

Igor Zinkov's rabbinic ordination

Photograph: Zoë Norfolk

West London Synagogue was packed with guests from France, Russia and Israel for the ordination of four new rabbis on 7 July. Rabbi Igor Zinkov, who was one of the four and who joins the LJS full-time on 1 September, began his sermon with the words from the Shema: 'You shall love the Eternal One your God with all your heart, with all your soul and all your might... ' and ended with another well-known quotation on love: I come to you, he told us, 'From Russia with Love'.

A few days earlier Igor had presented the subject of his highly-regarded MA dissertation to colleagues and faculty at Leo Baeck College. Entitled 'Guard my tongue from evil (Berachot 17a): Jewish Concepts of Ethical Communication and Social Media', he explained how he had developed social media guidelines for Jewish organisations drawing on classical rabbinic texts and principles. We look forward to hearing more about this important work. For now, we say mazal tov to Rabbi Igor, and wish him all the very best.

Council Report

'For Everything there is a Season...' (Kohélet, Chapter 3)

This Chairman's Report is written during the Council's summer break and looks ahead to the new year and back to our previous Council meeting held in July. At that meeting, we welcomed Simon Van Someren and Harriett Goldenberg as new Trustees. As has become our practice, we opened the new Council (for 2019-2020) with a prayer in front of the open ark in the sanctuary, reminding us of our underlying values as progressive Jews.

The July meeting itself was a preparation for the coming year. We took part in a brainstorming session ready for the updating of the strategic plan: more on this next month when we will be asking for your views.

The summer, when the Nursery School is not in session, is the opportunity for the LJS to undertake any major rebuilding works and as I write, the toilet refurbishment is well underway. It is too early for me to comment on progress, but I would like to thank everyone involved: Lysa Schwartz, our Executive Director, the caretakers and office staff for working to ensure the LJS runs as smoothly as possible during this period. We are aware that some of our regular activities are being disrupted and are grateful to everyone for being so patient: it will all be worth it!

August is also the time of preparation for the autumn and the High Holy Days. Because of changes in the law relating to charities' eligibility to claim Gift Aid, we have had to alter our pricing policy for the High Holy Days visitors' tickets. This means that we will be implementing a mandatory administration fee of £45 per ticket and will be asking visitors to make a donation of £200 to support the work and activities of the LJS. If we do not carry out these changes, we will no longer be entitled to claim Gift Aid, resulting in the loss of substantial revenue for us. Members are welcome to apply for tickets for friends and family (but will not be able to purchase visitor tickets in lieu of membership fees).

The charities for the Yom Kippur Appeal 2019 have now been chosen and thanks go to Tim Simon and the committee who consider the many applications received by the LJS. This year the charities are Noah's Ark Children's Hospice in Barnet; Liberal Judaism's proposal to raise money for bursaries for Leo Baeck College rabbinic students; and Leket Israel, a National Food Bank scheme supporting the very large numbers of poor people in Israel. More details on these will be shortly sent out to you.

Council returns to its regular monthly meetings in September when our first focus will be on planning for the year ahead. September also brings the start of the High Holy Days with Erev Rosh Hashanah on Sunday evening, 29th September. Please check you have paid your membership fees in order to receive your High Holy Day tickets.

Sue Head, Chairman of Council

Tribute to Walter Wolfgang

23 June 1923 – 28 May 2019

Many of us still remember watching the news in 2005, and seeing an elderly man ignominiously ejected from the Labour Party Conference for shouting out 'Nonsense!' in response to Jack Straw's justification of the Iraq War. We admired his courage, were shocked by the way he was treated, and then we realised this was none other than LJS Member, Walter Wolfgang, a long-time regular at Shabbat morning and festival services.

Born to Jewish parents in Frankfurt in 1923, a teenage Walter was sent off to the UK in 1937 to escape from Nazi Germany. Joined by his parents in 1939, Walter was to take over the family leather factory business, later becoming an accountant.

