THE KING'S VINEYARD

It was wonderful to welcome back Rabbi Mark Weingarten for a warm, engaging, and insightful Shabbat Nachamu. After spending several years in our community, it was exciting to see how his path in medical school was channeled to enhance his Torah learning and insights. Following your requests, additional copies of Rabbi Weingarten's new Sefer, the King's Vineyard, will be available for pickup from the office with a handwritten inscription. All funds from the book sale will be given to tzedaka and a portion will go directly to our shul. Please fill out the order form linked in the electronic echod and choose a payment method:

- Venmo $20 to Michael-Weingarten43
- Send a payment through paypal (link in electronic echod)
- Send a check to: Michael Weingarten charity fund—

Dvar Torah

This week's parsha is called Eikev, which in Hebrew translates to "the heel of your foot" but in the context of the Torah it means the word "because." The words in the parsha say "because you will keep these mitzvot, Hashem will give you all of these brachot." Rashi asks, why is the word eikev used in this way when it normally means heel? Rashi answers his own question, explaining that when a person keeps the mitzvot, even the ones that are easily "stepped over" he/she will be rewarded with many brachot and blessings. An example of this is the importance of saying both Birkat Hamazon when we wash for bread (which is a mitzvah we do often) and making a bracha prior to eating food. It's easy for the little bracha here and there to slip by us. Eikev reminds us of the importance of every single mitzvah, and never "stepping over" the little guy.

After Shul, Ask Your Children:

1. What does the word Eikev mean in Hebrew?
2. How Eikev used in this weeks parsha?
3. Why does Rashi say the word Eikev is used?

Answers:
1. The heel of your foot
2. As the word "because"
3. Because the word "heel" teaches us not to step over or disregard mitzvot
