Oral Law. In the end, Akiva became one of the greatest sages there has ever been.

Transformation requires patient determination. What we need most is to be like Rabbi Akiva, to look at the well of Torah and ask ourselves, "Am I harder than stone?" Drip by drip, day by day, challenge by challenge, we can make ourselves over again, if we try. And as we change, like the grottos of Rosh Hanikra, the beauty that lies within becomes revealed.

Naomi joins me in wishing you a shana tova!

Rabbi Stephen Weiss

President's Message

I need your help...again. This time it involves food. "All who are hungry, let them come and eat." That line from the haggadah says it all. Food is the basis of so much in the Jewish religion and culture. We commemorate holidays by sharing meals with friends and family, observe rituals with specific meals like the Passover seder and celebrate life by schmoozing over Shabbat dinner or kiddush/oneg after services. It is tantamount to our Jewish beings that we have food at these events and share with everyone.

We have been very lucky at B'nai Jeshurun to have wonderful leadership in the kitchen/catering area, certainly over the 27 years I have been a member. First, Phyllis Bookatz (of blessed memory), then Dr. Paula Schaffer-Polakof and now the triumvirate of Dr. Murray Berkowitz, Tova Cohen and Faith Eisenberg, have each done a wonderful job of keeping the kitchen running and feeding the congregation well. Additionally, I want to thank Dr. R. Raphael "Rafi" Simon for his delicious cooking and kosher supervision.

Our kiddushes and lunches have gotten healthier with the times, while still being affordable to congregants looking to celebrate a simcha or remember a loved one. More of our congregants have gotten involved to help cook, prepare and serve food, while also building community and increasing engagement. We thank everyone who has helped.

As Murray, Tova and Faith look to move on from the management of the kitchen, we are looking for someone or a new group to take over that volunteer role. Would you be willing to help keep our kitchen organized, arrange kiddushes/onegs and at times step in to cook a Shabbat meal? Additional volunteers to our kitchen corps are also always welcome.

If you are interested in helping to manage the kitchen or prepare the food, please contact Paula Botkin or me (president@bnaijeshurun.org). You will be embraced by a community who shares your love of food and helpfulness and you will be appreciated by the whole congregation.

Cantor's Corner

This month will be the Hebrew month of Elul in which we begin to blow the shofar. The shofar is sounded in the daily morning minyan with the exception of Shabbat. It serves as a wake-up call from our spiritual slumber. As each day draws nearer to the Days of Awe, we need to act with a sense of urgency. It is not optimum to enter into the High Holy Days without any modified behavior of the status quo. One should start the process of rectifying wrong doings against others. In addition to the engagement of our fellow man, we need to draw closer to G-d. It cannot just be lip service, but requires effort and actions. We need to attend more services and participate in prayer; give more charity and learn more Torah. In general, we need to become a difference maker individually and collectively.

We have to show G-d that although we have slipped and not lived up to expectations, we are remorseful and acknowledge our shortcomings. This process is known as teshuvah or repentance. It should be an ongoing process that requires constant focus and self-awareness. One has to be brutally honest and check one's ego at the door. This is the only way to achieve higher levels of productivity as a human being and Jew. No one wants to hear of their shortcomings and failures. However, those who are successful in the repentance process recognize this within themselves and are motivated to correct their actions.

The eerie sound of the shofar should penetrate our hearts. Our sages were aware that preparation prior to the High Holy Days is necessary to reach deep into inner selves to make these corrections in our flaws. Anyone who has run marathons does not just show up the day of the race. They prepare for several months, building up endurance and strength to have a successful outcome. Hopefully, our changes will be permanent, catapulting us into a new sphere with G-d and one another.

May all our prayers and efforts be accepted by G-d.

Education & Youth

In the first parasha we read this month, Eikev, we are commanded to walk in God's ways – but what does it really mean to walk in God's ways? What attributes and qualities demand our reverence, our action? Moses could mention any number of qualities or feats when describing God's attributes to the Israelites. Perhaps he could remind B'nai Yisrael of God's might in afflicting the Egyptians with the ten plagues, or in splitting the Red Sea, perhaps in recounting the Flood or the Tower of Babel. But instead, Moses tells the people that God "shows no favor and takes no bribe, but upholds the cause of the fatherless and the widow and befriends the stranger, providing them with food and clothing" (Deut. 10:17-18).

We learn here from Moses that walking in God's ways is not about our might but rather about our love and care for those in need, those afflicted by injustice, and those in suffering. Tzedakah, advocacy, service, lending a helping hand - these are God's ways.

This year, B'nai Jeshurun teens will have the opportunity to travel and help a community suffering from the effects of natural disaster, as well as helping strengthen our community through our service. As our teens demonstrate walking in God's ways as described in Parashat Eikev, let us all heed the call to make a difference in our world. There is so much that can be done, all over the world and right here in our own community, and there is never a better time to take action than right now.

Theresa & Lee Markowitz joined BJC seven years ago, when they came over from Congregation Bethaynu and they have been making a positive impact on our congregation ever since. Theresa is a Marcus Leadership graduate, a Membership Committee Co-Chair, an Officer on our Board of Trustees and is on the BJC Core Team for Greater Cleveland Congregations (GCC). Lee is a member of the Inclusion Committee, ushers at the High Holy Days and is involved in GCC.

Theresa says that BJC has encouraged and supported her in her development of leadership skills. Through the synagogue's involvement in GCC, she has been given an avenue to focus on a cause that comes out of their family's personal experience – their adult daughter has a cognitive disability and mental illness. Theresa is passionate about being able to work toward changing the way people with mental illness are treated when they come in contact with our criminal justice system – through working toward the establishment of Mental Health Crisis Centers in Cuyahoga County as an alternative to incarceration.

Starting the Inclusion Committee has meant a lot to them personally. They love the friendliness and caring of our congregants, staff and clergy, the many choices of programs we offer, learning and prayer and our focus on tikkun olam. Theresa feels that praying with a community connects her to the collective joys, sorrows and hopes of others. Judaism is an important part of Lee's identity; many of his closest friends are the result of participating in Jewish organizations.

They support the synagogue financially in myriad ways such as sponsoring the rabbinic intern, giving annually to Mahar, Chesed programming and the Aliyah Fund. Growing up, Theresa's family was poor, but she never felt that way because of the tremendous support of her community and relatives. Lee's parents were strong believers in philanthropy. Their families placed a high value on doing what one could for others, in terms of time and money. Community involvement was modeled everywhere.

We thank Theresa & Lee for all they do to support our congregation.
