YOM HA'ATZMAUT CELEBRATION @ LSS

In a few days, we will celebrate the 67th anniversary of the realization of the 2000 year old Jewish dream of living as a free nation, in our land of Zion and Yerushalaim.

And what better way to celebrate than with Israeli scholar-in-residence, Gidi Grinstein of the Reut Institute in Tel Aviv. Gidi is a graduate of the Tel Aviv University schools of Law and Economics, as well as of the Harvard Kennedy School of Government as a Wexner Israel Fellow. He is currently on sabbatical in New York, lives in our neighborhood and daavens at LSS. He is also the author of "Flexigidity: The Invisible Hand of Jewish Adaptability."

Want to hear the stories about Israel that you will not read in The New York Times? Come hear Gidi speak next Shabbat, April 25. He will address the kehila three times:

- After Musaf in the Nathaniel Richman Cohen Sanctuary, he will speak on "The Legacy and Destiny of Israel to be a Light Unto the Nations."
- One hour before Mincha, he will speak on "Israel Innovation."
- During seudat shlishit he will speak on "Inclusive Prosperity."

COMEDY SPECIAL

Enjoy standup comedy by Joel Chasnoff at the Stephen Wise Free Synagogue at 30 West 68th Street on April 23. Doors open at 7:30 pm, show starts at 8:00 pm. PARSHAT SHMINI

By: Rabbi Dr Ben Elton

This Shabbat falls between Yom HaShoah, Holocaust Memorial Day and Yom HaAtzmaut, Israel Independence Day. Now is an ideal moment to consider these two greatest events in the last century of Jewish history, and how we should respond to them as Jews and as religious Zionists.

On Yom haShoah, the first reaction must be profound grief, without blame, and without, God forbid, an attempt at theological explanation. As when anyone in our family is injured or murdered, we don't seek explanations, we just feel the pain, and Am Yisrael is one family, and it is obscene to make drashot on each other's suffering. We say Baruch Dayan Emet and we are silent.

On Yom HaAtzma'ut we can feel enormous gratitude to the Almighty. As Rav Soloveitchik pointed out, the creation of the State was no less than God knocking on the door of history. The remarkable vote in the United Nation to create the State, the military victory, the creation of a safe haven for all Jews, the declaration that Jewish blood is not hefker, is not cheap. All of these were Divine interventions into history which we should acknowledge and celebrate. I do feel it is right to draw theological conclusions, just as we say shehechyanu, hatov vehemetiv, hold a seudat todaah, make a personal Purim and all the other traditional markings of an act of Divine kindness and salvation.

I want to suggest that we can go one step further, and not limit our reaction to the Shoah and the creation of the State of Israel to the specific events with which they are concerned.

The end of this morning's parasha restates the purpose of Jewish existence, says God: 'Be holy, for I am holy'. We are given this instruction several times in the Humash, and although here it is connected to the dietary laws, it is a principle which goes beyond any particular mitzvah. As the Ramban teaches us, it is an entire orientation to the good, the right and the just.

The victims of the Holocaust, those who have lost their lives for Israel's independence and security were certainly kedoshim, holy martyrs. The question is how can we, who were not and are not called upon to make that sacrifice, how are we to be kedoshim? Perhaps by how we conduct ourselves in the light of the Shoah and the creation of the State of Israel.

We know what it is like to be a persecuted people, we know what it is like to be vulnerable, stateless and alone, we know what it is like to be attacked by hostile forces determined to exterminate us. When the Torah commands us: 'Love the stranger: for you were strangers in the land of Egypt', it is not just issuing a specific commandment, but creating a paradigm. We are to take our experiences of struggle and difficulty and use them to deepen our empathy and compassion towards others.

When we look at the world, particularly Africa and the Middle East, we see crisis everywhere. In Sudan, 1.5 million people have been displaced and 2.5 million are in danger of starvation. In Syria 12.2 million people need humanitarian assistance. The atrocities which ISIS is perpetrating across the region are too horrific to mention.

Never Again, has to mean Never Again for us, and for all innocents who suffer. Our ordeal in the Holocaust and the vital need for protection which made the creation of the State of Israel essential should make us advocates for those who are enduring their own horrors today. No nation is the target of total genocide, as we were, but the pain they are enduring is real enough in its own terms.

We have plenty to do to promote the safety and security of Jews and of Israel, but in this moment between Yom HaShoah and Yom HaAtzma'ut, maybe we can consider how we might advocate for others, who are weaker than us and need our help. We are called on by God to be holy in every aspect of our lives, and that includes how we make the world as a whole a holier place.
