Rabbi

Shalom Chaverim,

In past years, when we sat down at the Seder table and tried to reenact the journey from the darkness of slavery to the light of freedom, we may have found it hard to find good examples to truly follow the instruc-A. Nitzan Stein Kokin tion in the Haggadah: "And you shall tell your child on that day, "It is because of what God did for me when I came out of Egypt" (Exodus 13:8). Until the spring of 2020, I personally never had experienced events or circumstances that would come close to the Egypt of Slavery and Oppression. The question of how to authentically reenact the experience of moving from slavery to redemption was not an easy one. Yes, there were plenty of examples in the world, but they were either geographically distant or in the past.

This year, like the last two Seders, I find myself in a very different place. In a place where the wish for wholesomeness and peace prevails. The yearning for redemption has become a day-to-day reality. While the effects of the pandemic still linger, the world is again at war, against an enemy who poses a real threat to our democratic values. The world feels narrow and we are anxious for a good outcome. This year we sit at the Seder table like so many of our ancestors, weary and worried about our own material and financial safety, and about the freedom and safety of our brothers and sisters in Ukraine and Europe. This year it is real. So when we are in "Egypt," in the narrowness - how do we speak of redemption without making it a religious farce? How can we put ourselves on a trajectory of realistic hope and partnership, resulting in a better future for ourselves and the next generations? How, this year, do we open the door to Elijah?

I invite you to share the following selections from Haggadot commentaries at your Seder to spark a conversation of how - despite our current "Egypt" - we can look ahead and strive to move from "G'nut (a lowly place) le-Shevach" (a place of strength), from slavery to freedom. Ask your guests: Which of these statements speaks most powerfully to you and why?

"The Seder is not about a single moment of redemption that occurred thousands of years ago. By remembering the Exodus from Egypt, we rekindle our hope in the ultimate breakthrough - however long it takes - to peace and harmony." (Aryeh Ben David, The Ayeka Haggadah: Hearing our Own Voice)

"Because, after all, the searching is itself the finding." (Rav Menahem Mendel of Kotzk, Hasidic Master)

"The salvation that modern man seeks in this world, like that which his fathers sought in the world to come, has both a personal and a social significance. In its personal aspect it represents the faith in the possibility of achieving an integrated personality...In its social aspect, salvation means the ultimate achievement of a social order in which all men shall collaborate in the pursuit of common ends, in a manner which shall afford each the maximum opportunity for creative self expression. There can be no personal salvation so long as injustice and strife exist in the social order; there can be no social salvation so long as the greed for gain and the lust for dominance are permitted to inhibit the hunger for human fellowship and sympathy in the hearts of men...The God of salvation... is the Power that makes for the fulfillment of all valid ideas." (Mordecai M. Kaplan, Founder of the Reconstructionist Movement)

"The destiny of man is to be a partner of God and a mitzvah is an act in which man is present, an act of participation; while sin is an act in which God is alone; an act of alienation. Such acts of man's revelations of the divine are acts of redemption. Such acts of man's revelations of the divine are acts of redemption. The meaning of redemption is to reveal the holy that is concealed, to disclose the divine that is suppressed. Every man is called upon to be a redeemer... and redemption takes place every moment, every day. The world is in need of redemption, but the redemption must not be expected to happen as an act of sheer grace. Man's task is to make the world worthy of redemption. His faith and his works are preparations for ultimate redemption." (Abraham Joshua Heschel)

Chag Sameach! Happy Passover!

Do you or someone you know own a gently used set of tefillin that needs a new home? We are accepting donations of used tefillin in good condition to be used by our youth in the Talmud Torah.

Please help our youth fulfill the mitzvah of "L'haniach Tefillin" - putting on tefillin, by making sure our community has enough sets in good condition to be used by future generations of the Jewish people.

If you have tefillin to share, please contact Rabbi Stein Kokin at rabbi@bethelphoenix.com or 602-944-3359 ext. 108.

Gregory Harris Board President

There is only this time

How about this for a news flash: you only get to go around once in life, so make the most of each and every day.

