

Shabbat Shalom everyone, שבת שלום לכולם

We hope you all are well and safe, we are so happy to see you and we miss you so much!
As you probably know We are in our home in Israel, in quarantine- day 12 woo!!

Last time we saw you at shul we told you we have to go back to Israel on Thursday of that week, according to our supervisors- well, that didn't happen eventually.

What do we mean by that? A day after we were in shul, on Sunday night, we got a text from UJA that told us that our flight was moved to Monday, which means- we had less than 24 hours for our flight, and we still didn't pack.

This took both of us by such a surprise, both of us were out at the moment and as soon as we saw this text we went back home and packed everything we have.

Luckily, our host moms were so nice and helped us pack all night. Without them, we honestly don't know how we would've packed.

And basically that's it, just like that we were on our way back to Israel, with a mask and gloves on, and mostly shocked.

It was very difficult, but we think because it all happened so fast we still haven't processed everything. And suddenly our life changed from super busy- no time to breath, to us staying in a room for two weeks.

It's a strange feeling, it's like being at home but not really. And we should initially be happy being here in Israel, but not under these circumstances, so everything is just so... weird, we are sure you know what we mean by that.

But overall we try and make the most out of this situation, we try to have fun in quarantine and we think about stuff that we can do with you even from here, so stay tuned for that! Because we are not going anywhere!

We love you and miss you, thank you so much for letting us do this weird dvar during this strange time, and we have one question- who's bringing us the challah and egg salad?

Toda Raba and Shabbat Shalom!
