UPCOMING EVENTS

See event registration links in electronic Echod.

Sunday, May 9: 10:00AM: The Gurlitt Trove and the Nazi War Against "Degenerate" Art: Live from Israel! Led by Adele Wasser.

The Gurlitt Trove and the Nazi War Against "Degenerate" Art: Live from Israel! Led by Adele Wasser. The sensational discovery of a Nazi looted art trove in 2012 caused an uproar in the international media. Who was Cornelius Gurlitt? We will examine the consequences of Hitler's attempt to purify Germany both culturally and ethnically and the fate of the so-called Degenerate artists and their works. Adele is a docent at the Israel Museum in Jerusalem.

Sunday, May 9: 1:00PM: Shavuot Cheesecake Baking Tutorial.

Join Sarah Robinson on LSS Facebook Live as she chats, bakes, and shares her tips for a delicious cheesecake.

Monday May 10: 12:00pm: Celebrate Yom Yerushalaiym;

Divided and Reunited Jerusalem. Live from Israel! Join Jewish historian and Israeli guide Shulie Mishkin for this fascinating discussion. What did the city look during the nineteen years when it was split between Israel and Jordan? Jerusalem in the years between the War of Independence and the Six-Day War was an unusual place - a city with an international border through its heart, and with the Israeli side cut off from the holy places. What was life like?

Sunday, May 23, 8:00PM: Chodesh Sivan Shiur Led by community Intern, Mindy Schwartz Zolty. Shimon and Levi at Shechem: Murderers or Defenders of the Innocent? Sponsored by Francine and Jay Cinnamon to commemorate the 60th Yahrzeit of Francine's mother, Lea Nagel a"n, Leya bat Shmuel v'Gittel Rivka.

Thursday, June 3, 7:30PM: Moadon Ha'Sefer: Israeli authors book club. The next book that we will read (in either English or Hebrew) is The Literary Murder: A Critical Case (Retzach Ba'Chug Lesifrut) by Batya Gur. The book is available from both Amazon and Barnes & Noble.

YOUTH AND MAGEN AVRAHAM TEEN DEPARTMENT

Dvar Torah:

This week, we'll conclude Vayikra with a double Parsha, Behar and Bechukotai. Behar discusses concepts of the land, including shemita, working for six years, resting the land on the seventh. After seven cycles of the "shemita," the 50th year is called yovel. The yovel year is also a year of rest: all the servants that had been working on the land are able to go free and the land goes back to its original owner.

In Bechukotai 26:8, Hashem tells us that if we keep the mitzvot, we'll be fruitful and strong: "Five of you will chase away one hundred of the enemy, and one hundred of you will chase away 10,000 of the enemy." We saw this come true during The Six Day War in 1967; hundreds of Israeli soldiers were able to chase away thousands of attackers. The end of Bechukotai is a Tochecha, a rebuke, of what happens if we don't keep the mitzvot. And even in that instance, where the Jewish people are exiled into galut, Hashem says he will keep the treaty with the Jewish people.

After Shul ask your children:

What year is the shemita year?
(The seventh year)

When was the yovel year?
(The 50th year)

How do we see Parshat Bechukotai come alive in modern history?
(We saw this come true during The Six Day War in 1967; hundreds of Israeli soldiers were able to chase away thousands of attackers.)

DVAR TORAH

Parashat Behar-Bechukotai / Shabbat Mevarchim

By: Nathan Rosen

Curse – What is the real curse?

In today's Parsha, G-d promises that if we keep His commandments, we will enjoy material prosperity and dwell securely in the land of Israel. But He also warns us of the dire consequences if we abandon our covenant with Him.