Yes. There are times when we get second chances. But not always. Indeed, taking the second chance may not make up for opportunities not pursued because we missed out on the chance to get it right the first time. And yet not taking the time for reflection when we miss our target or our goal could also mean the prospect of not learning the fuller meaning of the mistakes we've made and the steps we could have taken or might, yet, still take to correct a misstep or to make amends.

Our journey through time, through this time, should tell us as much. It has been one of adventure and misadventure. It has been one of doing and learning. It has been one of discovery and of recovered memory. And it has been one of finding the path forward when the path we preferred turned out to be closed or no longer be open to us.

As spring approaches, and the next variant lurks at some unknown distance, we have high hopes for a bright future. But as a congregation, it is also a time for reflection and planning. We must look forward through the lens of the past before we leap. But we cannot stand still. We cannot be frozen. We must not be meek. Rather, in the words of some distant prophet, we can't plot your path if we don't know where you're going and we can't know where we're going if we don't know where we've been.

Through thick and thin, good times and lulls, sunny days and stormy weather, Beth El has been a steady place of community and spiritual fulfillment, before the pandemic and during it all. But we would be unwise to think that Beth El remains unchanged following this fraught period of upheaval and struggle. Clearly, things are not what we've become accustomed to. It has not been possible for us to comfortably come together, and now, even with the hopes for returning to normal soon to be upon us, it may take some coaxing for us to gain comfort in the idea that something resembling the old normal has returned.

To meet this next round of challenges, Beth El's members and leaders — the Congregation, the Board, the Staff, the Clergy — one and all will be making plans. Big plans. We all have a stake in the outcome and a role to play in all of this. Board elections are coming up on Sunday, May 1. Let this time be a time for all of us to engage, to work together, and to plan as a community for the strength and wisdom to make good choices, to learn from the choices we've made and to work to continue to be strong for ourselves, for our families and for our future. This of course includes Michael Apfel and the security efforts he's so tirelessly championed. Even if the threat of COVID-19 will fade, it is clear that the same cannot be said for the ugly stain of anti-Semitism.

There is only this time — the time in which we are living — to get it done. And we will. One for all, and all for one.

L'shalom,

Greg Harris

The Board of Directors is pleased to acknowledge the successful installation ceremony of Rabbi Stein Kokin. Her service at Beth Elbegan in August 2019 and will continue through at least June 2027. The Board looks forward to the hard work, rewards, and spirit as she fulfills her role as Beth El's spiritual leader and to a future in which we will all be together – the entire Beth El Family – long into the future!

Dear Friends,

2022 is moving quickly and we are already coming upon Pesach! I saw a funny meme that I want to share with you...

This meme references the new Disney movie, 'Encanto's' "We Don't Talk About Bruno" hit song (my daughter and her friends' new favorite) and how some of us put off planning for Passover as long as possible.

Personally, I am sympathetic to the meme's sentiment, but rest assured that our Beth El Team is talking about Pesach and how we will celebrate as a community. This year, we will be hosting a First Night Community Seder in person on Friday, April 15, with services starting at 5:45 pm followed by the seder led by Rabbi Stein Kokin. If you need a seder for the first night, please join us here. You can register online or with the form in this echo. If you need financial assistance to attend, please contact Rabbi Stein Kokin at rabbi@bethelphoenix.com.

Another observance this month is Yom HaShoah which begins on the evening of April 27 and continues through April 28. We have a large stock of Yom HaShoah candles to give away to those who would like to light a memorial candle over the holiday. Feel free to take some from the basket in our lobby near the front desk. These candles are a great way to honor and memorialize the 6 million as well as spread awareness about the Holocaust so please feel free to share with your friends.

Wishing everyone an easy and thorough Pesach preparation this year followed by a meaningful and beautiful holiday.

L'Shalom, Alicia Moskowitz

Be Well with BEWL Beth El Women's League

Todah Rabah to Judy Zola, our Education Director, and Jan Freedman, our Torah Fund Director, for organizing the Sisterhood/Torah Fund Shabbat on March 5. A year ago, we only had a virtual program, but this year we were thrilled to be back together "B'Yachad" in the sanctuary and the social hall. Thanks also to Rabbi Stein Kokin, Alicia Moskowitz, Renée Cooperman, Wendy Rozov and Sara Zilversmit for reading Torah and to Ann Polunsky for beautifully chanting the Haftorah. We were lucky to have our Women's League International President, Debbi Kaner Goldich, speak from the bimah and Carol Madvig, the Pacific Southwest President, address us during Kiddush.