Walter's political beliefs were underpinned by his Jewish faith, and he drew inspiration from the story of the Exodus. It was fitting that the last service Walter attended at the LJS, only a month before he died, was the Pesach morning service. Walter was also inspired by the teachings of the Hebrew prophets with their ideals of equity, justice and peace for all. This thinking propelled him to the political views he not only held but acted on, remaining a committed socialist and peace activist throughout his long life. An indefatigable campaigner and passionate speaker, Walter was a Labour Party member for 70 years, served on the National Executive Committee, and stood as a Labour candidate in Croydon. He was one of the founding members of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, becoming its Vice-President, and was Chair of Labour CND.

Thoughtful, kind, generous, and capable of great friendship, Walter was a man of integrity who showed true moral courage.

Social Action

Food is an ever-present theme of the High Holy Days: apples and honey, family recipes for honey cake, sharing our table with family and friends; then the absence of food – voluntary fasting going hand in hand with contemplation and personal reflection ten days later on Yom Kippur.

So as we enter into the spirit of the High Holy Day season on 21 September at Selichot, we are presented with a logical moment to launch our Food Sustainability campaign and projects. Prior to the service, a panel of speakers, including our own Geraldine van Bueren, will address issues of food sustainability and child poverty.

And there's more. You may have noticed the yellow wheelie bin from Sufra, a local food bank on the Edgware Road that we are now supporting and collecting for. Last year The Avenues, a local Youth Club, was one of the beneficiaries of our High Holy Day Appeal. They are one of the few remaining youth facilities in London. We are hoping to be involved with providing monthly teas for the 30-40 children aged 8 to 13 who regularly attend.

And this is just a beginning. Do watch this space and Shalom LJS for further Social Action activities. If you'd like more information or would like to be involved please contact me at: hgoldenbergt@btinternet.com

Shanah Tovah to all.

Harriett Goldenberg (Chair of Social Action)

Introducing jazz musician Peter Werth

LJS member Peter Werth, who is performing for us on 3 November, has been playing drums since the age of 18. His first engagement was at the Astor Club in Berkeley Square, followed by gigs in a cabaret band touring the US Air Force bases across the UK, and a year as a dance band drummer at the famous Lyceum Ballroom (now a theatre) in Covent Garden. After many years as a (hungry) jobbing musician, he ventured into fashion design and ran a successful menswear business till 10 years ago. Throughout his business career he played drums as a semi-pro in function bands until he caught the jazz bug and studied for five years with renowned drummer Mark Fletcher who encouraged him to start up his own jazz ensemble in 2015. The band he formed boasts some of the best musicians and vocalists on the London jazz scene. Peter and his Jazz Crew specialise in what is known as straight-ahead bebop consisting of tunes written by some of the jazz legends of the 60s and songs from the Great American Songbook. They have played at Ronnie Scott's and many jazz gigs across the country, and have a monthly residency at The Scolt Head jazz venue in north London.

Preparing for the Yamim Nora'im – the Days of Awe

“ We live in a time when human actions are the cause of great suffering, a source for unimaginable destructive power, and the reason for irreversible environmental damage. And yet we also live in a time of hope. A time when young people are engaged more than ever in cultivating their minds, their compassionate hearts and mindful action.”

(Ogyen Trinley Dorje, quoted in Generation Y, Spirituality and Social Change, edited by Justine Afra Huxley, 2019)

The month of Ellul, which began on 1 September and which provides four weeks of preparation for Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, is a time for introspection and self-examination. In traditional communities, Selichot – prayers for forgiveness – are recited on a daily basis. In our own congregation, the beautiful service on the Saturday night, a week before Rosh Hashanah, is held in the Sanctuary, distilling the prayers and music of the festivals in an hour of quiet meditation and reflection. It is here that we attempt to drive our attention away from the external chaos and anxieties of our world and give ourselves time to think about our human existence, how we can change and become more true to ourselves.

It is hard to be engaged in this annual check-up of spiritual health. We have squeezed the time we used to have to prepare for Yom Kippur into a few hours snatched away from work, college, school and other claims on our attention. In Stefano Massini's beautifully written play, The Lehman Trilogy, a character reflects on the practice of sitting shiva for seven days for a family member, whittled down to three days in the next generation, and then to three minutes for his descendants.

