

22 Cheshvan 5778/November 11, 2017– Shabbat Chayei Sarah

This weekend— November 10-12

Rabbi Rothwachs to speak

THIS Friday, November 10 | 7:30pm | Cong Beth Aaron, when presents the first installment of a series on “Talking in Shul.” The session, entitled “Modern Orthodoxy from a Teenager’s Perspective,” will offer the opportunity to reflect together on the following recently published article, which has triggered much discussion throughout the community: <http://blogs.timesofisrael.com/modern-orthodoxy-from-a-teenagers-perspective/>. This is the first of a series of dialogues that Rabbi Rothwachs invites the entire community to participate in, on topics that are complex and multifaceted. We hope that participants will find these dialogues (not monologues) to be thought-provoking, emotionally stimulating, and spiritually enriching, and we encourage everyone to attend.

Refreshing Taharat HaMishpacha Refresher—remaining 2 parts

Women of the community are welcome to join Yoetzet Halacha Shoshana Samuels in a review of the foundations and practicalities of the laws of Jewish family life. The course will include source-study, real-life scenarios and discussion of the unique ways these laws affect our lives and relationships. Join for one, two or all three of the sessions!

Part 2: Status Changes & Passing Ramifications meets Tuesday, November 21 | 8:15pm | Netivot Shalom

This class will focus on the essential differences between what makes and does not make a woman's status change from tehora to niddah. The amount of confusion and room for error in this area is tremendous and a thorough and complete review is in order! Come learn the questions that can and must be asked to ensure the laws of niddah are kept properly (and not in such a way that would compromise other important elements of one's life!) We will also review the ways the status change effects the physical space between the husband and wife in the laws of physical distancing.

Part 3: Count Down to Spiritual Rebirth meets Wednesday, December 27 | 8:15pm | Shaare Tefillah

This final class will delve into the process of becoming tehora from the necessary waiting time prior to counting, to counting the seven clean days and approaching the mikveh. There is much to know about each of these steps that can clarify many questions that come up for women "on the ground". The series will culminate with the laws of preparation for, and immersion, in the mikveh, allowing us to come full circle back to "The Jewish Approach to Physical Intimacy", as a woman returns to her status of tehora.
