

Beloved Congregants and Friends,

Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the mighty?
Thou makest the wind to blow and the rain to fall.
The power of Nature is in Thy hand.
Reach out to us in this time of need:
Preserve us, lift us up,
And bring us through the storm to a place of peace,
From this time forth and forever.

At this time of extreme weather, we pray that all members of our temple family, along with their relatives and friends, should survive and thrive. Our congregation has moved from our beloved temple to online, but the bonds of friendship and affection that bound us before have only grown stronger.

Preserve all of us in health and happiness, so that we can look forward to uniting once again in Your Holy House.

With love,

Rabbi David Hartley Mark Cantor Javier Smolarz Pres. Rita Fleming-Klein
