A yahrtzeit is an emotional time for most people and it's an added opportunity to bring an aliyas neshama for their parents. Many people take annual yahrtzeit trips to Israel to visit their parents' graves. This usually involves great effort and expense, as well as a one or two week disruption of their daily schedules. Rav Pam z"l would advise people who consulted with him on this issue that they would bring much more merit to the neshamos of their parents by not going to Israel. Rather, set aside extra time to study Torah, take the money you would have spent on the trip and use it for acts of Tzedakah and chessed in your parent's memory.