BEWL is proud of what we do for Beth El Congregation. We sponsored the Pink Shabbat and the Torah Fund Shabbat. We provide kiddush cups and candlesticks to all the b'nai mitzvot and plan to co-sponsor events with Talmud Torah. We met several times for Rosh Chodesh programs with a fun embroidery project and also aromatherapy jewelry making. Mahjong Meetups have returned on a once a month basis until there is more demand. We are planning on bringing back the ever popular Chocolate Seder and are scheduling an exciting book event in the fall.

The BEWL Officers and Board of Directors would like to expand our programming, but there are only eight of us. We are seeking additional members on the board, and have an election slate to put together. Some people associate a sisterhood with their mother or grandmother's kind of organization, but we are trying to be an organization for all the women of Beth El, from young to oldish, working and retired, kids at home and empty nesters. To have new ideas, we need new people. Please consider joining the board or a committee to keep us moving in the right direction. Bonnie Kluger is chairperson of the Nominating Committee if you want to learn more. Her email is hjewegl@aol.com.

Here's an easy and yummy Pesach dessert: Pistachio, Honey, and Sea Salt Matzo

5 ounces chopped dark chocolate, 1 tablespoon honey, 2 sheets matzo, 1/2 cup coarsely chopped roasted unsalted pistachios, flaky sea salt

Melt chocolate in a bowl set over a pan of simmering water. Remove from heat and stir in honey. Spread evenly over matzo. Sprinkle with pistachios and then sprinkle lightly wth salt. Once it's set, break into pieces and enjoy.

Nanci Siegel Manson Talmud Torah Director

Dear Friends,

Passover is an important holiday for us and is celebrated on Nissan 15, falling sometime in March or April on the secular calendar. While it is a very solemn holiday with several traditions to observe, and it can be challenging to to get children engaged. Fun-themed crafts could grab their attention and allow parents, grandparents, and other adults to better share their values and teach the story of the holiday to youth.

In commemoration of the release of the Jewish people from Egyptian capture and the birth of the Children of Israel, the name Passover is taken from the 10th plague, in which the Angel of Death saw the lamb's blood on the doors of the Jewish families and passed over those houses, not killing the first born. One art project that might be of relevance to Passover could be a depiction of each of the 10 Plagues of Egypt that led to the release of the Jewish people from captivity so they could take their place as God's people.

Another good craft that you might consider during Passover is to help decorate matzah cookies, baked with the required unleavened flours and other ingredients that are traditionally available during this time of observance. These cookies can be decorated with icing and sprinkles in any configurations chosen, allowing for the creative mind to let loose.

Passover is an essential celebration in which Jewish families take part in thanking God for their lives and lives of their first born. Engaging in crafts can instill this faith in children so that in the future they pass on the tradition to their families.

Family story time is also another way in which parents and grandparents can teach about Passover in a valuable way. Below is a list of my three favorite holiday books that I have recently purchased to share with my grand-child during his first Passover as a toddler and a few extra for his own Jewish library.

1. More Than Enough

One of the Passover songs that many children love singing is "Dayenu" This book illustrates just what it means to be thankful that God has provided more than enough. As a family goes through the preparations for Passover by shopping, walking in the rain, and making the food for the seder, they say dayenu (best for kids 3-7 years of age).

2. Passover Family

This sweet board book tells the littlest ones about all the fun they'll have with family at the Passover seder.

The pictures focus on the faces of toddlers, cousins, grandparents and more, which is perfect for the target age group. My favorite part of the text is, "Daddy tells the best stories. One's about a baby like you, who grew up strong and brave." (best for kids 0-3 years of age)

3. Passover Scavenger Hunt

Many children's favorite part of the Passover seder is finding the afikomen. Rachel thinks that Great Uncle Harry always makes the afikomen way too easy to find, so this year, she's going to hide it. Rachel takes the hunt to a whole new level, providing rhyming scavenger hunt clues that tell the meaning of the foods that will be eaten during the seder. I love how the story playfully teaches the kids about the deeper significance of the Passover foods. (best for kids 4-8 years of age).

