Adar 5777

Dear Friends,

Thanks so much for joining us tonight for our TY Concert with Eitan Katz. We are excited to join together with you and celebrate.

The middah of "Tiferes" is part of the name of our shul, Tiferes Yisroel. The Baal HaTanya writes that the special designation of this middah is more than "Beauty," it's "Harmonious Beauty." It's the beauty which emerges when many shades of color are blended together thoughtfully and creatively. The same mashal (metaphor) can be brought forward with music. Each individual instrument sounds beautiful, but when they are played together in harmony with thought, creativity, discipline, and intention, we experience the middah of Tiferes.

There are many outstanding qualities which our honorees tonight hold within them. There is one quality which they all share in common - bringing people together.

Stuart and Esther Macklin, Mordecai Zev Margolese, Binny and Brocha Margolese, and Moshe and Shaina Margolese are people who bring Klal Yisroel together. "Chaverim kol Yisroel"

Taking that one step further, we are overjoyed to bring our Baltimore community together tonight to celebrate in harmony. It's a celebration of the freilech month of Adar and the spirit of Purim which still lingers. It's a celebration of being Hashem's precious and heilige (holy) nation. It's a celebration of sharing Jewish life together in our very special community of Baltimore. It's a celebration of life — enjoy the evening!

With love and friendship,

Rabbi Menachem Goldberger

Dear Friends and Family,

Welcome to Congregation Tiferes Yisroel's 31st Anniversary Celebration! We are gathering to celebrate, honor, and recognize outstanding contributions both in our shul and in the community.

Our shul honorees, Stuart and Esther Macklin, have been an integral part of our kehilla since the beginning. They have provided both leadership and inspiration as they have contributed their skills and talents to the development and beauty of our shul. This year, Stuart spearheaded our most successful fund raising effort to date, which exceeded our wildest expectations. Stuart and Esther lift up our kehilla through their caring, pleasantness and love.

We also pay tribute this evening to the mighty Margolese families for their outstanding work as community builders. Mordecai Zev, Moshe and Shaina, and Binny and Brocha have contributed towards enriching, elevating, and improving our community schools through their vision and hard work. They are an integral part of our shul community and were also a driving force towards the success of this year's fund raising efforts.

We are most fortunate to have all of the honorees as members of our shul community. We wish them hatzlacha and bracha in all of their endeavors. Thank you for everything you do!

Honorees

Stuart and Esther Macklin

Congregation Tiferes Yisroel is proud to announce this year's Anniversary Concert honorees, Stuart and Esther Macklin. The Macklins, who will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary in September, have been prominent TY members for 30 years; their dedication to the shul and the community is tremendous. Stuart is the architect who designed not only our beautiful shul but also the garage next door, where minyanim and shiurim were held for seven years.

Esther (née Marton) was born in Middletown, Ohio, and raised in Weirton, West Virginia. When she was 16 years old, Esther, her mother, and three sisters moved to Baltimore. She met Stuart on a blind date, and two weeks later they were engaged; three months later they were married. She was 21, he was 24. A few years later, they moved to Chicago for school, where their twins, Dee-Dee and Garron, were born.

Born and raised in Baltimore's Liberty Heights neighborhood, Stuart grew up during the era depicted in Barry Levinson's film Liberty Heights. "I grew up with all the Diner guys (Barry Levinson, Leonard 'Boogie' Weinglass, Harold Goldsmith); we practically lived at Benny's pool hall on Belvedere Avenue," Stuart says with a smile. After spending his early years in cheder at Talmudical Academy, then located on Cottage Avenue, Stuart began to pursue his passion for architecture, working as an apprentice for several years. After he and Esther had been married for five years, they moved to Chicago, where Stuart studied architecture at IIT, the Illinois Institute of Technology. He received an MA with honors in architecture after just three and a half years.

