INTRODUCTIONS TO THE LAWS OF SHEMA

BY RABBI ADAM FRIEDMANN

AFRIEDMANN@TORONTOTORAH.COM

Reading the Shema Near Disgusting Things

When the Torah describes the Jewish army camp it says that because G-d dwells in the camp it must be held to a high standard of holiness. One thing the Talmud derives from this is that it's forbidden to read the Shema, pray, or learn Torah in a disgusting setting. This includes in a bathroom or bath house, or in the presence of excrement, garbage, or bad smells.

This halachah is about the reverence we show for Torah and speaking with G-d. Refraining from engaging in these things in disgusting places is a sign of respect. One who is not careful about this fails to inculcate the proper reverence for the Torah and mitzvot. This leads to a distorted spiritual worldview. The Talmud warns that this person will ultimately come to belittle and ridicule G-d.

The general rule regarding excrement is that it should be neither seen nor smelled. This means that it must be out of one's line of sight, either to the side or behind. With regards to smell, one should distance themselves four amot (about 2.5 meters) beyond the point where they can no longer detect the smell. If the excrement is covered and one cannot smell it, there is more room for leniency. Therefore, one may pray in the presence of a baby with a soiled diaper if there is no odor.

(Devarim 23:15; Shabbat 150a; Berachot 24b; Ein Aya, Berachot 3:54; Shulchan Aruch Orach Chaim 85-87; Rav Hershel Shachter, cited on Halachipedia)

D'VAR TORAH BY RABBI METZGER

CMETZGER@TORONTOTORAH.COM

What is so remarkable about Yitro's advice to Moshe to set up a system of judges? How was Yitro the only one who noticed Moshe and the people withering away?

Rabbi Yehuda Amital zt"l (1924-2010, Holocaust Survivor and one of the founding Roshei Yeshiva of Yeshivat Har Etzion) explained that the people would come to Moshe not only because of their thirst for knowledge but to connect to Moshe, their Rebbe. To this end, the people brought all sorts of questions large and small, and would wait all day long.

Yitro arrived as an outsider, and therefore it was easier for him to recognize the flaws inherent in the setup, and how this process would eventually wither both Moshe and the people.

Moshe was aware that his method could have been more efficient, but he sought to connect to the people and respond to them. Often when we are approached with questions or requests, we immediately search for the most economical and direct method of resolving the issue. This method has its purpose in the world of business or industry, but we must never forget about the person opposite us, and make sure we are truly answering the correct query and need.
