Screening of "The Women's Balcony"
Saturday, September 21 • 8:15 pm

When the women's balcony in an Orthodox synagogue in Jerusalem collapses, leaving the rabbi's wife in a coma and the rabbi in shock, the congregation falls into crisis. Charismatic young Rabbi David appears to be a savior after the accident, but slowly starts pushing his fundamentalist ways and tries to take control. This tests the women's friendships and creates a rift between the community's women and men in this rousing, good-hearted tale about women speaking truth to patriarchal power.

This program is made possible through the generosity of the Dobres-Berkowitz Israel Programming Fund.

D'var Torah: Justice & Politics
Dr. Shaiya Rothberg, Conservative Yeshiva Faculty

A hallmark of historical Judaism is the centrality of justice for religion. Isaiah went so far as to say, in the name of God, that God cannot endure the doing of injustice alongside the performance of religious ceremonies (Isaiah 1:13). When we nonetheless concoct that cocktail, teaches the prophet, the inevitable result is destruction and exile. It's hard to imagine a more absolute statement of the preeminent importance of justice for the Jewish conception of religion.

Strikingly, in just one verse in our portion, Devarim 16:19, the Torah captures what is perhaps the very essence of justice. Justice means no discrimination (the first half of the verse) and no ulterior motives (the second half). The verse's explanation of the prohibition of bribery reveals another crucial element: Bribery is forbidden because it blinds the eyes of the judge to the truth. That is to say, justice requires an honest attempt to discover the truth about the facts.

Rabbinic tradition understands our verse as a code of behavior for judges. Another interpretation was offered by Rabbi Chaim Hirschensohn in his monumental halachic work Malki Bakodesh (1:11). First, he argues that "judges and officers" in the context of the Bible involve all the branches of government (not just what we would today call the judicial branch but also the legislative and executive branches). Furthermore, he argues that since Devarim 16:18 commands that we appoint judges and officers, clearly the addressee of the verse is not the judges and officers themselves, but the people who appoint them. In a democracy, concludes the Rabbi Hirschensohn, you and I are those people and therefore these verses apply to us when we participate in democratic elections.

When I survey the global political scene with this d'oraita (Biblical) halachic obligation in mind, I'm struck how relevant Devarim 16:19 has remained in our day. In fact, it seems like a whole crop of politicians, across many countries and from both the "left" and "right" seem to compete over who can most absolutely repudiate the essence of justice as conceived in our verse. They openly delegitimize any attempt to objectively investigate the facts of any matter in which they have an interest. They flaunt their ability to abuse public authority for personal gain as a sign that they are powerful enough to be worthy of leadership. And they openly stoke the hatreds and fears of their audiences, against Jews or Arabs or whomever, to gather support for themselves and their discriminatory agenda.

Rabbi Hirschensohn seeks to impress upon us that how we vote is of ultimate Jewish religious significance. His teaching reflects not only the ancient prophets but also a more contemporary theme. Figures as diverse as Rabbi Samson Raphael Hirsch, Rav Kook, Martin Buber and Rabbi Heschel, argued that modernity has seen the rise of a politics walled off from the obligations of justice (exemplified, I believe, by the politicians described above). And they taught that our mission as the People Israel is to tear that wall down.

Rabbi Samson Raphael Hirsch expresses this theme in his explanation of the Abrahamic blessing to humanity (Bereshit 2:12): "The honesty, humanity and love which one still demands from individuals is regarded as folly in the relation of nation to nation, have no meaning in diplomacy and politics. Deception and murder which in individuals lead to prison and gallows, if exercised on a grand scale in the 'interests of the state' are crowned with laurel and medals. The Abrahamic nation is to know nothing of these national institutions, is to have no national politics and no political economy."

Rabbi Hirsch, as is his way, takes his vision to the extreme. I'm not sure that I can imagine a real society with no politics whatsoever. But I can imagine leaders who seek to embody the principles of justice laid down Devarim 16:19 rather than to brazenly flout them. And it seems clear, based on the Torah itself and the teachings of both ancient prophets and recent sages, that core to our religious mission is the struggle to guarantee that our "judges and officers" are worthy of leadership not only in their own eyes but in the eyes of God.

Parashat Shoftim Self-Study

Vered Hollander-Goldfarb, Conservative Yeshiva Faculty

This week we will meet some of the institutions of the society; courts, kings and prophets, along with state, cultic and criminal laws and laws of war.

1) If the people choose to appoint a king, he has limitations placed upon him (17:16-17). He may not multiply horses, he may not multiply silver and gold, and he may not multiply wives. Why does the Torah not give the king a free hand to do what he sees as necessary in his position as monarch? (Especially when the behavior is in line with other monarchs of the time.)

2) We are warned that the people who lived in the land before us practiced abominations: passing children through fire, sorcery and divination of various sorts; it is because of these abominations that God will dispossess them before us (18:9-12). What conclusions might we draw from the reason given for our ability to dispossess the local population?

3) "You may not move back the border of your neighbor that earlier ones set... in your inheritance that you inherit in the land the LORD ... is giving you" (19:14). How is land ownership in the land of Israel viewed by the Torah?

4) "When you go to war against your enemies and you see horses and chariots, fighting people greater than you, you shall not fear them; for the LORD your God is with you, who brought you up from Egypt" (20:1). Fear in the face of war, especially against forces greater than your own, seems normal. What words of encouragement does the Torah offer, and why might this be a source of reassurance?

5) If a corpse is found in the field and the murderer is not found, the elders of the nearest town will perform a ceremony at the end of which they will declare: "Our hands did not shed this blood, our eyes did not see... Oh LORD do not put innocent blood amid your people Israel..."(21:1-9). As the elders are not suspected of murdering the person, why and what are they held responsible?

May He who blessed our ancestors and is the source of all healing bless and heal those who are ill. May the Holy One Praised Be He mercifully restore them to vigor and lift the burden of anxiety from their loved ones and friends.

On this (Sabbath, Festival, Judgment or Penitence) day we pray that they be spared further pain. May God grant them health of body and health of spirit and mind. May we speedily be privileged to greet their return to good health by welcoming them once again into our midst. Let us say: Amen.

Anyone wanting to add a name to the list should contact Diane Dronzek (216-831-6555 ext. 104 or dianedronzek@bnaijeshurun.org) by Thursday afternoon at the latest for inclusion in that Shabbat's program. We will also pause during the prayer for people to recite additional names from their seats.

Sisterhood: An Evening with Anita Gray
Thursday, September 19 • 7 pm

The ADL's Anita Gray will speak about the rise of anti-Semitism in our lives. This important and informative program is free and open to the community. RSVP by September 16 to Grace Brower (440-823-9445 or gracepepperpike@aol.com). A dessert reception will follow her talk.

Inclusion Shabbat
Saturday, September 21 • during and after morning services

Please join us to hear what the Inclusion Committee has achieved as well as their future plans for making our shul more accessible to all. Following kiddush, stay for a discussion on where we go next. Your input is vital in helping to eliminate barriers that might cause anyone in the community to feel unwelcome and thus not participate at BJC.