It is only natural to fear hunger during the Sabbatical seventh year when we are commanded to refrain from sowing, pruning, reaping, or gathering the harvest: G-d reassures us, however, that the abundance of the previous six years will carry us through for the next three years. G-d promises, as well, that if we follow His commandments, we will have security, peace, military success, timely rain, and plentiful food. Unfortunately, the inverse is also true; if we do not obey G-d and do not observe His commandments, the People of Israel will pay a steep price. In Leviticus 26:26, we are warned that the penalties of nonobservance are wide-ranging and terrible: "I will break for you the staff of bread, ten women will bake your bread in a single oven, and they will dole out your bread by weight, and though you will eat, you shall not be satisfied."

בְּשִׁבְרִי לָכֵן, מִטֶּה-לָּחֶם, וְאִפֹּי עֶשֶׂר נָשִׁים לֶחֶמְכֶם בְּתֵנּוֹר אֶחָד, וְהִשִּׁיבוּ לְחֶמְכֶם בְּמִשְׁקָל; וְאִכְלֵתֶם, וְלֹא תִשְׂבְּעוּ.

Although there are many puzzling pieces to this Pasuk, the phrase "You will eat, you shall not be satisfied," is of particular interest to me. One way to understand this verse is to look at other examples in the Tanakh where people eat but are not satisfied: Haggai 1:6: "eat without being satisfied"; Micah 6:14: "eat but not be satisfied"; Isaiah 9:19: "eat on the left hand and is not satisfied"; and Hoshea 4:10: "they shall eat, but not be sated." Another way to comprehend the meaning is to look for examples where the Torah mentions the opposite: "Eat and be satisfied." Deuteronomy 8:10, requires a person to thank G-d (Birkat haMazon) after they have eaten and are satisfied.

But commentators on Leviticus 26:26 recognize that given the context of a famine, the simple p'shat would be that nobody has sufficient food to eat. Rashbam articulates this and says it is "because the rations are so inadequate as it is weighed out, and in rationed portions." But not all the commentators are content with that answer. Rashi identified seven punishments from this verse as the curse, including the destruction of the food supply and crumbly bread. But he goes on to add "a curse in the intestines" following the Sifra for Bechukotai, Chapter 6:2, who defines this as a famine of intestinal commotion.

Other commentators go even further and express that it is more than just the lack of quantity of food. Rashbam provides an alternative meaning – that even when eaten in large quantities, the food will not satisfy or satiate the one who eats it, because there will be a curse on it. Ibn Ezra sharpens the point by observing that hunger normally abates after one has eaten a little, but in this case, even great amounts of food will not satisfy. Sforno learns from this that the person without bread in their basket will feel psychological hunger more deeply than the person with bread in their basket (Yoma 74B). The fear and concern for a future lack of food may keep a person from feeling satisfied even from food that they are now eating.

In fact, consuming less than the usual amount of food might actually be somewhat beneficial. Recently, there have been scientific studies about the health benefits of a very low-calorie diet (VLCD). So, it might turn out that not having all the food one wants might actually be somewhat of a blessing. Another way to look at the situation would be that even though it is a punishment, G-d is using the punishment to set people on the right track and help them become healthier and better.

G-d wants us to be His people, follow His commandments, and in effect be His servant, rather than a slave to others or to our desires. In a way, addiction is being a slave to the drive for temporary or unachievable satisfaction, whether the drive is for alcohol, drugs, pleasure, or food. G-d does not want us to be a slave to those desires, but rather find satisfaction in what we already have. He is trying to tell us to be satisfied and feel grateful when we eat even a small amount (Deut 8:10) by requiring us to recite the Birkat haMazon.

The real curse might be in "not being satisfied" – that no matter how much one consumes, a person is unable to reach emotional and psychological satisfaction. Pirkei Avot 4:1 tries to teach us a similar lesson about who is wise, mighty, or rich: If we do not follow G-d's commandments, we will be cursed, and part of that curse will include famine and lack of food. In some ways, learning to do mitzvot may teach us a way to become satisfied. There is, however, a more profound lesson to be learned – that the deepest curse might be our inability to be satisfied. Hopefully, we will all have sufficient food to eat, and most importantly, learn to be satisfied with what we have.

Shabbat Shalom
