THANK YOU TO OUR SPONSORS

Main Kiddush:

Mazel Tov to Aviva for one year of leading the youth department. Her husband, Steven Balter, is surprising her for this amazing achievement by sponsoring the kiddush today along with her friends.

Hashkama Kiddush:

Sponsored by Linda & Morris Shamah as a Bon Voyage celebration as they embark on a few months' trip to Israel.

Beginners Kiddush:

Sponsored by Sarah Leah & Lou Vynereb in loving memory of Sarah Leah's mother, Sima bat Chava, a"h and Lou's father, Moshe ben Elazar HaCohen, z"l, and happy birthday to their granddaughters, Yehudis and Malka Sima Adler.

MAZAL TOV

Mazel Tov to Susan & Ira Schwartz, on the occasion of their daughter, Chani Herrmann, founder and director of New Jersey Yachad, being honored this Motzai Shabbat, at a gala Melava Malka, sponsored by the National Council for Jewish Disabilities.

Mazel Tov to Rabbi Shlomo & Vicki Riskin on the birth of a great-grandson.

Mazel Tov to Miryam & Amos Alter on the Bar Mitzvah of their grandson, Yehuda Alter, the son of their children, Yoel & Chana Baila Alter.

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT

With great excitement, hundreds of people danced, sang and accompanied our new Torah as we welcomed it to LSS!

Thanks again to our sponsors and contributors. There are still some aliyot that are available to be dedicated -contact the shul office or click here to partake in this truly wonderful communal Mitzvah.

WELCOME

Parshat Vayera

By: Rabbi Josh Rosenfeld

You walk into Shul, on time, at precisely 9 am on Shabbat Morning. Scanning the sanctuary, you settle upon a seat near the back that you reason will aid in your kavvanah.

At 9.20 am, a nice person comes near, and whispers "I am so sorry, but you are in my seat. Shabbat Shalom." Surprised, but understanding, you move a few rows over to another empty pew, expertly juggling your Stone Chumash and Koren Siddur with you as you shuffle on.

At 9.45 am, another nice person approaches, and with a sheepish look, intones "I am so sorry, crazy morning for me, but would you mind shifting over so that I may have my seat? So sorry."

About to somewhat grudgingly move along, you notice a furtive glance from the parishioner who is now your neighbor, that's someone's Makom Kavu'a, someone's special spot. You unceremoniously pick up your synagogue effects, and leaving the main doors, reason that at least no one will ask you to move in your own living room as you daven alone.

Sadly, a version of the above scenario is not too uncommon in our synagogues today. There must first be an understanding of what is at stake. The Talmud (b. Berakhot 6b, cf. j. Berakhot 4:4) states that "the Lord of Abraham joins together with anyone who establishes a place for their prayers... they are a student of our forefather Abraham." Cited as a scriptural source is the verse, "and Abraham arose in the morning to the place where he had previously stood [amida = prayer]" (Gen. 19:27).

The reasoning of the Sages stands to say that Avraham, discoverer of the Shacharit prayers, meant to indicate to us the significance of having a makom kavu'a l'Tefillah, a designated personal space in which to pray and connect to the almighty. A degree in psychology is unnecessary to realize the spiritual benefits of a familiar, comfortable spot in being conducive to kavvanah in prayer (in particular, see the comments of R. Yoshiyahu Pinto (1565-1648), known as the 'Rif al Ein Ya'akov, the collection of Aggadot compiled by R. Ya'akov ibn Habib (1460-1516), and the comments of the Meiri on our Gemara)).

The concept of makom kavu'a is thus well established in the classical sources, even codified in Shulchan Aruch (OC 94:4), along with a new reasoning for it centered upon a fascinating connection to the set places for bringing sacrifices in the Temples.

However, as I once heard from R. Moshe Weinberger of Congregation Aish Kodesh, the uniquely personal focus of makom kavu'a is also directly connected with that most awesome of outward-focused individuals in the Torah, the paragon of Chesed and empathy that is our forefather Abraham. We must temper our desire to fulfill this important and spiritually valuable precept with the very real possibility that in our zeal to do so, we are careful to not inadvertently trample those other qualities for which Avraham is perhaps even better known - chesed, empathetic lovingkindness, and hachnassat orchim, the pure welcoming of guests into our personal spaces.

Shabbat Shalom.