It would be desperately sad to lose our festivals of repentance and atonement in a similar way and fail to pass on to the next generation the powerful message of these Yamim Nora'im. Because we need them: our beaten up souls require the healing and interior convalescence that prayer offers. We need to sit with our community on these occasions, to be in silence, to listen to the beating of our heart, to the beating of the heart of a suffering world, and take ourselves away from the constant battering of bad news. What is the health of our hearts and spirits as we witness millions suffering because of poor leadership, economic hardship, civil war, humanitarian crises? How can we have hope for a better future when women and children suffer from sexual abuse and violence on a daily basis, when new revelations of incest, paedophilia and brutality are brought to light? What does it do to our sense of hope to see voters choose populist leaders, coalitions of ambitious and elitist individuals, scarcely in touch with those they lead?

Pittsburgh, the Philippines, Christchurch, Sri Lanka - these are the names of the places where hundreds were killed this past year because of bigotry and hatred: Jews, Muslims and Christians in their places of worship, ordinary men, women and children, peaceful and hard-working, whose lives were cut down or forever changed by a single individual, pedalling hateful and murderous ideas.

In our own country, the drive towards a 'no-deal' Brexit fills many with a visceral fear that good money is being thrown after bad, that the ever-widening gap between rich and poor won't abate, that where resources are needed – early childhood centres, youth provision for young people to get off the streets during holidays and after school, pastoral support in schools and much-needed money to reduce austerity – will be side-lined and forgotten as we prepare to leave the EU.

And hanging above all this, determining the future of our planet and the age in which we live, is global warming and the climate emergency, the legacy we have bequeathed thoughtlessly to our children in the last 50 years as our consumption of the earth's resources has risen and now imperils the very existence of numberless species, endangers lives and threatens to bring this age to an end.

'There are days when it all feels like too much – the violence, injustice, inequality and exploitation of humans, our home, and the other species we share this home with... But I have to remind myself that we're on a journey and it's not just downhill...' (Vero Lopes da Silva, in Generation Y, Spirituality and Social Change). These words come from a book that is full of hope, full of stories of success and positive examples of change. It is a book of young people's voices, Generation Y, whose motivation for change is more powerful, more uplifting, more willing to break down boundaries and build bridges, more courageous about facing the future together.

We cannot be fearful, for nothing positive comes out of a space of fear. Generation Y are helping us to acknowledge that many remarkable things are happening: eco projects, working in refugee camps, tackling racism and sexism – we need to remember that there are individuals and communities who come together to form powerful networks that deal with the issues of our times, all feeding into something that is much greater.

And at the heart of this sacred activism – whether small networks and groups or Extinction Rebellion, or the voices of young people like Greta Thunberg – where the pain lies deep within us, grief for the state of the world, for its social inequalities, the catastrophe that is engulfing the environment and the chaos of our politics, there is a desire to transform that pain into action. Pain makes us vulnerable and open; it connects us to a profound awareness of what is blessed and what is cursed. Beyond our differences, beyond our religious institutions and the political gulfs that separate us, we must realise that we inhabit the same universe and join forces to resist domination, oppression and violence.

May our preparation for the Yamim Nora'im fill us with purpose and hope, and enable us to find a spiritual space that will promote deeper understanding, more listening and mutual learning now and in the future. L'shanah tovah tikkateivu – May you and your dear ones be inscribed for a good year.

TUESDAY TEXTS

This friendly group is led by our rabbis. We study biblical and rabbinic texts, modern poetry and short stories, and enjoy sessions on Jewish art and music. The starting point is always a text or painting, whether ancient or modern, but the class is based around discussion on a variety of different topics. New students are always welcome.

TUESDAY EVENINGS 7.00-8.00pm

Classes run from 17 September – 10 December
(no class on Kol Nidre, Tuesday 8 October or during half-term on 22 October)

Classical and Prayer Book Hebrew for Beginners
Tutor: Susannah Alexander

Have you tried to get your head around Hebrew letters for years and never quite achieved success? If so, join this fun and supportive class, where we use a tried-and-tested method to get you reading faster than you thought possible. Beginning with Jonathan Romain's Signs and Wonders, we move on to a taste of grammar, liturgy and the Bible.

Next Steps in Prayer Book Hebrew

Tutor: Dr Sally Gold

This course is to improve your understanding and confidence in Hebrew. We will be learning the Hebrew of the Tanakh (Bible) on the path towards greater enjoyment and participation in synagogue services. We practise reading simple Hebrew from the Siddur and the Hebrew Bible, building reading skills, knowledge of vocabulary and simple grammar at an unhurried pace.

