

ONE G-D. ONE FAMILY.

Yonatan Betzalel

It wasn't a struggle, succumbing to fatigue on the road after such a long journey. On the highway, unlike in the skies, I didn't wrestle to find the perfect sleeping conditions, softer seats. The subtle sway of the suspension's gentle rocking. Unsurprisingly, my eyes closed with little resistance. As the sun set, I drifted into perfect repose.

When I awoke, it was abrupt and from a brash-sweep of light, and Hebrew. And the sight of an M-16. A chayal (soldier) at a machsom (checkpoint). Night had fallen and for a brief discombobulated moment, I had forgotten that I was on my very first visit to Israel.

That evening was October 2000. The Second Intifada. My introduction to the conflict between Israelis and Palestinians.

The Second Intifada opened my eyes to the brutal reality of what it means to be Jewish and Israeli in Eretz Yisrael. Amongst a sea of endless televised violence, I watched in horror the 2000 Ramallah lynching. Two milu'im (reserve duty) soldiers, Chief Sergeant Yossi Avrahami and Corporal Vadim Nurzhitz, made a wrong turn on their way to a military base. They drove into the Palestinian city of Ramallah. Tensions between Israelis and Palestinians were high, and Avrahami's and Nurzhitz's fates were sealed. Both soldiers were beaten and stabbed, and their bodies mutilated for all to see. I had never witnessed anything like this. All these years later, I cannot shake the image of Aziz Salha's blood-soaked hands waving from the window of the Ramallah police station that played over and over on the Israeli local news. That first visit, and the experience of living through the Second Intifada, sealed within me a connection with Israel that I had never felt with any other people or community.

My wife is Israeli. She made aliyah from the US with her family at age 6. Her brothers all served in elite combat units and continue to serve in milu'im. Zionism runs deep in her family. It also does in our Asian-Israeli family with our children who are all Israeli nationals. Watching the events of the October 7th attacks moved me in a way that I've never before experienced—even at the height of the Second Intifada. Grief is often described as appearing in stages, and, for the first time in my life, I've experienced just that. It comes in waves, and stages. And unexpectedly. When a thought turns to one of the countless horrific acts perpetuated by Hamas, tears and intense sadness, pain and sorrow swells. The past few weeks have left me in a mental fog, yet I still try to fulfill my obligations as husband, father and friend of Israel.

As details emerged about the massacres at kibbutzim Kfar Aza, Be'eri, Nachal Oz and the Re'im music festival, I turned to Jewish and non-Jewish friends for comfort. One close non-Jewish friend advised me to spend less time on social media and ignore the gruesome details. I responded, that the destiny of the Jewish people binds us all, whatever our fate and wherever we may be; especially so in Israel. It is not an option to avert our eyes, mute our ears or lessen our heart to the brutal tragedies and suffering in Israel.

During these times, I am reminded of a conversation with Rabbi Shlomo Riskin, when I met him for the first time and he explained to me what it meant to be part of the Jewish people.

"Being Jewish is like being part of an international club."

We are a club. A family. We are brothers and sisters. And family will always feel the pain of family. And we cannot abandon family in its time of greatest need.

It took approximately 5 years after that first meeting with Rabbi Riskin before I would formally declare my intentions to join the Jewish people. One of the most striking commitments one makes before becoming Jewish is affirming the following (paraphrased):

"Don't you know that in the present era, the Jews are afflicted, crushed, subjugated, strained, and suffering comes upon them?"

Perhaps I understood the words at the time, but only in syntax. The reality is, it is only now, following the horrific events of October 7th, that my heart and soul truly understand this commitment in a way that it had never before.

I hope that those who have experienced the loss of those who were close and beloved, those suffering from the uncertainty of family held captive, those brothers, sisters, fathers and mothers, who are serving and protecting Am Yisrael, find strength and courage together through this dark and challenging time. On a personal note, it is with the greatest respect, love and gratitude that I thank NJOP's Rabbi Ephraim Buchwald for making it possible for me to be a part of such an extraordinary people--the Jewish people and our special relationship to the one G-d.

Yonatan Betzalel grew up in Northern California and moved to New York in 1997 to pursue a BEA in Television & Film at NYU Tisch School of the Arts. While working on a student film, he met his future wife. Their family has grown to include three inspiring children in addition to their extensive family living in Israel.
