RABBI ISAIAH JOSEPH ROTHSTEIN

RABBINIC SCHOLAR, PUBLIC AFFAIRS ADVISOR
JEWISH FEDERATIONS OF NORTH AMERICA

Rabbi Isaiah Rothstein most recently served as the Rabbi-in-Residence at Hazon: The Jewish Lab for Sustainability. Rav Isaih is an Orthodox Rabbi from Yeshiva University, author and public speaker. Rabbi Rothstein previously served as the Spiritual and Experiential Educator at Carmel Academy of Greenwich in Greenwich, CT, and he has worked on the faculty of Camp Yavneh in New Hampshire. He is best known for his essay "Color Erases, Color Paints" which generated extensive conversation within the Jewish community about race and diversity. Growing up in a multi-racial Chabad family in Monsey, NY, Rabbi Rothstein sees himself as a human bridge, connecting disparate parts of the Jewish community. Rothstein is a member of the Schusterman Foundation's ROI Fellowship and was listed as one of the Jewish Week's 36 Under 36. During his spare time, Rav Isaiah is writing a musical about Queen Esther and performs music with his band. Isaiah currently lives in Harlem, NY.
