HOW TO HELP AN ADULT WHO IS CHOKING

Mi Shenichnas Adar

The Canadian child asked his father: Tatty, tatty, why is it so cold up north? The father replied: Yingeleh, it's because everyone goes down south to Florida for the winter, and we lose all of that extra body heat up north!

How do you know that the first cook in the world was a Jewish man? On the dials of every oven, it says: Max...

The story is told of the father of the Jewish immigrant, who followed his son to America. As they were driving on the highway, on their way home from the airport the father took in the sights and commented: It seems that at least one Jew is very successful in this country and he must be very rich. The son asked: Why do you say that Papa? The father smiled: All the signs on the buildings say: Motel!

A TBDJ child asked, or - should ask: Tatty, why does TBDJ Chazan Sheini Amiel put out a silly newspaper every Purim? I thought I knew all of the jokes out there, but I don't know any of these... The father replied: The silly newspaper and the above jokes are all Chazan Sheini Amiel originals. They aren't published anywhere and probably wouldn't be accepted to any joke books... So, be nice and tell him that they are funny...

Takeh... Why am I treating you out there to my humorous attempts at this time, every year? It is because the spirit of Purim fun descends upon our Jewish world as we welcome the month of Adar, and this month is designated as a month of joy. We love celebrating, having fun and Judaism mandates a reason for us to celebrate? Even better!

The Talmud in Ta'anis 29a teaches:

Just as from when the month of Av enters, we minimize our happiness, so too from when the month of Adar enters, we increase our happiness

The K'sav Sofer (1815 - 1871) explains the connection and comparison that the Talmud makes between these two months in connection with our souls. It is something that is deeply rooted within us, within the consciousness of the Jew.

In the month of Av, both of our holy temples were destroyed. Our nation was exiled in Av, a month where horrific tragedies befell the Jewish people. For this reason, Av is always a month of sadness. Even in times when we are not oppressed and we can practice our religion without any threats, the month of Av remains a month of sadness. In Av, we minimize our happiness not because we are mourning our physical state in exile. Rather, we minimize our happiness because we recognize the pain and suffering that our souls experience because we are in exile.

In Adar, our nation was saved from annihilation. Jews who lived throughout the empire of Achashverosh were faced with certain death. Through a miraculous turn of events, this threat was removed, and they were saved. There was celebration everywhere. The Jews at this time renewed their commitment to observing the Torah. It was a time of overwhelming happiness. During the month of Adar, we do not rejoice because we were physically saved from death. We rejoice because our souls experienced a redemption: the Jews were threatened with death as a punishment for their sins, and because they repented, they were saved. The Jews did not only repent for their sins; they raised their commitment to G-d and the Torah to new levels. It is for this spiritual redemption that we celebrate throughout the entire month of Adar. Just as in Av, when we mourn because of our spiritual gain.

The Piasecna Rebbe Hy"d, Harav Klonimus Kalman Shapira (1889 -1943), lived through the worst hell on earth and was murdered in the terrible fire of the Holocaust in Poland. He wrote about the obligatory Purim spark that is to be practiced, even in the most challenging circumstances.

We read in the Tikkunei Zohar that Purim is like Yom Kippur. This is hinted at in the way that on Yom Kippur, one must fast and do teshuvah (repentance/return) not only if one feels like it, but whether or not one wants to do it. This is an enduring decree from the Holy One of Blessing. Rejoicing on Purim is similar. One is obligated to rejoice on Purim, not only if one is happy in oneself, or is in a situation where it's easy to feel joy. On the contrary: even if one is in a low place and completely broken-hearted, body and spirit laid low, it's still an obligation to seek out whatever tiny spark of joy is possible, and welcome that spark into the heart.

On both of these holy days, there's a flow from on high to us here below. Just as Yom Kippur itself atones for us, even if our teshuvah feels inadequate (according to Talmud in tractate Yoma), just so on Purim. Even if a person isn't feeling joyful the way one's supposed to, and therefore one's service of God doesn't feel whole, even in that case the salvation and joy of Purim will flow -- and that potential is open to us even now.

We can or, should ask - how could the Piasecna Rebbe find it within himself to celebrate Purim under the dire circumstances that he lived in?! Rav Eliyahu Blumenzweig writes that: Although the Sages spell out for us how to decrease simcha at the beginning of Av, they offer little instruction on how to increase simcha in Adar. This is because it is inappropriate to give one details on how to achieve happiness. Simcha is a general spirit that flows in the soul of every human - an internal feeling that does not deal with details. The Rebbe understood the internal source of simcha, and that simcha is a divine trait from above that resides within us.

We express our Adar and our Purim simcha in various ways. We sing, we dance, we drink, we masquerade, we share humour and we spread our Megillah-mandated good-will through observing the Mitzvot of Purim: Reading the Megillah - sharing the story of Purim, Mishloach Manot - giving and receiving food packages, Matanot La'Evyonim - giving Tzedaka and the Purim Seudah - Our Purim Banquet. Our joy is supported by the special spirit of the holiday which promotes fun.

Rabbi Y. L. Maimon (1875 - 1963) wrote the following in his sefer Chaqim U'Moadim (1952):

חג הפורים היה מאז ומעולם ליתדת שתולים בה כל מיני בדיחות והיתולים, סטירות ומכתמים

An approximate translation of these words teaches, that from time immemorial, the holiday of Purim has been an anchor for jokes and paradoxes. Rabbi Maimon wrote that the custom of light brevity on Purim has implanted itself within our nation and has become an important part of the holiday.

Simcha is spiritual. Simcha is physical. Our wonderful religion combines the two in a unique way. I am looking forward to a great Purim for Am Yisrael. May Hashem's heroics that were the salvation for the Jews in Shushan continue to be our salvation as we get closer and closer to the ultimate geula!

Shabbat Shalom and Purim Sameach,

Rev. Amiel