After graduation, the Macklins moved back to their beloved Baltimore and bought their house on Bancroft Road, where they still live today. Esther was the first patient advocate at Sinai Hospital, a position she began as a volunteer but that soon blossomed into full-time work and a 20-year career. She worked diligently as the liaison between the patient, family and doctors in both the trauma unit and the hospice program. While Esther was working in the ER at Sinai Hospital, Stuart was busy building a prolific career as an architect. In the early 1980s, Stuart and his kids joined a Zionist youth organization called Bnei Akiva, located in the house next door to where our shul is presently located. He was commissioned to convert the garage into a meeting room; little did he know then that a number of years later, he would be davening there with a new rabbi in town from Denver at a shul called Congregation Tiferes Yisroel. "From the beginning, we were very impressed by the Rabbi and Rebbetzin's generosity and commitment to our personal growth, and their love and support for the entire kehillah." A few short months later, Rabbi Goldberger hired Stuart to draw up the plans for his new shul next door. Congregation Tiferes Yisroel has been at that location since 1994, and Stuart and Esther have been proud members of the kehillah ever since. "We love being members of this kehillah and cherish the many wonderful friends we have made here at TY, many of them long-term relationships."

Rebbetzin Goldberger counts among Stuart and Esther's crowning achievements that they were the shadchanim for her sister Randy. Randy was living in Manhattan at the time (in 1991) and was visiting the Goldbergers in Baltimore. Esther Macklin suggested a match for Randy to the Rebbetzin; a young man, Kevin Gavert, who was doing a residency in oral surgery at Johns Hopkins. The rest is history, and a beautiful future of wonderful children and grandchildren.

Stuart and Esther quickly became involved in shul affairs and served as co-chairs for two early shul banquets. Stuart continued to serve on the banquet committees for many years, organizing phone-a-thons to raise money and working on the ad journals. For TY's 25th Anniversary Banquet honoring Rabbi and Rebbetzin Goldberger, Stuart took on the major roles of program chairman and ad solicitation chairman. He served on the CHAI board for eighteen years, the board of the TA Vaad and executive board at TA for seven years, and as president of the TA PTA for three years. Stuart also has been a Jewish Big Brother for over twenty years, and has served the southern Park Heights community for over twenty years. Esther supports his many projects but admits, "Sometimes Stuart needs to learn to just say no!" The Macklins love their community, in particular Bancroft Road where they live. Stuart was pivotal in making Bancroft Park into a historic district, in order to preserve the block's architectural integrity. Occasionally, he gives tours of the block, which is rich in Baltimore history.

Esther and Stuart Macklin personify the act of chesed, and they do so from their hearts. Esther's love for her patients, her family and her community is unparalleled. Stuart continues to mentor young Jewish men and women who are seeking a career in architecture and tries to guide them through the challenges of balancing work, Shabbos and the Yom Tovim. They are the proud parents and grandparents of Dee-Dee and Aaron Shiller, and their children Emuna Sky, Matan and Meital, and to Garron and Danit Macklin, and their children Tuvya, Temima and Amitai. Tonight we wish Esther and Stuart a hearty Mazel Tov and yasher koach for all they have done, and continue to do, for Tiferes Yisroel and the Baltimore Jewish community.

Honoree Mordecai Zev Margolese

Mordecai Zev Margolese has an intimate connection with Tiferes Yisroel that spans several decades. His story could easily encompass the lives of more than one person, yet it is uniquely his own.

Mordecai Zev was born and raised in Montreal. He attended public school while also getting his feet wet in the Jewish world by learning in an after-school Talmud Torah and attending services at Beth Zion, an orthodox synagogue that was an oasis for all types of Jews wishing to connect with their traditional roots.

It was at Beth Zion that Mordecai Zev was exposed to and became active in NCSY. Recognizing his intelligence and his interest in learning, his NCSY adviser suggested he attend Sh'or Yashuv, a burgeoning makom Torah on Long Island. There he met his most impactful mentor, Rabbi Shlomo Freifeld, a man whose ability to uplift, motivate, engage and inform took Mordecai Zev to new heights of observance and Jewish involvement. Rabbi Freifeld gave Mordecai Zev a book titled "The Magic of Thinking Big," and it affected and influenced his personal and professional path from that point forward, leading him to develop an abundance of motivational products and networks throughout his working career.

