CHOLENT COOK-OFF INFORMATION

To qualify as an entrant in the competition, payment of $10 must be submitted by Wednesday, February 10.

Kosher Ingredients

Grocery Ingredients:

Please list the ingredients you might need for your cholent as the regular grocery ingredients are being sponsored by Seasons. Meat, potatoes and onions will be provided as well. (When listing the ingredients please remember to scale down as the crock pots are not large.)

Specialty Ingredients:

All unopened packaged ingredients must have an acceptable kosher certification, to be approved by Rabbi Hopkovitz. Please bring the ingredients with you on preparation night, Thursday February 18.

Preparation of Cholent

Thursday, February 18, after 7:30 Maariv, in the Auditorium/Kitchen. Please bring you specialty ingredients with you, to be approved by Rabbi Hopkovitz. There will be a communal table of spices, produce, meat and dry ingredients that have been requested. After you have finished preparing your cholent please clean up your work area. The crock pot will be sealed with your name on it and placed in the shul refrigerator.

Friday Morning:

The crock pots will be turned on Friday morning, February 19 and then switched to warm before Shabbos.

Shabbos Morning Kiddush Cholent Competition

Kosher Utensils and Food:

You must only use utensils provided by QJC. No outside food is permitted.

Cholent Judging:

Judges will not know who cooked each cholent; they will perform blind judging. Congregants will also be able to vote for their favorite cholents.

Cholent Sampling Requirements:

Only utensils and serving containers provided by QJC may be used. Entrants must use serving utensils and gloves to serve their cholent. No raw vegetables or garnishes may be used. No bones may be served. Meat must be sliced for each judge, not all congregants need to get a piece of meat. Each congregant can only get one serving of cholent from each contestant. Requests for seconds will not be honored unless there is enough after everyone has tasted the cholents.

Good Luck!
