WHAT A DIFFERENCE A YEAR MAKES

by Nancy Miller

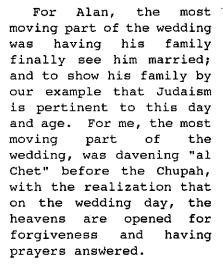

It's hard to believe that just one year ago Loday I was working on a D'var Torah for Lincoln Square's Beginners Service. Since I had so diligently spent the bitter cold months of the winter of 1992 attending, I felt the D'var Torah was my way of graduating. It's even harder to believe that the young man, whom I hardly knew at that time, who listened to me practice, is now my husband, Alan. As I look back on what I had prepared, I can see that my writing was full of enthusiasm, energy and uncertainty about the future, which I was anxious to share.

The year following that D'var Torah was probably one of the most significant years of my life. Shortly after "graduating" from the Beginners Service I visited Eretz Yisrael for the first time, on a remarkable mission led by Rabbi Ephraim Buchwald, and more importantly I started dating Alan, whom I married this past June in a ceremony performed by Rabbi chwald.

Alan's story is not so different from mine. Despite our very different backgrounds, there was one common denominator; we were both young Jewish adults living in the comfort and success which many young yuppies share in New York City. Nevertheless, we both felt incomplete, with no clear direction, having everything on the surface, yet feeling empty. Then, through the study of Torah, we both discovered the "truth." The wisdom of the Torah enabled us to focus on the more important aspects of our life.

Words cannot express the fulfillment and reward for all the sacrifices of the past, and hope and expectation of the future, that a Jewish way of life holds. This reward was clearly evident on our wedding day, sharing this occasion with the most important people in our lives. We were both very moved to see the many rabbis, who had taught and influenced us greatly, giving us their blessings under the Chupah. Sharing our joy at the beginning of our new life with our closest family members and new friends was particularly exciting.

The month of Elul is a perfect time to reflect on our actions of the past, and to pray and set goals for the future. It is my sincere hope that the New Year brings everyone as many blessings as I've been fortunate enough to have, as I too am looking inwardly with the hope that I can continue to grow in my relationship with Hashem and the people I am close to; as well as the many new people I hope to meet. G-d willing, "Am Yisroel" will all soon be in Eretz Yisrael, with the prompt arrival of Mashiach.

Nancy Miller is a graduate of the Beginners Service at Lincoln Square Synagogue in New York and is an investment banker.