While still a bochur at Sh'or Yashuv, Mordecai Zev met his future wife, Esther Nechama, at the Shabbos table of Rabbi Aaron Dovid Cohen, and six weeks later they were married, a marriage that would last 40 years until her untimely passing. Together they formed an unbreakable bond. When asked about hobbies and interests, Mordecai Zev said that marriage—creating, building and nurturing that amazing husband-wife partnership— was where all his efforts were directed.

The two moved to Baltimore from Long Island in 1987 in search of reasonably priced housing and a robust Jewish community. Esther Nechama established a playgroup for children, and it was there that the couple met Rabbi and Rebbetzin Goldberger, with daughter Esther acting as the shadchan through her attendance at the play group. The two couples became close, and the Margolese family soon joined the shul, noting that their kids were playing there on Shabbos most of the time anyway!

The couple merited to raise nine beautiful children—seven boys and two girls—who today stand proudly in our community and beyond as accomplished and admirable young adults: clearly the apples have not fallen far from the parental tree! In age order, from top down, there is Yakov, married with three children; Yonah, married with four children; Yolie, married with seven children; Binny, married with six children; Moshe, or "Mo," married with four children; Shira, married with six children; Devory, married with three children; and Chaim and Tully, both recently married and awaiting, with G-d's help, additional family members of their own!

Mordecai Zev worked as facility manager at Bais Yaakov for 17 years, stepping down a short time ago for health reasons. That position is now occupied by his son, Binny, so the family connection to the school remains firmly intact.

Mordecai Zev sums up his life purpose quite simply, asking himself each morning, "How many people can I uplift and enliven today?" As a couple, with Esther Nechama teaching kallah classes and acting as senior mikveh attendant, and Mordecai Zev introducing Jew and non-Jew alike to the wonders of personal and professional development, the Margolese family have been prime movers and shakers in turning people on to the spiritual and physical bounty available in everyday life.

We wish Mordecai Zev much continued success and joy as he boldly steps into his next station in life, and we are proud to honor him as a longtime member with an illustrious narrative.

Honorees

Binny and Brocha Margolese

Look up the word “smile” in the dictionary, and you will see a picture of one of Tiferes Yisroel’s most delightful, amiable and disarming members, Binny Margolese.

Binny, along with his remarkable wife, Brocha, and their six children, adds a hip, savvy and deliciously fun-loving element to our shul family. Even though it is all downhill if you want to get to their house from shul, the moment you enter their home, you are uplifted in a way that resonates with the aliveness of a mountaintop morning.

Binny was born in Far Rockaway and moved to Baltimore at the age of six along with the rest of the Margolese clan. He quickly discovered that the coolest religious kids in town hung out at Tiferes Yisroel and decided to become one of them.

Binny remarks that, ever since he was a boy, the Rabbi would invite him into the building on Shabbos to daven, but Binny took his time acclimating to the inner environment, preferring in his formative years to be one of the external pillars of the shul and to hold it up more from the outside than from within. Eventually, and with the consistent, good-natured encouragement of the Rabbi, Binny found his way into the halls and then into the sanctuary of the shul, ultimately joining in joyful prayer with the minyan and adding his own unique measure of zeal to the already spirited environment.

Binny was schooled at Talmudical Academy until ninth grade, then spent a year at Yeshivat Ohr Reuven in Monsey, followed by a brief stint at what was to become Yeshivat Lev Shlomo in Baltimore. Coming to terms with his desire to use his natural skills in a more “hands-on” fashion, Binny then entered into a working arrangement with his father, ultimately taking over his family’s construction business when Mordecai Zev became facility manager at Bais Yaakov. Binny worked at this job for a number of years before meeting and marrying his bashert.

