Parashah Summary

In the Sidrah we see how Abraham and Sarah reach old age in the town of Hebron. When Sarah dies, Abraham buys the Cave of Machpelah from the local Hittite people to bury her. The Cave of Machpelah becomes the burial place for the Patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and their wives Sarah, Rebecca, and Leah. Abraham now focuses on Isaac as he knows his own life will soon come to an end and arranges for Eliezer, his long-time servant, to find a good wife for him among his own people. Eliezer finds Rebecca in Haran in Mesopotamia and soon after the marriage of Isaac and Rebecca, Abraham dies peacefully and is buried by Isaac and Ishmael, his sons, at the side of Sarah in the Cave of Machpelah.

In Today's Haftarah

This week's haftarah describes an aging King David, echoing this week's Torah reading, which mentions that "Abraham was old, advanced in days." King David was aging, and he was perpetually cold. A young maiden, Abishag of Shunam, was recruited to serve and provide warmth for the elderly monarch.

Seeing his father advancing in age, Adoniah, one of King David's sons, seized the opportunity to prepare the ground for his ascension to his father's throne upon the latter's passing - despite King David's express wishes that his son Solomon succeed him. Adoniah recruited two influential individuals -- the High Priest and the commander of David's armies -- both of whom had fallen out of David's good graces, to champion his cause. He arranged to be transported in a chariot with fifty people running before him and invited a number of his sympathizers to a festive party where he publicizing his royal ambitions.

The prophet Nathan encouraged Bat Sheva, mother of Solomon, to approach King David and plead with him to reaffirm his choice of Solomon as his successor. This she did, mentioning Adoniah's recent actions of which the king had been unaware. Nathan later joined Bat Sheva and the king to express support for Bat Sheva's request. King David acceded to their request: "Indeed," he told Bat Sheva, "as I swore to you by the Lord God of Israel saying, 'Surely Solomon, your son, shall reign after me and he shall sit on my throne in my stead,' surely, so will I swear this day."
