Speeches and lectures will not have nearly the same impact on a child (or for that matter any individual) as the personal example he sees in his parents and teachers, whether it's positive or negative. Parents who are tough will not succeed in teaching their children to be patient. Parents who are quick tempered will not succeed in teaching their children to be calm and even tempered. Parents who are ill mannered will not succeed in teaching their children proper etiquette, and parents who are devious will not succeed in teaching their children to be honest.

(Sefer: Aleinu L'shabeiach, Rav Yitzchak Zilberstein)

Wishing you a great and inspiring day!
