אם על תודה יקריבנו והקריב על זבח התודה

If he offers it for thanksgiving, he shall offer with the thanksgiving sacrifice. Vayikra 7:12

The question arises why the thanksgiving offering was omitted from parshas Vayikra and is only mentioned for the first time in parshas Tzav which speaks specifically to the Kohanim. In order to answer this question let's understand the nature of the thanksgiving offering. This was a sacrifice which was brought when a person was saved from harm, such as recovering from an illness, being freed from prison and after traveling through the desert or sea. These are times in a person's life when they see G-d's hand in a much more overt fashion. The Kohanim, however, were witness to an even higher level of exposure to G-d's hand. We learn in Pirkei Avos 5:5, there were ten miracles that were seen in the Temple on a regular basis. Therefore, the idea of expressing one's recognition of G-d's intervention in our everyday life by bringing a thanksgiving offering is even more experience G-d's intervention through miracles on a daily basis. It's for this reason, says the great Rav Yoseph Chaim Sonnenfeld z"l, that the entire discussion of the thanksgiving offering is discussed in Tzav which speaks directly to the Kohanim rather than to the common people.
