Rabbis Corner

I would like to welcome Professor Jeffrey Gurock to our shul this Shabbat. It is a real honor to be able to have him with us and I hope you will get a chance to hear him Friday night or Motzaei Shabbat. Professor Gurock is one of the leading scholars of American Jewish History. Gurock is a well respected scholar who teaches at Yeshiva University’s Bernard Revel Graduate School and has spent semesters teaching and doing research elsewhere including at Harvard. He is the author of countless books and articles. He is a wonderful lecturer who is dynamic, interesting and knows how to make Jewish History come alive! You can read his bio on the flyer in the lobby. I encourage you to try and attend one or both of his lectures.

I would like to thank all of our sponsors and especially Bob and Evelyn Harris who not only gave a generous contribution but also have opened their home and provided the refreshments for the Saturday evening lecture. They are truly dedicated members of our community and we know we can always count on them.

Thank you so much to Ilana and Steven Bernstein for organizing last Saturday night’s Pizza and Focus Groups and to Shayne and Stu Kesler for hosting the event. It was great to be together and share ideas for our shul. Thanks to all those who came out to be a part of this important event.

This past Sunday the board met with Dr. Brian Maruffi who is a leadership and organization development consultant and coach with over 20 years of international and domestic experience working with CEO’s, senior executives, and management teams. He is currently a professor of management and marketing at the Sy Syms School for Business at Yeshiva University. He came to help our board develop some leadership skills and to help us along our journey towards even greater success. His presentation brought out some interesting insights and got the members of our board thinking about important ideas. He has provided us with some good language and tools to work with in our future planning and progress. Yasher Koach to those of the Board and Leadership who came. Thanks to Fran Wittenberg for hosting. Thanks to Elie Wolfe for setting up the AV stuff. Thanks to YU and the Center for the Jewish Future for providing us with this great resource.

ERUV UPDATE
We have been making some improvements to our Eruv this week. I would like to thank Rabbi Ari Weiss, the Eruv lay committee, and especially Levi Lomasky, Stan Rutstein & Tzion Cohen for their invaluable efforts to make this happen. We have spent countless hours working to make sure that our Eruv is maintained and that it meets the highest of halachic standards.

מזל טוב
מזל טוב to Rabbi Mordechai and Dvorah Weiss on the Bat Mitzvah of their granddaughter in Florida this Shabbat!

We regret to inform you of the passing of Armin Gelb, beloved father of David & Larry; father-in-law of Susanne & Gina; grandfather & great grandfather of Adena, Dov, Yaniv, Shayna, Leora & Atara Goldman; Amy, Kevin, Shane, Eva & Tamara Shacknoffsky; Jeffrey & Debbie Gelb; Jonathan; Paul, Chana, Eitan & Nava Gelb; and Rena, Tzvi & Joshua Schwartz.
May Hashem comfort the Gelb Family among the mourners of Zion and Yerushalayim!

Last week we heard in shul from Josh Glahn and Tova Goldfischer about the new Chessed project that we are running to help My Sister’s Place in Hartford. You will begin to see more information and flyers about it. I encourage you to take part in this wonderful project for a number of reasons: Firstly, the program is dedicated in memory of Judith Harris z”l whose Yarzeit was this past week. This is a way to perpetuate the work that she did in her lifetime as well as the values that she instilled in her family and community. Secondly, it is a chance to support our teens who are working so hard for this project. Thirdly, it will help enrich the lives of women and children who are struggling to get back on their own two feet.
Shabbat Shalom - Rabbi Weinberg

Parshat Vayishlach - Misunderstandings
By Rabbi Jay Kelman – www.torahinmotion.com

How tragic it is when one misinterprets the intentions of others.
"The messengers returned to Jacob with the report: We came to your brother Eisav and he is also heading towards you. He has 400 men with him" (32:7).

Yaakov, fearing for his life and that of his family (and thereby, the budding Jewish nation) tried appeasement ("I will win him over with the gifts that are being sent"); followed by prayer ("rescue me, I pray, from the hand of my brother" (source)); and if all else fails, for war ("if Eisav comes and attacks one camp, at least the other camp will survive" (source)). While this three-pronged approach to adversity is one recommended by our Sages, why did Yaakov assume Eisav was out to hurt him? True, at one time, Yaakov had to flee for his life, fearing that Eisav might kill him in a fit of rage. But that had been over twenty years ago, and there is no indication that Eisav ever made any attempts to carry out his threat. Furthermore, Eisav’s menace was contingent upon the death of their father Yitzchak, still some thirty years away.

Time is a great healer; before jumping to conclusions, Yaakov should have ascertained his brother’s true intentions. Perhaps the Torah hints at Eisav's peaceful intentions by constantly referring to Eisav as Jacob's "brother". Yes, Eisav had 400 men with him, but many of our commentaries suggest that they were an honour guard to greet Yaakov. Eisav, separated from his brother for so many years, rolled out the red carpet and then some. "Eisav ran to meet him (Yaakov), he hugged him and threw himself on his shoulders, kissed him and they both wept" (33:4). Perhaps Yaakov’s tears were shed in repentance for having misunderstood his brother's intentions.

How sad when we impute harmful motives to those who are our brothers! While Yaakov and Eisav did go their separate ways - they are, after all, the founders of very different nations - they met again, years later, and once again cried together. "Isaac lived to be 180 years old. He breathed his last and died, and was gathered to his people, old and in the fullness of his years. His sons Eisav and Jacob buried him" (36:28-29). Had Eisav ever intended harm to Yaakov, that was the time, yet Yaakov was not afraid. Thank G-d, his original reading of Eisav's intentions had been wrong, and brotherly reconciliation was attained.

While imputing negative motives to a person can lead to hatred and even war - as history has shown time and time again-crediting unwarranted positive motives where none truly exist can be just as devastating. This was the mistake of Chamor and Shechem in the aftermath of Shechem's rape of Dinah. Shimon and Levi, out to avenge the honour of their sister, "agree" to intermarry with the people of Shechem provided they submit to Brit Milah. Shechem and Chamor "spoke to the citizens of the city: these men are friendly towards us" (34:20). Unfortunately for them, they believed that Shimon and Levi were pure in their motives, a mistake which led to the death of every male in the city. Whether Shimon and Levi acted correctly is the subject of considerable rabbinic debate and heated family discussions. In any case, it is clear that by misunderstanding motives, many lost their lives.

In our daily personal lives we make decisions and judgments based on our perceptions of others. We must try to be absolutely certain that our perceptions are correct; otherwise, we run the risk of much discord. What is true on a personal level is, of course, true on a national level; but here, the consequences of misinterpretation are much more dangerous. Our Sages urge that, as we confront our adversaries, we must pray and we must be prepared to fight. Our prayer must include asking G-d for help in discerning the true nature of our "enemy". Only then will we be able to judge if it is time for peace and appeasement or, G-d forbid, for war and destruction. May we soon merit the day when the descendants of Yaakov and Eisav (and Yishmael, too) will join together in peace.
