FUNDRAISING MESSAGE

WEEKLY HALACHAH BY RABBI TORCZYNER

TORCZYNER@TORONTOTORAH.COM

How early in the morning may I put on tefillin?

We do not put on tefillin unless there is sufficient daylight to recognize a casual acquaintance from several feet away; this time is called “misheyakir”. Some explain that we wait until misheyakir because visibility is a core requirement for tefillin; others say we wait until misheyakir lest someone don tefillin earlier and fall asleep while wearing them. The BAYT calculates misheyakir as one hour before sunrise.

One whose work requires him to begin davening before misheyakir, and who is unlikely to fall asleep, may don tefillin without a berachah as early as necessary. After misheyakir he should recite the berachah and touch the tefillin.

One who will need to complete the entire davening before misheyakir should don tefillin for davening without a berachah, and find a later time to don tefillin with a berachah, repeating Shema, even late in the day. If putting on tefillin later would be impossible, significant authorities permit reciting a berachah even before misheyakir.

(Berachot 9b and Rabbeinu Yonah ibid; Menachot 36a; Tur/Shulchan Aruch Orach Chaim 30; Mishneh Berurah 30:11, 13, 14; Biur Halachah 30:keivan, Aruch haShulchan Orach Chaim 30:3-6; Igrot Moshe Orach Chaim 1:10, 4:6; Teshuvot v'Hanhagot 1:49; Rivivot Ephraim 4:12)

DVAR TORAH BY RABBI METZGER

cmetzger@torontotorah.com

Why are there two different accounts of creation to begin the Torah?

Rabbi Yosef B. Soloveitchik explains in Lonely Man of Faith that two Adams are being described: Adam I and Adam II, which seemingly inhabit different worlds.

“[T]he answer [to the discrepancies] lies not in an alleged dual tradition but in dual man, not in an imaginary contradiction between two versions but in a real contradiction in the nature of man. The two accounts deal with two Adams, two men, two fathers of mankind, two types, two representatives of humanity, and it is no wonder that they are not identical.”

Sometimes to fully understand an issue, simply providing one perspective would be insufficient. To properly develop and capture the momentous act of the creation of the world by G-d, both Adams and the communities he will create are necessary to grasp this. When encountering challenges in the world we must not simply rely on one simplistic direction, rather we must fully utilize all of our composite parts and people we know to handle all the complex problems we face, together.
