Prayer for the Government

God, who commanded all humanity to create just governments, may you preserve and protect our democracy.

Bless the elected and appointed officials of the governments of the United States to carry out their duties consistent with the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

Place in their hearts devotion to justice, truth and equality for all who live in our great nation.

Let their actions reflect compassion for the poor, the defenseless, and the needy among us.

Inspire them with the courage to use the might of the United States for good throughout the world.

Bless and protect the members of the Armed Forces who defend our country in pursuit of justice and peace.

May this be your will, and let us say, Amen.

וְנֹאמַר אָמֵן

English miSheberakh:

We tend to just use first names in the English version.

May the One Who blessed our ancestors bless _____ and _____ who soon will enter a covenant of marriage.

May God's presence help them to build a household within Israel filled with joy and harmony,
peace and compassion,
loyalty and laughter.

May it be a home in which they and their children shall grow in love of Torah and good deeds.

May God continue to bless them in years to come with health, happiness and love.

Amen.

If celebrating the aufruf of a gay or lesbian couple, most of the wording can stay the same. We should check as to whether they want the words "hatan" and "kallah" recited for both names, some other terms, or skipped altogether.

English miSheberakh:

We tend to just use first names in the English version, although if a Hebrew name is being given we can mention that.

May the One who blessed our ancestors bless _____,

who entered into the covenant of the God of Israel and the children of Israel.

May God fulfill through you the blessing
"You shall be repaid for your deeds and shall be rewarded for your acts
from the God of Israel,
under whose wings you have come to dwell"
(Ruth 2:12)

May the Source of all Blessings safeguard and enliven you.

May you continue to grow in love of Torah and good deeds.

Amen.
