TISHA B'AV* SERVICES
Wednesday, July 29th at 8:45pm
Thursday, July 30th at 8am.
ZOOM LINK WILL BE SENT

Tisha B'av (The Ninth of Av) is a day of mourning and fasting. The holiday commemorates various tragedies that befell the Jewish people throughout history, particularly the destruction of the two Temples in 586 BCE and 70 CE. It is believed that many of the tragedies remembered on Tisha B'Av actually occurred on this date. Tisha B'av is the culmination of a three-week period of mourning.

How is Tisha B'av observed?

Tisha B'Av requires some of the same prohibitions as Yom Kippur, including eating or drinking, bathing, anointing the body with oil, wearing leather shoes, etc. However, Tisha B'Av does not carry the same prohibitions as Shabbat. The day is observed by chanting the book of Lamentations and reciting mourners' prayers, while sitting on the ground or on stools. As a day of mourning, one is expected to refrain from smiling, laughing, or chatting idly.

CSI Community Organic Farm

Regenerative Agriculture Rooted in Jewish Tradition

WITH A CHICK CHICK HERE, AND A CHICK CHICK THERE!

The CSI Organic Farm continues to expand to accommodate the increasing participation of CSI members and to deal with the needs of the community.

Last week, the Farm welcomed 12 new baby chicks to its coops and fenced-in areas. The chicks are now 10 weeks old, full of energy and excitement, exploring their new surroundings, flapping their tiny wings and launching themselves into the air to practice their new flying skills, while consuming vast quantities of chick feed. They are of great entertainment value, but the existing flock, who are quarantined in a separate section of the run, are already tired of the youthful antics of the newcomers.

The chicks were born on May 1 and joined their CSI lives on May 4 as small balls of fluff, sitting under heat lamps, in a homemade brooder box in the warm basement of a CSI farm volunteer home in Chappaqua. They quickly became stars of the CSI Nursery School Zoom classes during May and June, as their teachers screen-shared videos of the chicks' weekly development and they became absolute favorites of the children.

Within 2 weeks, the brooder box was becoming rather crowded and so a plan was devised to build a much larger enclosure to be housed in the CSI member's garage to allow for more space and ventilation. Leftover wood, scraps of chicken wire and plywood were hastily measured and drilled together. We then wheeled the "Chick Palace" (as it was named) on two sets of dollies outside onto the driveway during the day so the chicks could enjoy the sun and fresh air, but were safe from any predators. It also allowed the children and families on the block to come and enjoy the chick antics while social distancing in the front of the house.

CSI congregants have enjoyed the organic eggs that the original flock of chickens have provided for several years, but with only a remaining flock of 12, the quantities of eggs were limited. The decision was made to expand our flock. Four breeds were selected for their dependable laying, hardiness in the face of cold winters, friendliness and gentle disposition. Buff Orpington's, the friendliest chicken with a beautiful apricot plumage and good layers of large brown eggs; Ameraucanas, with their blue legs and fluffly cheeks and beards which gives them a comical appearance, but great layers of blue eggs; and; Buck Eyes, the name derived from Ohio's name of Buckeye State, who lay brown eggs, are very active and noted for their vigilant pursuit of mice (some compare them to cats due to this ability); and finally we have Golden Laces Wynadottes, which are dependable layers, even in cold weather and are very beautiful with a variety of gold and black feather patterns.

Congregation Sons of Israel in Briarcliff Manor developed the Organic Farm over the past several years to create a positive, timely, healthful, and enjoyable adjunct to its religious, spiritual, educational, and recreational programs. It has successfully involved its members with nature, outdoor work, fun activities, nursery and religious school programs, outdoor religious services and discussions, charitable giving, and a new spiritual connection to our synagogue.

Farm/ Community Garden Summer News

The Jewish concept of kavod ha teva – honoring nature – is on display every summer on CSI property. Our farm and community garden and grape vines are growing and with much excitement we are looking forward to our major harvesting (actually we have already harvested kale and herbs!!) of vegetables and flowers and grapes leading to our first wine!! What a wonderful and spiritual time this is!

With that in mind, I want to share something written by our member, Sonia Kleinman, with her permission. She wrote this in response to the Sisterhood celebration of Tu B'Shvat, when we were given tiny sunflower seeds to plant at home and return to the farm and let them grow. What a fascinating time watching those little seeds take their time and grow into plants. Nature is remarkable!

Sunflower seeds in the time of Covid 19

Tu B'Shvat is celebrated when it is still winter and it requires faith to trust that spring will arrive and that what is dormant under the ground will come to life again. It requires a leap of faith (and a little effort) to plant seeds and hope they will grow and will provide beauty and/or food, none of which we should take for granted.

This year, as a community, we celebrated Tu B'Shvat and we were given a little bag from the CSI Farm with pellets and sunflower seeds, which was Ryna's idea! It sounded like a nice little project to do on our windowsills (if we ever found the time in our rushed lives to actually do it and water the seeds every day...)

