Please welcome Tami to the Congregation Ohr Torah family. We thank Anna Chosak for her nearly 2 years of service. ## TORAH THOUGHT:

Ha'Azinu: Looking Back at the Tower of Babel

Hi, my name is Joe Berger. I am currently living in Givat Shmuel, Israel and finishing up my service in the IDF. I will be starting a program at Bar Ilan University in just a few weeks in pursuit of a law degree. I was recently back in West Orange for Rosh Hashana when I found out that Ohr Torah has been putting a Dvar Torah written by a different member of the community in the newsletter every week. I think this is an incredible initiative and a great opportunity for members of the Shul to commit to learning a Parsha well and sharing Torah with the rest of the community.

As we approach the end of Sefer Devarim and B'nei Yisrael is inching towards entering Eretz Yisrael, Moshe begins to chant a set of cryptic, poetic verses in which he describes at length Hashem's extreme kindness and mercy despite B'nei Yisrael being unworthy of such treatment.

In the second Aliyah, Moshe briefly alludes to the generation that was responsible for building the tower of Babel, the דור הפלגה (the generation that got separated by different languages) These p'sukim are particularly cryptic, but with Rashi's help, we understand that Moshe is telling B'nei Yisrael that although Hashem had the inclination to destroy the entire generation, He chose not to do so because the 70 members of Ya'akov's family (i.e. B'nei Yisrael) were destined to come from members of this generation. We see from this a theme that is very prevalent this time of year - the fact that Hashem is able to put aside the sins of even an entire generation because He can see the good that even a small group will do in the future.

In the very next passuk, as a follow up reason as to why Hashem did not destroy the דור הפלגה, Moshe states the following: כי חלק ה' עמו יעקב חבל נחלתו: "For Hashem's share is his people; Jacob, the portion of his possession". The specific language that this passuk uses is interesting as well. The Netziv* and Rashi both point out that B'nei Yisrael is compared to a rope, but for slightly different reasons. The Netziv asserts that B'nei Yisrael is like a thicker rope. A thicker rope can be made up of thousands of little strands. However, when one looks from the outside, he can only see the finely woven rope that is made up as a result. When Hashem looked at the 70 members of Ya'akov's family, he saw only the finished product - the complete rope, rather than all the small, frayed strands. Hashem was not looking at the individual sins that those 70 individual people would commit. Rather, He saw the tremendous potential of the Jewish people as a whole. Rashi views the "rope" metaphor slightly differently. He says that Ya'akov's merit encompassed those of both his father, Yitzchak, and his Grandfather, Avraham, just as a rope is compacted by three smaller strands. In this merit, not only did Ya'akov and his children deserve to be saved, but also the entire דור הפלגה that acted with such hostility towards Hashem.

Looking at these interpretations, we can understand that the merits of our forefathers coupled with our potential to do good in the future bring Hashem to a state of mercy and compassion that hold back His desire to destroy us in our times of disobedience. This duality is extremely apparent during the עשרת ימי תשובה (ten days of repentance) which we have just completed. On Rosh Hashana, we plead to Hashem to remember the good deeds of our forefathers and save us in their merit. In the following days leading up to Yom Kippur, we show Hashem that we as a nation have the potential to achieve great things in the future and that we should therefore be inscribed in the book of life. גמר חתימה טובה!

*The Netziv was Rosh Yeshiva of the famed Volozhin Yeshiva for almost 40 Years until it was closed by the Russian government in 1892.

Over the course of the next few months, we will have different people write a D'var Torah for the newsletter. The goal is to hear words of Torah from other Ohr Torah members and learn a little about who they are. I encourage everyone to participate. Please email me at Rabbi@congregationohrtorah.org if you would like to volunteer to share your ideas with us. Torah unites our nation. We are really excited about this project and I hope it will strengthen our bonds as a community.