Brocha Margolese, a Detroit transplant with numerous teaching certificates and business degrees, migrated to Baltimore as a young adult and quickly accustomed herself to the Tiferes Yisroel vibe. Her seamless entry into communal life was surpassed only by her ease of passage into a loving and caring relationship with her husband. Together, the two have forged an endearing alliance that has assisted them in reaping a harvest of physical and spiritual benefits.

Binny and Brocha have merited to build a beautiful Torah home along with their six adorable children: Elki, 13; Avi, 12; Kivi, 10; Shefa, 8; Dina, 8 and Gavriel, 6. It is not unusual to see the entirety of the width of W. Strathmore Avenue taken up by this captivating and precious family on any given Shabbos morning as they walk to and from Tiferes Yisroel, frequently stopping to converse and catch up with friends and neighbors.

Binny currently works as the facility manager at Bais Yaakov since his father’s retirement in 2015, and has volunteered extensively with Chaverim. Brocha is the director of Darchei Noam Montessori in Pikesville. She is currently working on her PhD at Johns Hopkins University.

In their spare time, Binny, Brocha and the children love to go camping and to enjoy the great outdoors. Trips to the Appalachians and as far as Orlando with the family have drawn them close together as they eschew the distractions of everyday life and bond over s’mores and hot dogs roasted over an open fire. This Margolese family is a prime example of the blessings bestowed by Hashem when priorities are squarely in place. We are proud to honor Binny and Brocha as one of this year’s outstanding contributors to the shul.

Honorees

Mo and Shaina Margolese

Spend enough time at Tiferes Yisroel, and you will invariably encounter a person of intense and dynamic energy and charisma, a person whose words and deeds leave an indelible impression. You might see him leading a line of children while dancing on Simchas Torah, or engaged with his peers in a lively discussion on the finer points of Chassidic discourse. Whether it pertains to living, learning, loving or serving, this person brings zest and vigor to all that he does. This person's name is Rabbi Moshe Margolese.

Moshe, or "Mo" as he is fondly called, is the fifth child of Mordecai Zev and Esther Nechama Margolese, a"h. Born 34 years ago in Far Rockaway, Mo moved to Baltimore with his family at age 4, initiating an era that continues, to this day, to generate Jewish involvement, enthusiasm and spirited engagement.

Mo played an integral role in bringing the family over to "the Tiferes Yisroel side of the tracks," drawn in by the warm, accepting and nonjudgmental nature of Rabbi and Rebbetzin Goldberger and their kehilla. That lingering warmth became a fire, and Mo and the rest of the Margolese family decided to make Tiferes Yisroel their spiritual home.

Mo grew up attending Talmudical Academy through eighth grade, then spread his wings and completed his high school education at Rabbi Shalom Weingot's yeshiva, the Mesivta of Greater Pittsburgh. He went on to spend three years learning in Eretz Yisroel, attending Ner Yaakov and Ohr Sameyach, before returning to Baltimore and entering the next phase of adult life: marriage.

All shidduchim have endearing back stories, and Mo's is no exception. He met his wife Shaina, a Baltimore native and Bais Yaakov graduate, at the Etz Chaim carnival, where she was in charge of a game booth that involved throwing water balloons to win prizes. Mo craftily lobbed one at Shaina instead of at the intended target, soaking her and forging an instant bond of feigned fury and affection. The fury subsided, but the affection grew, and Mo and Shaina were married a short time later. As time went on, they merited to bring four beautiful children into the world – Eliyahu, 12; Yehuda, 10; Ephraim, 7; and Estee, 3.

When Mo and Shaina are not employing their superb parenting skills, they each work outside the home, bringing their gifts and talents to the table and in service to the Jewish community in a variety of ways. Mo first worked for the Weinberg Academy, starting out as a key player in their GIFT program and then later managing the TA Resource Room. He moved on from there to become head of everything and chief bottle washer at Yeshivat Lev Shlomo, followed by a stint as head counselor of the teen division at Camp Shores, and finally settled in as dean and principal of Ohr Chadash, one of Baltimore's most innovative Jewish day schools. Shaina, with a year of seminary under her belt and a UMBC degree in health administration, has been busy as well. She currently teaches in the pre-school at TA.

