COMMUNITY NEWS

Mazal Tov to Sonja & Harry Langburt and their family on the birth of a great-granddaughter on Yom Kippur - Monday, September 25. Proud first-time parents are Elisha & Greg Benhaim. Sharing in their simcha are grandparents Judi & Michael Langburt and Gail & Albert Benhaim, great-grandmother Linda Wasserman and many delighted aunts, uncles and cousins.

Condolences to Alysa & Robert Kurlender and their family on the loss of Alysa's beloved grandfather Shlomo Langburt z"l who passed away on Thursday, September 28. Graveside funeral scheduled for Friday, September 29 at 2:00pm. Due to Succot, shiva ends on Friday.

THANK YOU TO THE FOLLOWING SPONSORS

Kiddush on the First Day of Sukkot - Shabbat, September 30 - is co-sponsored by Erin & Alex Halpern and Bonnie & Leo Grunstein in memory of the pogrom of Korolowka that occurred on the First Day of Sukkot in 1942, and in honour of their family's recent birthdays. Bonnie's father and Erin's grandfather Saul Shulim Stermer z"l would sponsor this kiddush each year, and his family "is honoured to continue this tradition at TBDJ."

Kiddush on the First Day of Sukkot - Shabbat, September 30 - is co-sponsored by Louise Pilote & Mark Eisenberg "with Hakarat Hatov to Hashem for being able to celebrate Sukkot this year together with all our children in town."

Kiddush on the Second Day of Sukkot - Sunday, October 1 - is sponsored by Allan Schachter, Mark Schachter, Jack Schachter, Steven Schachter and their families to mark the twentieth yortsayt for their beloved father David Schachter z"l (David Yitzchak ben Avraham Aharon - 18 Tishrei).

5784 "Ata Horeita" Pesukim on Simchat Torah

As we have been doing at TBDJ for many years, Simchat Torah festivities traditionally begin with responsive readings of the "Ata Horeita" pesukim. It is considered a great merit to honour the Torah by purchasing the right to recite these verses. To reserve and purchase a verse ($100 each) and designate who will be honoured, please send an email with details of your request to Jonathan Gal at jon@assurancegal.com.

Sukkot - A Holiday of Joy, Colour and Unity

Sukkot brings us the beauty of the ארבע מינים - the Four Kinds as we bring the blend of green and yellow, the beauty of nature, into the synagogue and into our homes. Classically, the theme of Jewish unity is central to Sukkot and the ארבע מינים which when brought together in our grasp symbolize four types of Jews, with differing levels of Torah knowledge and observance. The yellow etrog, which has both taste and fragrance, represents the pious, learned Jew who combines learning with good deeds. The green lulav, which has a pleasant taste but no fragrance, represents the Jew who pursues sacred learning, but who fails to perform many positive deeds. The green haddasim, which has a delightful fragrance but no taste, represents the Jew who actively does good deeds, yet who never takes the time to study Torah seriously. Finally, the green aravot, which possess neither fragrance nor taste, is representative of the kind of Jew who combines a lack of interest in Torah study with a lack of interest in performing good deeds. Bringing the ארבע מינים together represents our unity as a nation and despite our external differences, the ארבע מינים suggest everyone coming together as a nation in the service of Hashem.

There are other images and symbolisms applied to the ארבע מינים. The Sefer HaChinuch 324:4 teaches that the Four Species are like our limbs (Vayikra Rabbah 30:14; Midrash Tanchuma, Emor 19). The etrog is like the heart, which is the dwelling place of the intellect, to hint that we should serve Hashem with our intellect. The lulav is like our backbone, which is the essence of a person, to hint that we should straighten ourselves completely for Hashem's service. The haddasim are like our eyes, to hint that we should not stray after our eyes and the aravot are like our lips, with which we complete all acts of speech, to hint that we should put a muzzle to our mouth and regulate our words.

I like to think that the ארבע מינים teach a lesson in tolerance. With similarity to the different qualities of the Four Kinds in smell and taste, we live in a world where there is apathy and indifference between people which leads to intolerance, racism, hate and more. The consequences are unhappiness, exclusion, a feeling of being left out and on occasion, aggression. There is a positive commandment in the Torah to be happy on the holiday of Sukkot:

ושמחת בחגך והיית אך שמח
You shall rejoice in your festival...
and you shall have nothing but joy
 (Devarim 16:13, 15)

Connecting this commandment with the Four Kinds, is as if Hashem is saying to us: I am giving you the ארבע מינים for the happy days of Sukkot! For the next seven days, learn something constructive about תיקון עולם - repairing the world - from these four different kinds which have different qualities!

We are commanded to put the ארבע מינים together in a bundle and make them work and co-operate with each other by shaking them together in six directions which encompass our world: north, south, east, west, heaven and earth. Just as the mitzvah of the ארבע מינים can only be kept when these four different natural species are placed together, so harmony in our world can only be achieved with the lessening of dissent and conflict between us and our rivals and opponents resulting in our coming together in a happy world of peace and harmony.

Green and yellow - the colours of the ארבע מינים. Modern colour analysis has determined that these two colours are positive in their nature, and this connects with the mitzvah of being happy on Sukkot. Green evokes a feeling of hopefulness, responsibility, wealth, forgiveness, comfort, and energy; all of which can be characteristics of someone who is optimistic. Yellow is associated with sunshine, hope, laughter, warmth, happiness, and energy. Yellow is found to make a person feel spontaneous and happy. A splash of yellow on anything dull or dark can make a person feel cheerful and optimistic. The ארבע מינים teach how different components in life and nature complement each other.

Putting the ארבע מינים together as a symbol of unity by bundling them together reminds me of a high school episode in Grade 11. Our grade had a cool clique that didn't pay much attention to many of the grade's other classmates. During the winter of that year, we went on a class trip to Boston and accordingly, on the way there and on the way back the groups sat separately one from the other. On the way back we were caught in a snowstorm. At one point during our agonizingly-slow return to New York, one classmate asked one of the cool clique members what time it was. The clique member's what do you care answer triggered an overdue and eruptive confrontation between the cool group and the rest of the classmates. One student approached the teachers who sat at the front of the bus and asked them to solve the conflict. The teacher answered that it was about time that the problem was confronted verbally and solved without the teacher's intervention. Bundled together in the bus with nowhere to go, the strategy worked and the rest of the prolonged snow-bound return to New York was spent playing games and singing. The lessening of tension and newfound unity in our grade lasted through our graduation and the last year and a half of high school was marked with many events that our grade enjoyed together.

Shabbat Shalom and Chag Sameach!