Then the coronavirus entered our lives and caused us all to stay at home and observe social distancing. Nobody knew how long it would take, nor how to count the time; we went from day to day, and still do. Uncertainty became part of our lives.

Then Pesach came along and we celebrated our freedom from slavery, this year with fewer guests around the table or none at all, connecting with loved ones via Zoom and eating matzah, the flat bread of humility and affliction, as we were - at the same time - going back to basics in our lives due to the pandemic. We were reminded that we were slaves, the lowliest of the low, that we have gone through difficult times before in our history. This pandemic is not the first time we encounter challenges and will probably not be the last, either.

Around that time we were also reminded by Debra and David (via e-mail and via the CSI newsletter) of the little bag we received on Tu B'Shvat, telling us it was time to plant the sunflower seeds in the peat pellets. Being home due to the pandemic, we suddenly had more time to do this, time to water, and time to actually observe. What a miracle to see green sprouts come out of the pellets and see them grow and - when they were big enough - to go to the CSI Farm and deliver them to David for planting. What a sense of joy to participate in a project that could not be done alone. It required a community, many of us contributing our little batch of sprouting plants to be planted in a shared space.

From Pesach to Shavuot we count the Omer day after day. And now Shavuot is around the corner. A different way of counting time, perhaps counterbalancing the coronavirus with a way of counting that has to do with spiritual growth, sacred counting, counting towards a momentous event of revelation at Sinai, an event that not only happened long ago, but gets reenacted year after year.

It became clear that all these holidays were not standing on their own, but were rather intimately connected and that one without the other lacked meaning.

The Jewish holidays are closely connected to nature and the seasons, to natural rhythms, to spiritual work. Pesach does not mean much without Shavout: Why would we just attain physical freedom if not followed by the possibility of spiritual freedom, offered to us through the giving and receiving of the Torah? To be truly free from bondage, we need both physical and spiritual freedom. And for that we are asked to engage in an ongoing process of learning and growth. Like those sunflower seeds, our souls need tending so that they can grow and bloom.

May the sunflower seeds we each started in our homes flourish at the CSI Organic Farm! And perhaps not just the sunflower seeds? Perhaps the time between Tu B'Shvat and Shavout also offered us a time and an opportunity for growth?

We belong to a tradition that encourages us to grow and offers us opportunities to do so, individually and communally, a tradition that connects us to nature and the seasons, a life-affirming tradition in the midst of the pain and the losses wrought by the pandemic. It is a tradition which offers us a way to count in such a way that each day counts, and also each one of the seeds planted counts.

The sunflower seeds given to us by CSI's Organic Farm seemed tiny, yet they carried within them a lesson about faith: That in the midst of winter we could imagine nature blooming again. They showed us a path to counteract despair, encouraging us to continue planting and believing in the process of growth, whether tending to the soil of the earth or the soil of our souls. May we find ongoing connections between each holiday and healing through the many opportunities offered to us by the cycle of the Jewish year!

Thank you CSI Organic Farm for the sunflower seeds you gave us on Tu B'Shvat!

Chag Shavuot Sameach!

Thank you to Sonia for this beautiful letter. And to all, Come visit the farm and community garden and share with our community the beauty of nature!!

Jill Greenstein

WHERE IT ALL GOES...

The CSI Organic Farm produces hundreds of pounds of produce each season. This year will be even more productive given the work that's been done over the past few years. Our soil is fertile, and our crops are increasing!

As is our way, the CSI community will donate as much as possible to food pantries and others in need in our local community. Please contact David or Ryna if you are available to help with picking, packing and /or delivering.

WE'LL ALSO BE SELLING ON THE FARM ON TUESDAYS.

Last month, during our Kabbalat Shabbat service recognizing LGBTQ Pride, several special readings were added for the occasion. We were delighted that CSI Past President and founding Chair of the Pride Committee, Andy Kagan, Zoomed in to join the service and read a wonderful Blessing for Pride. Clare Rosen shared an excerpt from a sermon by Rabbi Matthew Gewirtz that she found very meaningful. Also, I read a poem at the beginning of the service that I would like to share with everyone.

TWILIGHT PEOPLE

As the sun sinks and the colors of the day turn, we offer a blessing for the twilight, for twilight is neither day nor night, but in-between.

We are all twilight people. We can never be fully labeled or defined.

We are many identities and loves, many genders and none.

We are in between roles, at the intersection of histories, or between place and place.

We are crisscrossed paths of memory and destination, streaks of light and swirled together.

We are neither day nor night. We are both, neither, and all.

May the sacred in-between of this evening suspend our certainties, soften our judgments, and widen our vision.

May this in-between light illuminate our way to the God who transcends all categories and definitions.

May the in-between people who have come to pray be lifted up into this twilight.

We cannot always define; we can always say a blessing.

Blessed are You, God of all, who brings on the twilight.

---Rabbi Reuben Zellman

You are welcome to join the committee at any time, just let me know.