Mo has also been a powerful player in the drive to ensure that Tiferes Yisroel remains inclusive, down to its youngest members. He has run Shabbos afternoon shiurim for teens, held car wash fundraisers, sponsored and supervised nature and sports outings, and acted as vice president of programming for all of TY!

Mo and Shaina cite the Rabbi and Rebbetzin as their lifelong mentors, receiving guidance from them each step of the way in developing the proper hashkafos and hadrachos. Rabbi and Rebbetzin Goldberger's warmth, kindness, and wise and caring role modeling are the pillars upon which Mo and Shaina look to build their Torah home. The young couple sum up their assessment of the impact the Rabbi and Rebbetzin have had on their lives, separately and together, as a feeling of overwhelming gratitude. They hope to continue to drink from the fountain of living Jewish waters provided by the Rabbi and Rebbetzin for as long as Hashem will allow. Mo and Shaina are proud to be active and involved members of Tiferes Yisroel. We are equally proud to honor them and wish them tremendous nachas, brachos and hatzlacha as they continue on their magnificent life's journey.

Our Guest Entertainer Eitan Katz

Best known for his niggun “L’Maancha,” Eitan Katz has devoted his career to keeping the fire of Jewish music burning. His compositions honor the language of Tanach and tefillah through original, soulful melodies, performed with delicate sincerity and passion. He lives with his family and learns in yeshiva in Far Rockaway.

Katz grew up in L.A. and Eretz Yisroel surrounded by music, the son of well-known cantor and music teacher Avshalom Katz. He frequently performs with his brother Shlomo, a musician and rabbi in the tradition of Shlomo Carlebach.

He earned a master’s degree in counseling with the intention of becoming a therapist, but as his musical career grew, he had time for little else. For the past decade, he has earned his living exclusively through music, playing weddings and touring throughout the United States, Israel and South Africa.

Katz met Rabbi Goldberger through Nossi Gross, leader of Baltimore’s Zemer Orchestra and Katz’s mentor in the music business. Of Rabbi Goldberger, Katz says, “We share a spiritually focused music. He reached out to help me, and that made a special closeness to him. I love him a lot.”

The goal of his art, says Katz, is “to bring out the essence of what Jewish music is supposed to accomplish. Especially for this generation, which is craving honesty and moments of clarity like nothing else, it needs to be in the tool book of life. People can attain high levels of spirituality through the right music.

“Even within a profession that lends itself to being attached to the Jewish world, you have to have that balance between its being a job, and what it takes to be good at it, and the sensitivity to the fact that you’re dealing with something holy—for example, a speaker has to be funny and charismatic, which has nothing to do with the essence, yet you need that to get the message across.

“What’s the ikkur, the essence, and what’s the taffel, inessential? If the entertainment value of the music gets too far from the focus on it as a tremendous tool Hashem gave us to express our nashamos in a pure way, the more the koach [strength] of it has the ability to mess it up.

“With Jewish music, when it’s connected to Torah in a real way—for example, Rabbi Goldberger’s — not only do you get something pleasant to listen to and fun, but it becomes part of your whole avodah (service to Hashem). It’s a lifelong mission to get there. It doesn’t happen overnight, and even when you get there, you’re not there yet. The goal is maintaining the connection to people who you feel have the right stuff—good and holy people.

Mazel Tov on this well-deserved honor

You have both been role models to me for more than half of my life, and I would not be where I am today without your guidance and help

I will never be able to thank you enough for all you have done for me.

With much gratitude and love,
Michael Horwitz

Kehillas Tiferes Yisroel

In Memory of

Rabbi Daniel Goldberger, זצ״ל

His love of all Jews made him dearly treasured by all who knew him.

We miss his warmth, his caring,
and his dignified manner.

We especially cherish the years we had with him
as he graced our shul succah with his presence.
The holiness of our succah was elevated
by his righteous neshama.

We miss him deeply.

May his memory always be a blessing.
