

Tara Millman

Tara Millman has been a part of the Temple Sinai community since 2013. She joined the board during this past year while Covid was in full swing. She has been working as a part of the Operations team and will be taking over as VP of Operations shortly. Tara, her husband Marty, and their two children Sebastian (10) and Travis (7), take advantage of all the events Temple Sinai has to offer for young children in particular. Her son Sebastian was a part of the inaugural class for the ECEP and Travis followed after. Temple Sinai has become a wonderful part of her life. She has built a strong community of friendships and she has helped run two successful fundraisers for the Temple - a Mah Jong Night for the ECEP and a Bingo Night for the Hebrew School. Tara and Marty both have deep roots in New Jersey. Tara is originally from Watchung and is a graduate of Kent Place School. Marty is from Millburn and both of them grew up as a part of Congregation B'nai Jeshurun just up the road. They are so happy to have a Temple in Summit that they love!

Prior to moving back to Summit in 2011, Tara was living in Manhattan. She graduated from Boston University in 2001 from the School of Communications and was a successful Real Estate Agent for ten years. She also worked at T-Mobile for four years in the Business to Business Division out of their corporate offices. Tara is a very organized person, a self-starter and loves to inspire and motivate people to do their best. This has led her to start her own business called "Time with Tara." Through this business she works in many capacities, some of which include a personal organizer, an events coordinator and an owner's representative on construction projects. She loves the different challenges her work brings and is excited to help keep Temple Sinai looking great.
