V'ahavta: How we live our Shema in the World

Explore Tradition.

We answer Judaism's call to think, to wrestle, to question and to learn what tradition means to each one of us. We explore how we fit into the continuum of Jewish existence through time while defining our individual spirituality.

At Temple Sinai, we are inspired by Jewish tradition.

Find Purpose.

We seek to understand what we want our lives to mean. We want our actions to be intentional and to express what we most value in life. Together, we amplify the good we each do in the world through g'milut chasadim (deeds of loving kindness) and tikkun olam (social justice).

At Temple Sinai, we strive to lead lives of meaning.

Create Community.

We work to feel the power of truly belonging to a people and to a kehilah ahuvah (beloved community). We connect with those in different stages of life and with different perspectives. We support others and allow them to support us.

At Temple Sinai, we are enriched by each other.
