Torah on Tour

The Smartphone as a Metaphor for Good Jewish Living by Rabbi Jarrod Grover

- Before anything, you must have a plan. Do your research before you choose the right plan for you. Ask people who have experience and can give you good advice.
- Read the instruction book and review your contract to make sure you understand the plan and are using your phone correctly. If you are not careful to follow your plan, it will cost you.
- You can't waste your minutes and you can't talk as much as you please. There is no such thing as an unlimited plan. Even a plan with unlimited minutes eventually expires.
- If you have a good plan and you use your minutes well, you will get rollover time.
- Watch what you say. You may think nobody is listening, but remember the phone-company keeps a record of all your calls. Nothing is private.

Weekday Services:

Morning Services @ Adath Israel:
Tuesday to Friday 7:30 am

Evening Services @ Beth Tikvah:
Tuesday to Thursday 7:30 pm

Kiddush is co-sponsored by:

Mazel Tov to

Sarah Webb and Daniel Nurgitz on the Bar Mitzvah of their son Sammy Nurgitz. Grandparents are Miriam & Bill Webb, and Naomi & Richard Nurgitz and great grandmother Rita Drenfeld. (Thursday)

Barbara Levitt & Mindle Levitt
in memory of William Levitt z"l

- Use Caller ID. Be careful who you allow to contact you. Put yourself on the "do not call" list to avoid unwanted calls.
- Make sure the basic features you need work well. Just because your phone has a lot of extra toys and gadgets doesn't mean it works better or that you will be happy with it. Those extra apps are often just excuses to waste your time.
- You are bound to experience difficulty even with the best plan and the best phone. Call the service provider and ask for help if you are experiencing difficulty with your service.
- Take pictures of the happy moments in your life. Keep them with you to gain perspective, and to look back at the memories joyfully.

- Don't be so fast to blame the carrier or the phone if you are not satisfied with the way your phone works. It could be that you are not using the phone correctly. Investigate, and you may be surprised with just how much your phone is capable of.
  - Don't stop using your phone just because one plan didn't work out for you. Just get a better plan. If you look hard enough and are willing to make the investment you can always upgrade your service.
  - Take good care of your phone. Keep your batteries charged or your phone will die.
- Finally, make sure your ringer is always set appropriately. You never know when you are going to be called.
