The Chazon Ish used to say that “honor” is the natural need of every person (only when one runs after it, is it considered to be a very unsavory trait). To make others happy we must offer them honor, as it says in the Birkat Hachodesh (Blessing of the New Moon), “A life of wealth and honor.” And if that is true for every person, how much more so does it apply to people who are going through very difficult times. According them honor is a very great Mitzvah indeed!
