

From Rabbi Chaitovsky

Journey to the Promised Land, and on the way, create a unique culture delineated by myriad “Hebrew” laws and customs – call them mitzvot. The building block of all this starts with a “Hebrew” calendar. That calendar allows the newly formed nation to breathe together, to celebrate together, to grow together to embrace the ebb and flow of time together as a single entity.

As has been explained previously, our own, busy, BMH-BJ calendar presented the need – and the opportunity - to embrace this particular Shabbat in a creative way. On this Shabbat, we welcome The Denver Kehilla (TDK) into our sanctuary for a special Shabbat morning experience. Our service will start at 9:30 and feature participation by the clergy and men and women of both congregations. We will also hear from TDK guest scholar, Rabbi Herzl Hefter, at the conclusion of our service. Please note that as a respectful accommodation, we will be using a mechitza for this service and the microphones will not be on. We are doing our utmost to make sure that everyone will feel welcome and as comfortable as possible. I hope you will be with us for what will be a lovely Shabbat morning of communal prayer, song and learning. A delicious kiddush in honor of this Shabbat, as well as celebrating the personal semachot of families from both congregations, will follow in the foyer. Shabbat shalom to all!

Evil: A Brief Biography

About this Class

Is evil man made or divine? Do evil things happen due to our own faulty actions or are there forces of evil constantly trying to disrupt the divine plan? This class does not attempt to answer these questions. Rather, we shall go on a textual journey through the bustling port city of Alexandria through to the lavender blossoming fields of medieval Provence, to see how Jewish intellectual giants grappled with these questions.

Meet the Speaker Dr.

Donnie Schnytzer

Jonnie Schnytzer is probably the only PhD in Jewish Philosophy, focusing on medieval kabbalah. His dissertation focused on the scientific kabbalah of Rabbi Joseph ben Shalom Ashkenazi. Jonnie's forthcoming book is about Ashkenazi's Kabbalah as well as a critical edition of the kabbalist's magestic commentary on Sefer Yesira.

About the Musicians:

Dandan Wu is piano performer and teacher from China. She received her Bachelor of Music degree in Music Performance from Portland State University. Currently studying with Dr. Stephanie Cheng, she is going to graduate from the University of Denver this summer with a Masters in Piano Performance. Dandan has a lot of performance and teaching experience in the USA and China, however, she most enjoys collaborative piano including Wind Ensemble and duo piano. Dandan and Greta partnered in 2022 and this is their first public performance with Debussy Petite Suite.

Greta Dilyte is piano teacher and performer from Vilnius, Lithuania. She received her Bachelor of Music in Piano Performance from the University of Aberdeen, Scotland. This June, Greta is going to graduate from the University of Denver with a Masters in Piano Performance and Piano Pedagogy. She has been studying piano under Dr. Stephanie Cheng. Before coming to Denver, Greta worked as a piano teacher in London, UK. Currently, she is a teaching assistant at the Piano Preparatory program at the Lamont School of Music, where she will continue teaching after completing her studies. Greta loves partnering with other pianists for four-hand duets and has been giving recitals all over the UK and Europe.
