TASHLICH ON THE HUDSON

By Judith Spiegelman

Tashlich always has a mix of poetry and agic for me, with breadcrumbs turning into sins and flowing waters carrying them far away from us. That's what brought me down to the promenade on Riverside Park with some thirty other West End Synagogue members on the second day of Rosh Hashana. The weather was beautiful--with a hot, hot sun beating down on us.

While our "sins" were obligingly sailing upstream towards Albany, or floating out to the Atlantic, suddenly a friendly male voice called out: "Anybody here who didn't hear the shofar-come with me."

Sheepishly, a bunch of us gathered round a pleasant-faced, middleaged man with a trim brown beard and moustache who reached into his pocket and pulled out a small shofar with a single curl.

Under a burning sun, while mothers behind us pushed baby carriages and joggers pounded the pavement, the man blew the entire shofar service for us, sending up into the sky tekiyah after tekiyah, teruah after teruah, sh'vorim galore and when it came to the Tekiyah Gedola--the great

(and last) blast of all, it was so smooth...so long...strong and fervent that (as Jewish tradition believes) it seemed to pierce the very heavens and reach the throne of G-d.

The man with the horn turned out to be Rabbi Ephraim Buchwald of Lincoln Square Synagogue. He learned to blow the shofar when he was 8 years old, and had just brought his shofar-blowing skill to the apartments of six home-bound elderly in the community. "I must have blown at least one hundred blasts for each of them today, so my lips are a bit swollen," the rabbi confided.

Blowing the whole shofar service again for us was his last mitzvah on that sacred day--a musical mitzvah which linked us back through the ages to our forefathers and foremothers who heard the shofar's call, just as we had, in the great outdoors, and answered with swift feet to stand at Mount Sinai and receive the Torah.

Judith Speigelman has written children's and adult books on cross-cultural, as well as historical topics. Currently she is working on her mother's memoir. This article was reprinted with permission from the April 2003 edition of Kolenu: The Voice of WES.

TZEITCHEM L'SHALOM/FAREWELL (To live and/or study in Israel)

Baruch Yisrael (Bob) Hill

TODAH RABBAH

To Dr. Leonard Davidman, who so ably conducted the Beginners Service throughout the summer. To Dr. Stuart Blaustein, for filling in when Dr. Davidman was away.

Phil Sokol

Phil Sokol attended the Beginners Service in the early 1990s together with his son Sam who was then about 11 years old. The precocious young Sam enlivened the Beginners Service with his penetrating questions and forthright style. Phil patiently sat through the services and watched Sam blossom into a lovely young man and serious Torah scholar. His untimely passing at age 54 leaves us all bereft and saddened. Condolences, as well, to his wife Rose.

Ed Weintraub

Ed Weintraub (age 60) spent a relatively short time in the Beginners Service, but left a remarkable impression on everyone. He had an engaging and most pleasant personality, and an abiding desire to grow in his Judaism. A resident of Harrisburg, PA, he and his wife, Bonnie, kept the melodies and the joy of the Beginners Service alive in the Keystone state, where they were well known for their hospitality and outreach efforts. Condolences to the entire family.