Reading the Psalms in Hebrew

Tutor: Rabbi Alexandra Wright

The Psalms are intensely personal songs of praise, lament and yearning. Many are familiar to us – ‘The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want...’; ‘I will lift up mine eyes to the hills...’. Some are read or sung in our Friday evening, Shabbat morning or festival liturgies. But how are they constructed, how do they sound in Hebrew, and what are they really saying? Join a class for Hebrew readers (at any pace that is comfortable for you) which will help you with your reading and understanding, and open up one of the most beautiful books in the Bible in its original language.

TUESDAY EVENINGS 8.00-9.00pm

Classes run from 17 September – 10 December (no class on Kol Nidre, Tuesday 8 October or during half-term on 22 October)

Exploring Judaism

Tutor: Rabbi Igor Zinkov

Exploring Judaism is for people, including non-Jewish family members, who wish to know more about Judaism or who would like to brush up on their Hebrew knowledge. It is also an essential programme of instruction for people choosing Judaism by conversion. Class members are encouraged to read the materials made available online during the year. In addition to offering knowledge of Judaism, the course encourages practical experiences of Liberal Judaism and space for reflection within the group. Resources can be found on: www.ljsexploringjudiasm.wordpress.com

SHABBAT MORNINGS 9.45-10.45am

Classes run from 14 September – 7 December
(no classes on 19 and 26 October during half-term)

Beginners' Hebrew

Tutor: Naomi Brightwell

This class uses Jonathan Romain's Signs and Wonders to help absolute beginners decode Hebrew. Classes include a little bit of grammar and vocabulary, the structure of the liturgy, plenty of off-topic conversations on Jewish food, and anything else that helps us have fun while learning. No previous knowledge is required. Former students have even gone on to lead Shabbat morning services!

Key to Understanding Classical Hebrew

Tutor: Dr Dov Softi

This class is designed to increase students' understanding of classical Hebrew as used both in the Torah and the Siddur. We study using Prayer Book Hebrew the Easy Way (available for purchase £27.00) and aim to complete it by the end of the academic year. Each lesson involves a mixture of reading, learning vocabulary and grammar, and translating from Hebrew to English. Students are expected to be able to read with reasonable fluency and to know how to write in block Hebrew script. New students are particularly welcome.

Intermediate Hebrew

Tutor: Nitza Spiro

The aim of this class is to allow the students to explore different Hebrew texts which they will come across in synagogue services on Shabbatot and festivals – from the morning blessings of the Tefillah to the Books of Ruth and Esther, and much more. The class will work on increasing fluency in reading, but at the same time will also explore the historical, ethical, philosophical and ideological messages of the texts.

Exploring the Psalms in English

Tutor: Michael Romain

Addressing the question as to how reading the Psalms can help us in today's world, we will be looking at a number of different Psalms, led by our rabbis and other teachers. No previous knowledge is required. If you would like to know more, please contact Michael Romain on 07818 000849.

Celebrating Jo Kessler's special birthday

Jo Kessler is not one to seek the limelight. She is one of those unassuming people who quietly and efficiently make things happen behind the scenes. She has contributed hugely to the LJS and the wider community in countless practical ways, and in 1996 was awarded an MBE for her services to the community in London. In celebration of her 90th birthday, we hear Jo's story.

Jo's connection with the LJS goes back to December 1938 when she arrived in the UK from Vienna on one of the early Kindertransports. A meeting had been held at the LJS calling on Members to sponsor refugee children, leading to Jo being supported by three LJS families.

During her time at boarding school in Kent and subsequent evacuation to Dorset, Judaism didn't play a prominent part in Jo's life, though she somewhat reluctantly completed her weekly correspondence course. Returning to London in 1946, she attended Confirmation classes at the LJS and started to have Jewish friends. She met Willie Kessler, our much-loved former President who sadly died in July, at evening classes at the LSE, and they were married at the LJS in 1952 by Rabbi Leslie Edgar – the Edgars having been one of the three families who had originally sponsored her. It was after the birth of their four sons, each of whom attended Religion School to Confirmation, that Jo and Willie became heavily involved with synagogue life. An invitation arrived from the LJS inviting them to join the Younger Members' Organisation, which they duly did, and which changed their lives dramatically.

