

The Sklar Brothers

Randy Sklar and Jason Sklar, professionally known as “The Sklar Brothers,” are American identical twin comedians, actors, and writers. They were born and raised in St. Louis, Missouri and were members of Congregation B’nai Amoona where they received their Jewish education and were involved in USY. They are the sons of Richard (Z”L) and Annette Sklar, who is a current B’nai Amoona member. They currently live in California with their wives and children.

Randy and Jason appeared in a wide variety of shows including Entourage, It’s Always Sunny in Philadelphia, Maron, Curb Your Enthusiasm, Those Who Can’t, and Cheap Seats.

They have released four critically acclaimed comedy albums, have had two Comedy Central Half Hour Presents specials, and a one hour stand up special on Netflix, titled “What Are We Talking About.” In addition, they perform at comedy clubs across the United States.

As the month of Adar approaches, we are honored to have The Sklar Brothers return to St. Louis and help us increase our joy and happiness as they entertain us with their energetic comedy at Congregation B’nai Amoona.