Wishing all a Happy Passover!

Roberta Harmon USY Advisor

Preschool News

Preschool and early childhood are the most crucial times in a child's life in terms of development, educationally, socially, and emotionally. The connections that the child develops sets the tone for their future growth.

We could not accomplish what we do if not for the PTO, our amazing and hard-working staff, and the entire Beth El Team. We are beyond blessed to have a resilient and dedicated community helping us shape the next generation.

In order to continue our work, we partially rely on donations and fundraisers in order to have an inventory of curriculum for all different developmental stages. Due to the COVID-19 Pandemic, we have not been able to have our annual fundraisers as we prioritize the safety of our community. This year, we were so happy to hold our Tomatina Festival Fundraiser in person on March 27. It included a Salsa making contest (winner to be announced in my next article), children's activities, a silent auction (with many cool prizes), and a delicious pizza lunch. Thank you very much to everyone who attended and who supported the event! We are so blessed to have a wonderful community.

Stay healthy, be safe and enjoy the beautiful spring weather.

From Samarkand to the Valley of the Sun: Come Learn about the Bukharan Jews

WHEN I FIRST ARRIVED in Phoenix in that idyllic pre-pandemic summer of 2019, I was on the lookout for the interesting and unexpected in my new Arizona home. Not that I have anything against streets straight as far as the eye can see, endless days of sunshine, strip malls or saguaros, but I was sure there had to be other stuff out there too. And so it happened that as I began to conduct my daily business—heading off to the barber, florist, and shoe repair shop-I soon observed that a good many Bukharan Jews had also made the Valley of the Sun their home. Upon further inquiry, I was astonished to learn that more Jews from Central Asia (you know, the "-stan countries": Uzbekistan, Tajikistan, and Kyrgyzstan) live here than anywhere else in North America, aside from (and, yes, it's a big "aside") New York City. I found myself wanting to know more about this unique community and its traditions, when and why they came to the valley, and how being here has influenced them. And realizing that many are not aware of the extensive Bukharan presence in Phoenix, it occurred to me that others might also welcome the opportunity to get to encounter this community. Thus was born the idea of an event exploring Bukharan culture, which, I am happy to report, will take place at our own Beth El on Sunday, May 1 (see the "Save the Date").

I am very excited about the emerging line-up at this program. Professors Alanna Cooper and Evan Rapport, two experts on the Jews of Central Asia, will be joining us to share their expertise. An anthropologist, Cooper conducted fieldwork among the Jews of Uzbekistan prior to their mass departure—primarily to Israel and North America—after the fall of the Soviet Union. Rapport is a musicologist who has worked closely with the Bukharan performers who came to New York, including with our other guests, the Queensbased musical ensemble Shashmagam. In Persian, shashmagam means "six magams" (or modes) and is the general term for the traditional music of Central Asia. In addition to singing, the Shashmagam Ensemble performs with the lutelike tanbur and the dayra, a percussion instrument similar to the tambourine, and boasts among its members Mazol (Malika) Kolontarova, the "Queen of Tajik and Oriental Dance" and a "People's Artist of the USSR," that former country's highest honor.

Alongside the professors and performers, we will hear from members of the local Bukharan community about their identity and experiences, in both their former homeland and now in America. And after the speakers speak, the singers sing, and the dancer danced, we will all adjourn for a taste of Bukharan cuisine and informal interaction.

I hope you'll spread the word and consider joining me on May 1 for "From Samarkand to the Valley of the Sun: The History and Culture of the Bukharan Jews."

"From Samarkand to the Valley of the Sun: The History and Culture of the Bukharan Jews"

Sunday, May 1 | 4:00 pm - 7:00 pm @ Beth El Congregation

Did you know that Phoenix is home to North America's largest population of Bukharan Jews (Jews who trace their origin to Uzbekistan, Tajikstan, and Kyrgyzstan?*) Have you even heard of the Bukharan Jews?

If you answered yes to these questions, you'll definitely want...

(And if you answered no to them, you absolutely need...) ...to come to learn about this unique community from scholars who have studied them and from the Bukharan Jews themselves, hear their traditional music and taste their traditional food!