Jo joined the Women's Society, later becoming its Secretary, and was instrumental in setting up the Community Care group, now an integral part of the LJS. Jo's many and various volunteering tasks included running the Nursery School, providing tea parties, setting up Friday night dinners, involvement with the initial Nosh 'n'

Drosh sessions, helping organise the Communal Seder, establishing Video and Tea, and assisting at the Out and About Club as well as Restaurant Tuesday. In addition to all this, when rabbis from the USA joined the LJS, Jo helped their families find accommodation and schools for their children.

Although Jo has helped people across the age range, she has always taken a special interest in the elderly. She would invite older Members to her home for lunch and arranged outings – known as 'Jo's Journeys' – to places of interest. A particular enterprise, the Peggy Lang House – the very first Jewish Abbeyfield Society Home – played a prominent part in Jo's life. She was a key player in the team who ensured the smooth running of this successful project which expanded to include two further Abbeyfield Homes offering residents accommodation, meals, care and entertainment.

In recent times, with Willie having been unwell before his death, and Jo now advancing in years, it's been the LJS's turn to offer support, and Jo says this is being done beautifully. But even so, Jo – who remains unbelievably youthful – is still visiting the sick and is still very much the matriarch of the Kessler family.

Everyone at the LJS congratulates you, Jo, on your special birthday, and sends heartfelt thanks for your decades of selfless volunteering which has greatly enhanced the lives of so many in our community.

Winners of the LAFTA!

Congratulations go to everyone at the LJS, especially Rimon students, who were involved in the short documentary film which was joint winner with Brighton & Hove Progressive Synagogue of this year's LAFTA (Liberal Academy for Film and Torah Awards). This is a competition where Liberal Judaism religion schools are asked to make a short film on a Jewish topic, the theme of which is linked to that selected for the LJ Day of Celebration. This year the theme was 'the individual and the community', and the LJS film focusses on the activities of the Drop-In for Asylum-Seeker Families for which Rimon students volunteer. In it they explain with great thoughtfulness why they choose to volunteer and what they get out of it. To watch the film, go to: <https://youtu.be/ZIVAW3z0F1o>

The values of the Drop-In are:

Community, Openness, Mutual respect, Meaningful, Understanding, Non-judgemental, Inclusive, Trust and Yes – an affirmation of support for our social justice programme.

Together these values build the word 'Community', which is at the heart of Liberal Judaism. This wonderful film shows this in action.

Bar Mitzvah Boy Raymon Benedyk

When a 13-year-old Raymon Benedyk, later to become our Synagogue Secretary, was asked by his father whether he wanted a Bar Mitzvah, the answer was a resounding 'no'. The negative experiences recounted by some six or seven older male cousins had put him off the idea. But a mere 80 years later, he changed his mind, and so it was that the Benedyk family and the LJS congregation had the great pleasure of attending Raymon's delayed Bar Mitzvah ceremony on 13 July.

After Kiddush, Raymon addressed a very well-attended Nosh 'n' Drosh session, focussing on his time as a 'Bevin Boy' – a largely unacknowledged aspect of World War II. By 1943 Britain was becoming desperate for coal required both for the war effort and for keeping homes warm. To address the manpower shortage, Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labour and National Service, implemented a scheme whereby one in ten young men called up for service would be randomly selected to work in the mines even if they had, as was the case with Raymon, volunteered to serve in the fighting forces.

Raymon was one such recruit and was dispatched to Doncaster. The vivid description which he gave of just how arduous and dangerous this work was made a great impression on us. We learned that a high proportion of the 48,000 'Bevin Boys', as they became known, suffered terrible and long-lasting injuries, and many died. They additionally had to bear hurtful and completely unjustified accusations that they were deliberately avoiding military conscription. Indeed, it wasn't until 1995, the 50th anniversary of VE Day, that the Queen gave them proper recognition for their crucial role in helping win the war.

Despite so much darkness in his story, Raymon nevertheless delivered it with great wit. Everyone present was moved both by Raymon's later-in-life Bar Mitzvah and his gripping account of his wartime service.

We salute you, Raymon.
